TWO ITALIANS HIT BY SHOTS FIRED AT AUTOMOBILE

Thomas Cammarata, 18, and Gus Mercurio, 19, Wounded When Driving at Euclid and Maffitt.

FORMER'S ARM IS SHATTERED

Saved Lives by Dropping to Floor of Machine—Police Connect Injured Men With Russo Gang.

Two young Italians, said by the police to be connected with the Russo gang, and therefore likely to be targets for the Giannola faction, were wounded when their automobile was fired upon by occupants of another car at Euclid and Maffitt avenues about 9 o'clock last night.

A sawed-off shotgun and an automatic pistol appear to have been used by the attacking party, who shattered the windows of the car, which Thomas Cammarata, 18 years old, of 816 Wash street, was driving. Cammarata and his companion, Gus Mercurio, 19, of 807 North Eighth street, escaped death by dropping to the floor.

Cammarata's left arm was shattered by a shotgun charge. Mercurio had only a scalp wound. Their overcoats and hats were pierced by shot. Cammarata's soft felt hat having five perforations, and Mercurio's hat having two.

From the scene of the attack, after their pursuers had gone on, the wounded men drove to Police Headquarters, and policemen accompanied them to City Hospital. Physicians thought it might be necessary to amputate Cammarata's shattered left arm.

The first account of the shooting obtained by the police from the two was that they had taken two girls to the Marquette Theater, Eighteenth street and Franklin avenue, and had driven them to their homes in the vicinity of Kingshighway and St. Louis avenue. Later, Mercurio gave a version of the affair in which girls were not mentioned. He said he and Cammarata had stopped on the west side of Euclid avenue, south of Maffitt avenue, that a Nash sedan stopped near them, and a man walked toward their car and began firing. The police believe that at least two men fired at the car.

Besides the shots which wounded the two young men, the exposed side of the machine shows the marks of 18 shot, or the complete charges of two shotgun shells. Three of the four windows were blown out.

The car which Cammarata was driving, a Chevrolet sedan, belongs to his uncle, living on Franklin avenue.

Police records show that Cammarata was arrested Jan. 15, on suspicion of attempting to intimidate Alex Weber, Negro witness in the trial of Ralph Calico, who was then accused of the murder of Alphonse Palazzolo. Calico was acquitted soon afterward. Cammarata admitted having called at Weber's house and left a message for him, but said he was offering Weber a job. The case against Cammarata was dropped. Since 1925, Cammarata has been arrested eight times, and Mercurio seven times, on suspicion in various cases.

FORD PLANNING DEVELOPMENT IN BRAZIL, VICE-CONSUL SAYS

Rubber Planting, Banking, Shipping and Manufacturing Contemplated in State of Para.

BOSTON, Feb. 18. — Banking, shipping, mining and manufacturing in Brazil are included in Henry Ford's plans for developing rubber plantations in that country, according to Edwin Hauvenet Holden, United States Vice Consul at Para, who was in Boston yesterday.

Ford's arrangement with the State of Para and the Federal Government of Brazil contemplate all these activities, Holden added. He explained that Ford is understood to have acquired a vast tract of land in Para for planting.

Rubber trees do not yield any return for six or eight years, but Holden believes Ford also will plant secondary crops.

Senate Talk "Worse Than War."

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 18.—Addressing the State organization of the American Legion here tonight, Vice President Charles G. Dawes began his speech with the remark that war was preferable to listening to Senate speeches and ended with a fervent, "The American Legion is not in politics and I thank God for that." His subject was, "The Relation of Business and Military Principles in War."

LINDBERGH TONES DOWN COLORS OF TWO GIFT AUTOS

Snappy Hues of Sedan and Roadster Subdued to Avoid Attracting Attention.

Col. Lindbergh, who received two gift automobiles of distinctive design when he returned to St. Louis last summer after his trans-Atlantic flight, has had the cars toned down so that they will attract less attention when he has them on the road.

The Franklin sedan which had been painted in gray with gray upholstery and lap ropes and black top, is now a solid black and only its license, No. 600-000 is distinctive. The LaSalle roadster, formerly silver with black fenders, is now being painted a darker and less conspicuous color.

GERMANS CONVICT CHEMIST FROM U. S.

Guido Meisel of Portsmouth Gets One Year for Directing Commercial Espionage.

By the Associated Press.

DUSSELDORF, Germany, Feb. 18.—Convicted of commercial espionage, Guido Meisel, American chemist of Portsmouth, N. H., today was sentenced to one year in prison and a fine of 5000 marks (about $1250), after a secret trial lasting several days.

Meisel also was sentenced to pay 2000 marks indemnification to each of the co-plaintiff firms, the German dye trust, Leopold Cassalla and Kalla & Co., which claimed damages because of Meisel's alleged activities.

Meisel, who is German born, was released on bail of 11,000 marks, but must temporarily remain in Germany.

The court found Meisel guilty of a series of offenses violating a Federal statute relating to unfair competition. The court declared that this was proved by evidence that he had been carrying on industrial espionage intermittently since 1926, naming leading German chemical plants as the victims. Meisel also was charged with having carried on negotiations with German confederates in Heidelberg, Mannheim and Switzerland.

In computing the penalty, the Court considered that Meisel was acting as agent for an American firm, but that he also was guilty of "having, through unscrupulous methods, injured the German State and one of its most vital industries, which is indissolubly linked up with the nation's welfare."

Meisel has been in jail in Duesseldorf since last mid-June. He contemplated returning to the United States at that time, but allowed himself to be lured back to Germany from Cherbourg, France, by a telegram urging him to come to Dusseldorf for further negotiations. When he put in an appearance here he was arrested and locked up.

He was released from jail this afternoon, but must remain in Germany until the Court is informed that neither the defense nor the Prosecuting Attorney will appeal from today's verdict. When the latter point is clearly established, it is believed that Meisel will be permitted to leave the country, the Court being satisfied with his eight months' incarceration and tacitly consenting to an amnesty of the four months' balance of his prison sentence.

The German chemist, Paul Schmidtnaegel, and Dr. Rudolf Reiss, codefendants with Meisel, were sentenced, respectively, to five and two months' imprisonment and to nominal fines.

BORAH DECIDES NOT TO PRESS HIS RESOLUTION ON NICARAGUA

Senator Makes Announcement After Hour's Conference With Marine Commander.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has decided against pressing his resolution for an investigation as to the use of American naval and marine forces in Nicaragua.

His decision was made known today after Major-General Lejeune, commandant of the Marine Corps, had spent more than an hour with the committee detailing conditions in Nicaragua as he found them during a recent trip of inspection of the 3500 marine forces now in that country.

"I think we have more information as to the use of the American forces than we could have obtained by a public inquiry," the Idaho Senator said.

Gen. Lejeune said conditions in Nicaragua were improving and that the Marines were contented there. He cited the fact that only two men had deserted in a year.

LINDBERGH THRICE BALKED GIVES UP FLYING FOR DAY

READY TO CARRY THE MAIL TOMORROW

Failing in Attempt to Fly to Springfield, Ill. Dinner He Attends Officers' Banquet in St. Louis.

After two attempts to make a preliminary flight over the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route and a third attempt to fly to Springfield, Ill., Col. Charles A. Lindbergh remained in St. Louis yesterday. He ended the day by attending an informal banquet at the Mayfair Hotel given by fellow officers of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Squadron.

Taking off from the Lambert-St. Louis Field at 10:35 a. m., he piloted a Ryan passenger monoplane to Springfield. There he discovered a leak in the oil tank and he was forced to leave the plane at Springfield and return to St. Louis in another plane.

Second Attempt Fails.

He planned to take off again for Chicago at 2:10 p. m. in a Douglas mail plane but generator trouble developed and he remained on the ground.

Last night the flyer agreed to carry the three pilots on the St. Louis-Chicago route — Harland Gurney, E. L. Sloniger and Leslie Smith—to Springfield where they planned to attend a dinner as guests of postoffice employes. They left the field at 6:40. This time the battery was low and the landing lights were not functioning properly. Eight minutes later he returned to the field and decided to do no more flying for the day.

Lindbergh's passengers, when he started from St. Louis yesterday, were Frank H. Robertson, president of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, and Thomas P. Nelson, a former flying mate, who will help Lindbergh fly the mail tomorrow.

Lindbergh, Robertson and Nelson returned in a mail plane which was being brought to St. Louis from Chicago by Chief Pilot "Bud" Gurney. Lindbergh's parachute jumper when the trans-Atlantic flyer was a barnstormer four years ago.

Attends Officers' Banquet.

His face showing signs that he had been working over the mail plane, Lindbergh hurried to the National Guard banquet and arrived there in time for the height of the festivity. At the banquet were Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, St. Louis aviation pioneer; Col. John A. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field; Maj. C. Ray Wassall, and about 30 other officers of the militia flying unit.

More than 100,000 pieces of mail—by weight approximately a ton and a half—will be carried over the St. Louis-Chicago air mail line tomorrow when Col. Lindbergh returns to his old mail route. Postmaster Mchener estimated last night.

The advance mail for the trip now totals more than 45,000 pieces, which are being held until the truck leaves the St. Louis Postoffice for the flying field tomorrow afternoon. At Springfield 550 pounds of mail are already on hand. The Postmaster estimated that St. Louis would have at least 60,000 pieces in the mail, while Springfield and Peoria, the remaining stops on the route, will furnish 40,000 more.

Returned to Mail Plane.

For the flight tomorrow the pilots will be Lindbergh, Nelson, now a mail pilot on the Chicago-Cleveland mail line of the National Air Transport, Philip R. Love, of the Fairchild Airplane Manufacturing Corporation, Sloniger and Smith of the Robertson staff, and Gurney.

Before the takoff Lindbergh will fly three ships, so that it may be said he was in charge of every single piece of mail. That plan was made when it became apparent he could not fly all of the mail in spite of the fact that it is to be stamped with a special cancellation, and thousands are patronizing the trip because of the souvenir value of the envelopes.

On the way northward Lindbergh will change planes at Springfield, and again at Peoria, so that when he lands at Chicago, long after dark, he will have flown each plane. He will start from St. Louis in a new Travel-Air biplane, which will be dedicated just before the takeoff.

TWO MEN HOLD UP GAS OFFICE, GET $700

Manager of Laclede Company's Cherokee Street Branch Forced to Open Safe.

Two men robbed a branch office of the Laclede Gas Light Co. at 2744 Cherokee street of between $700 and $800 shortly before 9 o'clock last night.

Flourishing revolvers, they drove Thomas Rex of 3512A McKean avenue, the cashier, into the basement, robbed the cash register, and then forced James R. Rannells of 5915 Michigan avenue, the manager, to open the safe.

After taking all the money in the safe they made Rannells join the cashier in the basement and warned them to remain there for 20 minutes. They escaped on foot.

ENDS LIFE 24 HOURS AFTER ARREST UNDER TRAFFIC LAW

George Kerckhoff, 28, Under Charges After Auto Collision, Drinks Poison.

Twenty-four hours after he had been arrested for operating a car when intoxicated, George Kerckhoff, 28 years old, driver of a bakery truck, ended his life by drinking poison in his home, 3675 Blaine avenue. He died on his way to City Hospital.

Kerckhoff's bakery truck, Friday afternoon, collided with two other machines. One of the drivers followed him to his home and had him arrested. Kerckhoff had been drinking. His wife said Kerckhoff brooded over his arrest and the possibility of losing his job.

FORD SUES LELAND FOR $1174 GARAGE AND CARPENTRY BILL

Suit Against Son of Former Motor Firm President Lists Rags and Plush Robes.

By the Associated Press.

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 18.—A suit seeking collection from Wilfred C. Leland, son of the former president of the Lincoln Motor Car Co., of $1174 alleged to have been advanced the defendant was instituted here today by the Ford Motor Co. Among the items contained in the bill are included the expense of cleaning the carbon from a motor and carpenter work on a boathouse door. The debts are claimed for "material services and money advanced on request of the defendant."

Henry M. Leland and his son are plaintiffs in a suit brought against Henry and Edsel Ford, seeking collection of $6,000,000 alleged to be due stockholders of the old Lincoln Motor Car Co. in connection with its sale to the Fords. The suit has been heard in part, having been adjourned until Feb. 20 to allow defense attorneys to file briefs why they should not answer the charges of the Lelands.

The suit instituted today is said to have no connection with the major action. Other expense items listed as due the Ford Motor Co. include "rags for garage, $2.76;" "cost of putting boat of Wilfred C. Leland in water, 17 hours, $17," and "two sage-brush green robes, plush, $24."

Dirigible Disturbs Hotel Guests.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — Because of the protest of an Atlantic City hotel proprietor that the noise made by the dirigible Los Angeles disturbed his guests, the airship will avoid that town hereafter, under plans of the Navy Department. Lieut. C. E. Rosendahl, master of the airship, was forced by weather conditions to fly the Los Angeles over the city about two months ago and the protests followed. He informed the department that he would avoid the town whenever possible.

THREE KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH DURING CARNIVAL

WRECKAGE OF SHIP CRUSHES PEDESTRIAN

Two Others Hurt When Plane Out of Control Plunges 7000 Feet Into Busy Street in Macon, Ga.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—Out of control after the premature explosion of an aerial bomb had killed its pilot and an aviator who accompanied him, an airplane participating in the Southeastern air derby here, plunged 7000 feet into the heart of the business district here today, killing one pedestrian and seriously injuring two others.

Buck Steele of Shreveport, La., veteran stunt flier, was the pilot, and Francis Ashcraft, student aviator of Towanda, Pa., his companion in the plane, who met death in mid-air. The third bomb Ashcraft tossed out in an exhibition as part of the carnival, caught in the wings and exploded prematurely. Steele was decapitated by the explosion.

Spectators saw the plane suddenly enveloped in smoke. A moment later the plane went into a side slip then into a tail spin, gathering speed by force of the still revolving propeller.

It crashed close by the car tracks in Cherry street, near the Second street crossing. Horror-stricken cries from those who watched it fall, failed to clear the street entirely, and four persons, one a Negro woman, were either pinned down by the wreckage or struck by the debris.

C. E. Murphy, 34 years old, a local blacksmith, was struck by the plane's propeller as it hit the ground. It severed an arm and leg and inflicted injuries which caused his death in a hospital a few hours afterward.

Mrs. Maggie Nail and an unidentified man were dangerously hurt. The other two hit by debris were not seriously injured.

The weight of a crowd of hundreds of persons who rushed to the wreck caused the collapse of a concrete sidewalk and the injury of six of more than a score who were thrown into the basement of a drug store.

Today's Derby program, in which 30 or more flyers are participating, was abandoned and all social features of the carnival were canceled.

Two Girls Killed at Columbia, S. C., on First Flight.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 18.—Alma Hope and Mildred Rogers, 17-year-old Columbia school girls, were burned to death today when the airplane in which they were making their first flight, burst into flames after crashing into a railroad floodlight tower at the edge of the city.

Don Diegel, the pilot, escaped with serious injury.

The two girls were said to have been advised by Diegel and also by one of the owners of the plane not to go up this morning, because of the unfavorable weather conditions, but insisted on going.

THREE FLYERS IN MONOPLANE SEEK NEW ENDURANCE RECORD

Tri-Motored Albatross, Soaring Above Imperial Valley Reports "All Well."

By the Associated Press.

IMPERIAL, Cal., Feb. 18.—The tri-motored monoplane, Albatross, which took the air at 6:55 a. m. today, is soaring above this valley in an attempt to break the world's endurance flight record, 53 hours 22 minutes and 21 seconds.

The plane carries 1294 gallons of gasoline. Charles Rocheville, designer and chief pilot; Jack Reed, relief pilot, and A. K. Peterson, his assistant, are aboard. The Albatross must remain aloft until 11:17 a. m. Monday to gain the world's record, now held by two German aviators.

Messages dropped from the huge craft said everything was working smoothly.

735 Quit School Over Vaccination.

By the Associated Press.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Feb. 18.—Rather than submit to the order requiring all school children to be vaccinated, 735 pupils have elected to accept the alternative, a 14-day suspension, Ira H. MacIntyre, Superintendent of Schools, said today. The vaccination order was issued a week ago in an effort to stamp out smallpox, which has been present in Brown County since December, 1926.

Hughes Defines U. S. Policy in Nicaragua in Havana Speech

Pleads Right of International Justice as Co-Existent With Right of Sovereignty; Opposes Denial of All Interposition.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Feb. 18.—Charles Evans Hughes, chairman of the American delegation to the Pan-American Congress, tonight in a speech which auditors termed one of the most significant of his long career, pleaded the right of international justice as co-existent with the right of sovereignty and opposed denial of all interventions. He won withdrawal of the resolution of the opposition and the approval of the committee report he favored.

After reviewing the long struggle in committee over the Victor Martua (of Peru) report on the rights and duties of states, which saved the right of intervention, and declaring that the committee was unable to agree on principle, let alone codification of laws, Hughes went on to discuss the policy of the United States.

"What is the actual situation? There is no one here who has not the enjoyment of the free air of independence. Over 100 years ago we proclaimed that all American republics should be recognized in their liberty. We have given our arms and our blood for their liberty, and we are ready to do so again.

* * * Our policy is to respect the rights of others as we desire them to respect our rights.

"We do not wish the territory of any American republic. We do not wish to govern any territory of any American republic. We merely wish that right, rightfully established, be recognized so that the American continent may be also a continent of international justice.

U. S. Purposes in Nicaragua.

"Much has been said about Nicaragua lately. There sits the foreign minister for Nicaragua (pointing to Dr. Cuadra Pazos). He can tell you as I can that we only wish liberty and the independence of Nicaragua to establish a free election leading to stable and independent government.

"Let us face the facts. The difficulty, if there is any, is not from an external aggression, but is from internal difficulties. From time to time there arises a situation most regrettable in which sovereignty does not work. When in a given area there is not government, there independence and sovereignty cannot be. What are we to do when government breaks down and American citizens are threatened? Must we see our citizens butchered because a government, for reasons beyond its control, cannot give them protection?

"I do not speak of sporadic acts, mob acts which can occur in any country, but I speak of cases where government itself does not function and all authority is gone. It is a principle of international law that allows an outside Government —I will not say intervention but rather—friendly interposition to protect its citizens. * * *

Right to Protect Citizens.

"Of course, the United States cannot forego its right to protect its citizens. International law cannot be changed by the resolutions of a conference like this. States have duties as well as rights. We cannot set up a Government of self will."

Hughes said that the purpose of the sub-committee was not to try to establish an isolated principle but a principle in which the rights and duties of all countries should be stated.

"It was with that purpose we worked in the sub-committee. But that is not the work for a warm afternoon after seductive discussion of principles which state only a fraction of the law. I was one of those who did not favor Dr. Maurtua's report, who said 'we cannot do this here; and proposed that the matter be studied further.

"I am too proud of my country to appear and stand before you in any attitude suggesting a defense from any criticism or attack against my country."

Hughes closed with a declaration of his will to co-operate, to work with and then to join the other nations of America in working out principles of international law. Thunderous applause from the galleries and the floor followed the American leader's speech.

"Dr. Carlos Cuadra Pazos of Nicaragua gave immediate substantiation to Hughes.

"In the face of the whole world," he said, "we say that we look to the co-operation of the United States for the reintegration of our territory. * * * I make this solemn declaration to the Congress in the solemn trust which Nicaragua has in the promises made by Mr. Coolidge and repeated by Mr. Hughes."

BEARS CONTINUE SPECTACULAR RUN AGAINST STOCKS

Rush of Last-Minute Trading on New York Exchange Sets Record for Volume for a Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The headlong rush to liquidate stocks continued today, added hundreds of millions to yesterday's $1,000,000,000 loss in market values, and established a new record for Saturday sales of 1,831,000 shares.

So great was the volume of last-minute trading, more than 1,100,000 shares changing hands in the final hour, that the closing quotation did not appear on the ticker tape until 25 minutes after trading stopped. The former record for Saturday sales, marked up on Dec. 17, 1927, was 1,603,000 shares. The ticker never had been so far behind the market since the abbreviated system of printing quotations was adopted.

Scramble to Realize Profits.

Following yesterday's procedure, the bears directed their most vicious attacks against pool favorites which have been moving like skyrockets in recent months. In the absence of news to influence the selling, this condition was accepted as evidence that the market was in an essentially vulnerable and topheavy position. After Friday's drop, offerings were substantially swelled by liquidation of accounts not adequately margined, and there was a scramble by traders who have built up large paper profits to unload holdings before gains were wiped out.

As is frequently the case in a declining market, many "short" traders took advantage of the opportunity to cover at profitable levels, which acted in some instances as a buffer against more drastic recessions.

Industrials Resist "Bear Raid."

Whether or not the 2-day retreat of the "bull" marked the beginning of the end of the so-called "Coolidge market" was a much discussed question in the financial district. This theory had numerous supporters, but their view was vigorously opposed by many others who considered the current movement as a temporary setback paving the way for a continued advance in prices as soon as the "technical position" of the market had been corrected.

The two stock market giants, United States Steel and General Motors, fared better than in yesterday's selling wave. Although Steel common dipped below $140 for the first time this year, it rallied slightly, and closed at that figure, fractionally off on the day. General Motors had a small net gain, after sinking about $2 a share earlier in the day. Other standard industrials and railroads also offered strong resistance to the "bear raid."

Some Shares Hard Hit.

Midland Steel Products, preferred, which was hard hit yesterday, was hammered down $13.25 a share more, selling at $199, against its high record of $315 last December. Baldwin Locomotive, which has not been as active this years as last, fell $9 before recovering $1, and American Machine & Foundry and Vanadium Steel $7.25 and $6.12½, respectively, on the day.

Some Foods Rationed in Moscow.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Moscow dispatches to the Vossische Zeitung say that butter, soap, macaroni and eggs are rationed there. Trade unionists are allowed double the quantity received by other citizens. Clothing, rice and potato flour may be sold only to trade unionists.

U. S. DEFEATS PROPOSAL TO OUTLAW ALL INTERVENTION

Stirring Debate Quieted by Hughes, Resolution Withdrawn, in Pan-American Congress.

UNION CONVENTION GIVEN APPROVAL

Argentine to Sign, With Reservation; Arbitration Project Wins Indorsement at Havana.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Feb. 18.—The issue of absolute non-intervention in American States, which suddenly had sprung to life in the plenary session of the sixth Pan-American Congress in a way to jeopardize its peaceful conclusion, was quieted and withdrawn tonight under the eloquent suasion of Charles Evans Hughes, American chairman, and apparently sober second thought on the part of the delegates.

This decision followed the Congress' approval of the Pan-American Union convention, which recently had provoked contention, resulting in the resignation of Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, as chairman of the Argentine delegation.

The dramatic appearance of the non-intervention issue followed the presentation of the report of the committee on public international law which, having striven heatedly and without success, proposed that it be left to the consideration of the next Congress. Dr. Laurentino Olascoaga immediately was on his feet to re-affirm the stand of his predecessor, Dr. Pueyrredon, in favor of non-intervention.

For a time, as delegate after delegate arose to affirm this same principle, the principle of intervention in the interests of justice, which the United States has supported, seemed in grave danger. Dr. Gustavo Guerrero of Salvador obtained permission to introduce a resolution setting forth the principle of non-intervention.

Time and Hughes Turn Tide.

Several hours of consideration of other matters while the resolution was being prepared, an hour recess giving opportunity for corridor discussion, and then an eloquent speech by Hughes, pleading for international justice as well as rights of sovereignty, turned the tide, and Dr. Guerrero was induced not to press for a vote upon his resolution. The report of the committee soon was adopted.

The text of the resolution for absolute nonintervention prepared by Dr. Guerrero, read:

"Considering that at this time the firm decision of every delegation has been expressed to the effect that principles of nonintervention and of the judicial equality of states be established in categorical manner, be it therefore resolved:

"That no state has the right to intervene in the internal affairs of another."

On precipitation of the intervention issue, Dr. Olascoaga, for Argentine, placed his country on record as reaffirming the same "unshakeable position" on the matter which already had been expressed in committee. Dr. Pueyrredon had declared in committee that Argentina opposed any intervention "whether diplomatic or armed; whether temporary or permanent."

Intervention Denounced.

Tense silence pervaded the enormous conference hall as representatives of Salvador, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Guatemala and Colombia arose in quick succession to announce that they, too, still denounced all intervention.

Hughes attempted to stem the tide which threatened to repeat in plenary session the assault by many delegations upon the United States' Latin-American policies in committee.

He also wished, Hughes said, to join in expressing regret that a definition of the fundamental rights and duties of States could not be considered at this congress but had to be postponed. He ardently desired, he continued, that harmonious understanding could be reached leading finally to the codification of such important postulates of international law.

Nicaraguan's Attitude.

Carlos Cuadra Pazos, Nicaraguan chairman, said that he desired to go on record as having struggled as hard as any delegate to obtain discussion of intervention at this

ESCH OF I. C. C. DENIES POLITICS MADE HIM SHIFT

Repudiates Reed's Charge He Changed Vote So as to Favor Pennsylvania Mines to Hold Job.

MORE HEAT THAN LIGHT IN DENIAL

He Tells Senate Committee New Facts Influenced Him but Is Vague as to What They Were.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Commissioner John J. Esch of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who was bitterly assailed on the floor of the Senate Friday by Senator Reed of Missouri for having changed his vote to favor the Pittsburg district in the lake cargo coal rate case, warmly defended himself before the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate today, and repudiated Reed's charge that his change of view had resulted from political pressure and hunger for reappointment.

However, there appeared to be more heat than light in Esch's explanation. He insisted that his reversal of his previous position had resulted partly from new facts, but he was rather vague about their character.

Reed declared in his Senate speech that no new facts had been presented since the commission voted two years and a half ago to deny the favored treatment sought by Pennsylvania coal operators. The real influence responsible for the change of fact, Reed declared, was political pressure exercised through President Coolidge by the Pennsylvania interests represented by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Senator David Reed.

Pennsylvania Differential.

As explained in Friday's Post-Dispatch the effect of the Commission's decision was to give Pennsylvania coal operators an advantage of more than 50 cents a ton over the operators of Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, in freight rates on coal shipped to the Great Lakes. Pennsylvania operators sought this differential in 1925 but the Commission refused it. The case was reopened, and Commissioners Esch and Aitchison changed their votes, giving the Pennsylvania fields the differential they had demanded.

Reed delared his senatorial cousin from Pennsylvania, who is attorney for the Mellon interests—owners of the largest coal company in the Pittsburg district—had deliberately set out to pack the Commission in order to get what they wanted, and likened it to an attempt to pack the Supreme Court in order to obtain a favorable decision. He said Esch had changed his vote because he realized that it was the only way to obtain reappointment by President Coolidge. He was subsequently reappointed and the nomination is now pending before the Senate.

Esch Denies Reed's Charge.

Appearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday Esch pounded the table and declared: "It has been charged that I changed my decision because of political influence. I want to deny it. I want to deny it as emphatically as I can. I want to say that I know of no political influence that affected my judgment or that of any other member of the commission. We acted upon new facts, which had been presented to us."

"Do you think you would have had a chance of reappointment if you had not changed your mind?" shot Senator Neely, of West Virginia.

"I didn't give it a thought," flared Commissioner Esch.

"Please answer the question. Do you think the President would have reappointed you if you had not changed your decision?" Neely insisted.

"I don't think that question entered into the matter in the slightest degree," reiterated Esch. "I have never mentioned the case to President Coolidge. Furthermore, I was not an applicant for this office when I was appointed the first time, and I am not an applicant now. I haven't spoken to a single Senator about my confirmation."

Watson to the Rescue.

Chairman Jim Watson, of Indiana, came to Esch's rescue by asking: "Has the President or any representative of the President ever spoken to you about this case?"

"No, sir," was the emphatic rejoinder.

"In changing your decision did you consider the changed conditions existing in the coal industry in Pennsylvania?" inquired Senator Gooding, of Idaho, another sympathetic interlocutor.

"Yes, that was considered. There was quite a depression in the Pennsylvania district when the second decision was rendered."

Commissioner Esch added that the main reason for his change of view came from the Hoch-Smith resolution, passed by the last Congress, which directed the Commission in fixing rates, to consider the economic conditions in the sections affected, particularly agricultural conditions. The resolution, as matter of fact, was intended to give relief to farmers and cotton-growers, in the form of lower freight rates, but Esch said he had construed it as applying to all industries.

"It seems to me," interposed Senator Sackett of Kentucky, "that this construction makes the commission the arbiter of business and industrial conditions throughout the country. Does the commission feel that it actually has a right deliberately to stimulate prosperity in one section of the country at the expense of other sections?"

Forbidding Equalizing of Rate.

"I would not want to make it quite that broad, but we regarded the Hoch-Smith resolution as binding," Esch replied. "We previously followed it in the so-called western fruit case, and were sustained by the Federal Courts." After the commission, by its second decision, had lowered rates from the Pittsburg district to the Great Lakes, thus increasing the existing differential between the Pennsylvania rates and the rates from the Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee fields, the railroads serving the latter fields voluntarily made a similar reduction, whereupon the commission suspended that reduction."

"Do you think you had any right to issue such an order?" demanded Neely.

"In a number of earlier instances, we have suspended proposed reductions," the commissioner responded. "We feel that we have a right to suspend reductions which might ifpose an undue burden on traffic. If these reductions had been permitted, there would have been protests."

A Thrust at the Mellons.

"Yes—probably from the Pittsburg Coal Co.," (a Mellon concern) was Neely's sarcastic rejoinder.

"Possibly—and some of the northern roads might have protested, also," said Esch.

The nature of the hearing leaves no doubt that Esch's confirmation will be bitterly fought in the Senate, not only by the Senators from the Southern States adversely affected by the decision, but by other Southern and Western Senators who regard the decision as a brazen example of favoritism in beshalf of the Mellon and allied coal interests.

As pointed out by Reed of Missouri, in his speech yesterday, the distance of the Southern fields from the Great Lakes is somewhat greater than the distance of the Pittsburg district, but the differential is out of proportion to the actual distances over which the coal is shipped.

New Wabash Delmar Station

NEW DELMAR STATION PLANS ARE APPROVED

Wabash Structure to Harmonize in Appearance With Viaduct Which It Will Face.

Plans for the new Delmar Station of the Wabash Railroad at Delmar boulevard and Hodiamont avenue were approved yesterday by President J. E. Taussig of the Wabash and bids for the work will be sought immediately.

The building will be of reinforced concrete in modern Roman style with the exterior of Bedford limestone. The roof will be trimmed in red Spanish tile, the structure harmonizing in appearance with the new Delmar viaduct now under construction.

The front of the new station will be on Delmar boulevard and will extend over the tracks. Entrance will be on the viaduct level on both the Delmar and Hodiamont sides and parking facilities also will be provided. The waiting room will be finished in Italian travertine laid in ashlar masonry. The floor will be of tile. Separate corridors will lead from the main waiting room to the track level and elevators will also be provided. Indirect lighting will be used in the building. The train shed will be 800 feet long of the modern cantilever type and will be flanked on one side by baggage rooms and heating plant.

The present temporary station is 800 feet north of Delmar at Hodiamont and Clemens avenue.

The new viaduct has a clearance of 18 feet over the tracks with a slope extending east and west to within 235 feet of Hamilton and 230 feet of Rosedale avenue. Work on the project was begun last year after 15 years' litigation between the city and the Wabash road.

"DIP" OF FERRY BOAT LAID TO BALLAST TANK

Inspector Says Engine Room Crew Neglected Duty—7 Reported Missing.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Responsibility for the "nose dive" which swept approximately 30 persons off the forward deck of the electric ferry Peralta in San Francisco Bay last night, gravitated to the engine room crew of the craft today as Federal investigators launched a searching inquiry.

Police and officers of the Key System Co., owners of the vessel, broadcast inquiries for seven persons who were reported missing. Two of this number, J. W. Collins of Oakland and Hugh Findlay of Berkeley were definitely believed to have been on the Peralta. Of the other five there was doubt as to whether they were passengers.

Joseph P. Dolan, United States Steamboat Inspector, while cross-examining Edward Dyson, chief engineer of the Peralta, said the forward balancing tank was full of water at the time of the "dip" when it shoud have been emptied. Control of the balancing tanks is in the engine room of the Peralta and the water should have been released to the rear tank, Dolan said.

Both Harry Hill, first assistant engineer, and Dyson denied the forward tank was full, although the latter admitted he was not certain the forward tank was empty.

"The only possible way that ferry boat could have dipped the way she did," said Dolan, "would have been for that forward tank to have been filled with water."

In making the trip from San Francisco to Oakland, the forward tank is supposed to be empty. The rear tank is filled before the vessel reaches the Oakland pier, to counterbalance the weight of passengers who generally rush forward, to be able to rush off the boat when the gangplank is dropped.

The Rem System also conducted an investigation today, the company officials announced:

"At this time we cannot ascertain what caused the washover of the deck of the boat Peralta. There was no danger at any time on the Peralta, because she is buoyed with water-tight compartments which would make it impossible. The only danger was the danger that happened—that of panic."

The list of persons believed to be missing follows:

J. W. Collins, Oakland, telephone company employe; Hugh Findlay, Berkeley, assistant editor of a trade magazine; Lewis Kean, W. Fayre, Dan Petker, Oakland candymaker; Mrs. Evelyn Kraft, Negro, Oakland, and a man named Tyrell.

Capt. William H. Melsome testified before a Federal Board that the mishap was caused by a "curl" of water at the bow of the Peralta when passengers surged forward as the vessel passed Goat Island on the way from San Francisco to the pier at Oakland.

The Captain testified that he ordered engines cut to "half speed" when he observed the "curl" and a moment later sounded a "stop" bell.

"As the Peralta appeared to dip, I ordered back full speed," said Capt. Melsome. "While backing, the boat shipped a full sea over the bow. It was still under headway forward however.

"The sea on coming aboard flooded the main deck and part of the inner cabin. As the headway lessened the Peralta came back to an even keel and shed the water it had taken on. A panic took place among the passengers. Members of the crew had to fight their way in getting to the boat, causing a delay in getting the first boat away."

OLIVER J. PAGE FILES IN G. O. P. SENATE RACE

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 18.—Oliver J. Page of Springfield, majority floor leader in the Missouri House of Representatives, today filed his official declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. He is the first to file in the Republican senatorial field.

Page is expected to take a position against prohibition, having told friends within the last few weeks that he had postponed filing to see whether there would be a wet candidate from St. Louis.

In view of the fact that Republican organization leaders have shown a desire to induce Roscoe C. Patterson of Springfield, United States District Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, to seek the senatorial nominatic, Page's filing is of particular interest. Patterson served one term in Congress and voted with the drys, but he is not considered a radical. He and Page have been leaders of opposing Republican factions in Greene County and there has been much bitterness between them.

The decision of former Gov. Hyde to stay out of the Senatorial race as a result of information from St. Louis Republican leaders that they would not support him because of his dry views has caused much uncertainty as to who the Republican candidates would be.

Now that Page has filed, it would seem that there is no room for another wet candidate, and that any other filings would be by candidates who could draw votes from both the wets and drys or from the drys.

Page is 60 years old. He formerly was a member of the Illinois Legislature. He served as Prosecuting Attorney of Greene County two terms, and once was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congressman in the Seventh district. He was elected to the Missouri Legislature in 1926.

THRONGS GREET DE VALERA

Friends Carry Irish Republican Leader on Shoulders.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Feb. 18.—Eamon de Valera, Irish Republican leader, was welcomed back to Ireland tonight at Dunleary, or Kingston, after a six-week tour of the United States to raise capital for a new newspaper. He was met by a torchlight procession which escorted him with bands and drums and pipers to the headquarters of the Fiannafail, where he and others spoke from motor lorries to large crowds.

Continunig on to this city, De Valera was met by more bands and an enormous crowd. He was lifted to the shoulders of admirers and carried in a procession between cheering onlookers. Addressing the vast assembly, De Valera said that those who recently had told America that Ireland was free had disgusted the Irish supporters in the United States. America knew, he said, that the Irish people wanted complete independence.

RULES ATTORNEY GENERAL CANNOT GRANT IMMUNITY

Missouri Supreme Court Upholds 5-Year Sentence of Roy T. Meyers, Former Gorin Banker.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 18.—Roy T. Myers, former secretary of the defunct Citizens' Trust Co. of Gorin, Mo., whose confession of irregularities to former Attorney-General Otto, under a promise of immunity from prosecution, resulted in the removal of Frank C. Millspaugh from the office of State Finance Commissioner, must serve a sentence of five years in the penitentiary as a result of a Missouri Supreme Court decision today.

Myers was convicted in Adair County of having received deposits after he knew the trust company was in a failing condition. His defense was based upon the promise of immunity from the Attorney-General, Myers' attorney setting out that evidence given by him was used against him. At the trial there was conflicting testimony as to the promise of immunity.

Curtis A. Betts of the Post-Dispatch staff who accompanied Otto to El Paso, Tex., and was present when the confession of Myers was obtained, corroborated Myers' testimony that immunity had been promised him. Otto denied the promise.

Commissioner Higbee, who wrote the opinion, called attention to this testimony, but did not pass upon the question of whether there had been a promise of immunity. He held that Otto had not the legal right to grant immunity.

"We know of no power in the Attorney-General to grant immunity," Commissioner Higbee said in the opinion. "The right to institute criminal proceedings is lodged in the Prosecuting Attorney's office and the fact that the Attorney-General may or may not approve the institution of criminal action is wholly immaterial."

The decision of the court probably ends the long prosecution of Myers, though there are pending many other charges against him.

Millspaugh, who was indicted on charges of misfeasance in office as a result of Myers' disclosures, escaped prosecution on a technicality, the indictment drawn in Otto's office having been found to be faulty.

DECLARES U. S. HAS LOST LEADERSHIP IN LATIN AMERICA

"Once a Brother, Now International Policeman," Explains Prof. James W. Garner of U. of Illinois.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—The United States has lost its place of leadership among the Latin-American nations, Dr. James W. Garner, professor o. political science at the University of Illinois and former president of the American Political Science Association, declared in an address last night before the Southeastern Citizenship Conference at Emory University.

"It is as clear as day, that the Republic of North America lost its leadership among the Latin-Americas," he declared. "We were once a brother, now an international policeman. They followed us well into the World War and fought with us throughout it. But after the war ended, the United States failed to enter the League of Nations and the Latin-American countries ceased to follow our lead. They entered the league."

Garner condemned the United States intervention in any nation to protect the interests of American citizens.

"The man that goes into another nation and lays down his dollars for profit has no right to demand of his Government to protect his investment," he declared.

Garner offered five suggestions for a new policy in Latin-America:

"First, to stop intervention except in cases of flagrant injustice; second, discontinue our recognition policy; third, go back to the former interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine; fourth, reorganize the Pan-American Union, and fifth, enter arbitration treaties with every country."

LINER BOUND FOR HAVANA SINKS COAL BARGE IN STORM

Siboney, Which Weathered Florida Hurricane, Meets Mishap in Fog and Snow.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Groping through a thick fog intensified by a thick snowfall, the Ward Line passenger steamer Siboney, bound for Havana, rammed and sank the coal barge Seneca in the lower harbor today. Four men on the barge were rescued.

The Siboney, in command of Capt. O. L. Seastrom and carrying 200 passengers, had left its pier in the East River two hours before the collision at the entrance to Ambrose Channel, just off Sandy Hook, about 25 miles down the harbor.

Advices to the Ward Line office informed officials that the ship was putting back, somewhat damaged. Members of the operating department said the Siboney would anchor in the bay to permit a survey to determine whether the vessel might continue its trip without having to lay up for repairs.

The Siboney, one of the Ward Line's fastest ships, a year ago battled its way through the hurricane that laid waste parts of Florida.

SEASONAL LABOR SURPLUS REPORTED IN MISSOURI

A slight decline in industrial employment in Missouri, due to the usual seasonal conditions, was announced here yesterday by the United States Department of Labor for January.

With little improvement anticipated before spring, a marked surplus of building tradesmen prevails, while unskilled labor is especially plentiful. Employment in meat packing houses and railroad repair shops decreased slightly. Iron and steel plants, drug and chemical establishments, shoe factories and automobile assembling plants registered substantial increases during the month. Clerical and factory help was more plentiful in January. Demand for farm labor was light, with an increase expected in another 30 days.

A noticeable surplus of unskilled labor, chiefly transients, marked the situation in St. Louis. Skilled labor was also plentiful. Approximately 300 men were added to forces employed in motor assembling plants, while a slight increase was reported in iron and steel plants, wholesale hardware houses, drug and chemical establishments.

DEMANDS REPUBLICANS AID SEARCH FOR BONDS

Rep. Hull (Dem.) Calls on G. O. P. Leaders to Disclose Campaign Transactions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A demand that President Coolidge and other Republican leaders "throw the full powe ro ftheir co-operation" behind the attempt to uncover bond transactions involving the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada, was made today by Representative Hull of Tennessee, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, from November, 1921, to August, 1924.

Taking cognizance of a recent statement by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, as chairman of the Teapot Dome Committee, that it would be interesting to know whether any of the Continental Trading Co. bonds helped to reduce the Democratic Committee debt from $600,000 to $200,000 between 1920 and 1922, Hull denied that any funds had been received from that source.

Declaring that officials in charge of the Republican Committee "were at least intimately associated with those who have, and who had at the time, full knowledge of all phases of the Continental Trading Co. bond transactions," Hull said: "It is within their power to bring about a disclosure of the full facts." He then called upon President Coolidge and other party leaders to aid in the investigation of the bond transactions which grew out of the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

The Tennesseean, who has been advanced by friends as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said that "the Republican National Committee cannot afford to keep the Continental Trading Co. bonds, regardless of the circumstances under which it may now be claimed they were received."

The Teapot Dome committee has received evidence that of about $75,000 in Liberty bonds turned over by Harry F. Sinclair, head of the Wyoming Oil Reserve, to Will H. Hays, as a contribution to the Republican National Committee $26,000, at least, are bonds purchased with profits of the Continental company.

EX-CONVICT SAYS COUNTY OFFICERS ARE BOOTLEGGERS

Henry Ronsieck Asserts Two Are in the Business and a Third Supplies Protection.

MAKES STATEMENT TO PROSECUTOR

Marshal Geno of Florissant Declares His Life Was Threatened for Annoying Law Breakers.

Charges against three local officers in St. Louis County, connecting two of them with active bootlegging operations, and the third with protecting and encouraging such operations, were made to Prosecuting Attorney Mueller and Chief Deputy Sheriff Mark Dodd, in an all-afternoon questioning of two men yesterday.

The chief accuser was Henry Ronsiek, an acknowledged bootlegger, now in Clayton Jail on three felony charges, burglary in the second degree, assault to do great bodily harm, and operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. The other witness examined was Antoine Geno, elderly town marshal of Florissant.

Ronsiek served three years of a 10-year sentence in the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Chester, on conviction of participating in a $17,000 bank robbery at Highland, Ill. He was released last December, after doubt had been cast on the correctness of testimony connecting him with the crime. Previously he had served a term in the Missouri penitentiary for stealing an automobile.

Accuses Officers.

About 2 a. m. Jan. 27, Ronsiek was wounded by deputy constables calling in Anton Weidinger's saloon in Florissant. They charged that he entered the place to rob it. He was i na St. Louis hospital for several days before he was taken to the county jail.

Ronsiek included the matter of his shooting in a sworn statement to Mueller, charging that one local officer and the son of another such officer were instrumental in taking him to Weidinger's place, and that they suggested to him the theft of alcohol said to be stored there.

Ronsiek said that the local officer told him Weidinger had 10 five-gallon cans of alcohol stored in his saloon, and suggested that they go and get it. Ronsiek, who made a business of selling alcohol by the can, assented. He said the officer took him in his car, then suggested that they get the son of another officer. The three drove to Florissant. Ronsiek said, but the officer got out of the car before reaching the saloon, and the other man drove him to Weidinger's. Ronsiek said the driver opened the saloon door with a pass key, and told Ronsiek to go in and get the alcohol, while the driver was to act as lookout. Ronsiek went in, and the waiting Deputies fired on him, wounding him in the body and one arm. He fired his revolver once, without effect.

Thinks It Plot to Kill Him.

In his statement to Mueller, Ronsiek said he believed the men who took him to Weidinger's were parties to a plot to kill him, because he was selling alcohol in competition with officers who were engaged in the same business.

The affidavit made by Ronsiek related to another local officer. He said this man, after Ronsiek's recent release from prison, gave him $30, and told him to start in the bootlegging business, and as soon as he got on his feet to begin paying him. Ronsiek said the officer told him to do nothing about starting a still without consulting him. When he consulted the officer about a certain location for a still, he said the officer told him the location was not good, that the neighbors would "squawk," and if the place had been suitable, the officer himself would have started a still there.

Bootleg Competition.

Ronsiek in another part of his affidavit told of accompanying two local officers on a trip in which they delivered alcohol to customers.

He related, not under oath, that the same officers warned him not to operate in St. Louis County, and advised him to go into business on the East Side. He said he refused to heed their warning, and undersold them, getting $20 a can for alcohol such as they sold for $25. He related that once, when he was under arrest, the officers in charge of him opened the door of their automobile and told him that if he ran away they would fire shots in the air. He declined the opportunity to escape, fearing that the shots in the air might come dangerously near him.

Marshal Tells of Threats.

Marshal Geno of Florissant said that two local officers, whom he met in Clayton Jan. 24, invited him for a ride in their machine, and that they upbraided him for interfering with their liquor customers and their slot machine business. He said suggestions were made as to tying a stone to him and throwing him into a quarry pond, or into the Missouri River, but that the two eventually took him back to Clayton.

Prosecuting Attorney Mueller questioned the two officers about this matter, and Mueller said later that they admitted having taken Geno in their car, but said their talk and threats were not meant seriously. A Post-Dispatch reporter spoke by telephone to one of the officers, who refused to answer any questions, or to admit even that he had talked with Mueller about the matter.

Conan Doyle Answers Edison on Hereafter

Sir Arthur Says He Could Give 100 Cases to Refute Doubt, But Cites Only One.

In the following article, written for the Associated Press, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle takes issue with Thomas Edison's recent remark that he believes the chances are "50-50" for life after death. Sir Arthur has devoted years to the study of mediumship and spiritism, and has often engaged in discussions on the subject of the after life.

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE.

CROWBOROUGH, England, Feb. 18.—I opened my paper the other day and the first item which met my eyes was the pronouncement by Mr. Edison, the venerable inventor, that the question of survival was a 50-50 one and that the chances were equal whether mankind had a future or not.

What a bleak outlook for humanity if such an assertion were true, but it is not true, and we have the means of proving that it is not true.

Says He Has 100 Cases.

If Mr. Edison was really in touch with the evidence he would never have said a thing which will cast a shadow on many a heart and weaken many a spirit. He has, like so many honest thinkers, been repelled by those superficial and obvious flaws for which our movement is not really responsible. But all the same he is much to blame in lending the weight of his name to such a statement concerning a subject which he has obviously not examined. I could give him offhand a hundred cases within my own knowledge which would show that there is no 50-50 in the matter, but that one can safely claim to be a 100 per cent believer in the life to come.

I have just room to give one case for his consideration, and ask him, if he honestly faces it, whether it does not cut the ground from under his feet. I will use names, for I am, by nature, a downright person, and I have no use for stories which concern Mr. Blank or Mrs. X. This matter is too important for us to stand upon form and ceremony.

Youth Killed in Accident.

Some months ago the Hon. D. Duncombe, the young brother of the Earl of Feversham, was killed in a motor smash on the Great North road. His car, at 2 o'clock in the morning, ran into a lorry and his neck was broken.

Young Duncombe was a member of a little coterie of youths, all at the same tutor's, and all of them very keen on high-speed racing motors. My two boys, Denis and Malcolm, were of "the gang," as they called themselves.

Denis was very close with young Duncombe, and some weeks ago he felt that he might get into touch with him. The reason for his belief was that some strange physical phenomena—the movement of objects, etc.—had been observed in his room, and he imagined, rightly or wrongly, that they had a meaning.

Therefore, he went to consult Mrs. Barkel, a well-known medium at the Psychic College, in Holland Park. The rule of the college is that no name is given to the medium, so that until my son entered the room she knew nothing of her sitter.

Notes were taken by Denis as he listened, and they lie before me as I write. The medium falling into apparent trance, young Duncombe at once came through. He greeted Denis by name and referred one after another to all of the gang.

Gives His Own Nickname.

He gave his own nickname, and the nicknames of the others. This without any questioning or prompting. He then denied vehemently that he was asleep, as stated, when the accident occurred.

He described the accident minutely, drawing a diagram with the medium's hand, and he commented upon the evidence at the inquest.

He remarked upon a physical weakness, which in life had made dancing difficult, and said that he was quite free from that now. He referred to a new racing car which my son had bought, showed keen interest in it, and chaffed them about it. He mentioned that one of the gang, even when in evening dress, carried a small spanner in his pocket.

Telepathy Also Inexplicable.

Now there is a case for Mr. Edison's consideration. Collusion?—that is ruled out. To quote telepathy or the subconscious knowledge is long extended conversations is to explain by that which is itself inexplicable. These are the facts duly noted at the moment. It is one of a hundred cases, but, taking it alone, I claim that Mr. Edison's 50-50 vanishes into smoke and that my 100 per cent contention must hold the field so long as there is logic and sanity and clear perception in the world.

DEPLORES EXCLUSION OF VARE

Reed of Pennsylvania Calls on Both Parties to Protest.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Feb. 18.—Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, in an address here, tonight, called on both Republicans and Democrats of the State to unite in protesting against the "outrage" of denying a Senator his seat after he had been "elected by the people." (His reference is to Vare, excluded because of huge expenditures in his campaign).

"States whose total population is smaller than single counties of Pennsylvania for the first time in history have denied us full representation in the United States Senate," Reed said. "It is not a question of individual qualification—it is the fact that a certificate of election from the great State is no longer worth a seat in the Senate."

TORCHLIGHT PARADE OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR AL SMITH

By the Associated Press.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 18.—An old-time political rally with a torchlight parade, red fire and brass bands launched the "Al Smith-for-President" campaign in Pennsylvania tonight.

Senator Copeland of New York was the principal speaker at a banquet following the parade, which was attended by many persons from all parts of the county. Senator Copeland declared Gov. Smith was the outstanding candidate for the nomination.

Answering critics of Smith, he said:

"You hear he is wet and a nullifier. Gov. Smith believes that the eighteenth amendment was adopted to stop the sale of intoxicants, but that the Volstead law actually prohibits the sale of non-intoxicating liquors. We believe Congress should adopt a new law fixing the percentage of alcohol in beverages, getting a maximum, and that each state then should pass its own law.

"You hear he is a Catholic. It ill behoves the Democratic party to find fault with a man because of his religion. It was Thomas Jefferson who was the author of religious liberty in Virginia and it is the Jefferson policies in which we believe. Al Smith is an American first of all. If ever the time came when he had to make a decision between following his church or following his country he would follow the United States first, last and all the time."

CARLSTROM QUITS RACE FOR ILLINOIS GOVERNORSHIP

Throws Support to Emmerson; Otis F. Glenn Files Against Senator-Designate Smith.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Attorney-General Oscar Carlstrom tonight announced his withdrawal from the race for the Republican nomination for Governor, in favor of Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson and made known his intention of running for renomination as Attorney-General on the Lowden-Deneen-Emmerson State ticket.

Carlstrom's announcement was made personally after a conference with Emmerson and United States Senator Charles S. Deneen, who returned from Washington purposely to straighten out his political affairs for the primary campaign.

In his statement Carlstrom said he knew his Spanish-American and World War friends would know it was not for lack of courage to continue that he withdrew, but that it was solely to aid the State.

"I was fighting solely to drive Small and Smallism with all its rottenness out of the civic and political life of Illinois."

The Attorney-General's action leaves Emmerson the only candidate for the Republican nomination in opposition to Gov. Len Small, who is seeking his third term at the head of the Small-Thompson organization.

Former State Senator Otis F. Glenn of Murphysboro, Deneen man, filed notice today of his candidacy for the United States senatorship in opposition to Senator-designate Frank L. Smith of the Small-Thompson faction.

Hoover Ends Brief Vacation.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—The Miami Herald says in a story from its Key West correspondent that Herbert Hoover will not enter any State primary against a favorite son in any other State than Ohio, where he has already done so. The dispatch quotes Mark Sullivan, political writer who accompanied Hoover on a brief vacation, whom it represents as Hoover's campaign spokesman. The Secretary of Commerce tonight is on his way from Key West to New York, where on Tuesday he will address the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. Hoover will make no political speeches before the Kansas City convention, the Herald says.

WOMAN ADMITTED MURDER, SHE SAYS, TO SHIELD MOTHER

Tells Jury Evangelist Betrayed Secret Confession He Promised on Bible to Keep.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WENTWORTH, N. C., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Alma Petty Gatlin, testifying in her own defense, today told the jury, with 800 persons in the courtroom, her story of the killing of her father Smith T. Petty. She said that her mother, now dead, killed him, and told of her interview with the Rev. Thomas F. Pardue, whom she accused of spiritual betrayal, and how she tried to protect her mother by taking the crime upon herself.

She felt that her mother "might be in hell," she said, and that the best thing to do was to shield her. Evangelist Pardue, she insisted, wormed the story out of her and the first she knew that her secret was out was when Solicitor Allen Gwyn sent for her. Then, she told the jury, she realized that the minister, who had sworn with his Bible on his heart that her story would remain a secret with him, had betrayed her.

Petty's body was found last fall buried in the cellar of the family home at Reidsville after the Rev. Mr. Pardue had told the police of Mrs. Gatlin's story to him. Petty was a cotton mill supervisor.

Alma Gatlin's Story to Jury.

Alma Gatlin is on trial charged with murder and this is her story briefly:

The father's death occurred on Jan. 19, 1927, in the early morning, after a hideous night, in which the father, drunk and violent, had cursed and abused the family, threatened to kill them and defied them to put him in jail, saying he would get bond and come back and kill them.

Alma had beseeched her mother to let her call a policeman. This the mother refused, saying she always had kept the family secrets. Finally, when all but the mother and Woodrow Petty, her brother, 16 years old, had gone to work, she was washing her neck at the kitchen sink when she heard her father approaching her.

She turned to see him before her with an ice pick and a butcher knife. "He took a running lunge at me and seized me with one hand about the throat," she said.

"It's no use to wash your neck any more," she quoted him as saying, "for I am going to cut it off." She cried out, the girl said, and her mother came into the room. At the same time, Woodrow Petty came in with an ax. "Mother was calling on father, saying, 'Smith, don't hurt Alma; it's all my fault.' Woodrow had the ax poised. Mrs. Petty seized it from him and hit her husband on the back of the head.

Interview With Minister.

Mrs. Gatlin, testifying as to the alleged confession to the Rev. T. F. Pardue, said:

"It was in May, soon after Mother's day. I went to the Pardue meeting the night he preached on the 'Confession of Sins.' When I went up to the rostrum, I asked to speak to him. I was badly troubled and worried. We went into the choir loft.

"'You preached tonight on the confession of sins,' the girl testified she said to the minister. 'The impression I have now is that there is no hope for you if you die without confession.' Pardue said, 'Yes.'

"I then asked him, 'Is there but one unpardonable sin?' and he said, 'Yes, a sin against the Holy Ghost.'

"'What do you mean by that?' I asked.

"'Blasphemy of God's children,' he replied."

She then said the Baptist minister told her that the Bible says that no murderer shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven. At this point, Pardue showed interest, the witness said.

"Alma, why are you interested in murder?" she said he asked her. "You have not committed murder. have you?" She said she did not answer the question.

"But I decided then and there," she added, "that I would take this thing on me. I could not bear to think of my mother in hell, as she had not been able to confess, though she wanted to."

The girl then said: "He had his Bible over his heart when he assured me that he would 'keep anything between me and God.'

"It was then that I told him that I had murdered my father, and I asked him if there was any forgiveness. I also asked him if a person on the deathbed desired to make a confession and died with a desire to do so, was there any hope, and he said 'yes.'

"You have no idea how relieved I felt when I left the Tabernacle," the witness said.

Brother Corroborates Story.

Woodrow Petty corroborated his sister's testimony. When his father attacked her, he was in the basement splitting kindling, he said. Hearing the commotion, he ran upstairs, ax in hand, he said, and found his father trying to cut his sister's throat while his mother was trying to prevent it. His mother seized the ax, the boy testified, and struck his father on the head several times. Both Mrs. Gatlin and her brother told the jury their mother made them swear never to tell or she would kill herself.

ROBBER HITS GROCERY CLERK WITH REVOLVER; TAKES $308

Second Holdup Foiled When Employe Throws Butcher Knife at Armed Intruder

An armed Negro entered a Kroger store at 808 Trendley avenue, East St. Louis, at about 7 o'clock last evening, struck a clerk in the mouth with his revolver, took $238 from the cash register, $65 from Mrs. Vera Tyler, 510 South Sixth street, and $10 from George Shirmer, 1101 Tudor avenue, both customers, and escaped.

A Negro, differently described, fled from the Kratmeyer & Rochelle Grocery Co., 1100 Baker avenue, at 6:45 p. m., when a clerk threw a butcher knife at him after the intruder had drawn a revolver in an attempted holdup.

MRS. BERTRAND RUSSELL GIVES LECTURE IN CHURCH

Speaks at Madison, Wis., After Being Barred From Wisconsin U.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 18.—Barred from the University of Wisconsin campus, the Madison Labor Temple and the State Capitol building because of her views on companionate marriage, Mrs. Bertrand Russell, wife of the British philosopher, gave an address last night in the Parish House of the Unitarian Church.

Mrs. Russell confined her address to the subject of women's place in modern society and spoke only briefly of companionate marriage.

She advocated dissemination of birth control information among women of the working class.

IDLE CONVICTS PLAY MARBLES TO KILL TIME

Wisconsin Warden Tells Congressmen Pennsylvania Prisons Lack Industries.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Five hundred convicts in the Western Pennsylvania State Penitentiary at Pittsburg, shoot marbles for exercise because there is no prison industry, Warden Oscar Lee of the Wisconsin State Prison testified today before the House Labor Committee.

"In the Eastern State Penitentiary of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia the idle convicts shoot craps and play football for exercise," he asserted, "and there actually are holdups in the prison."

In opposing the Hawes-Cooper bill, which would bar prison-made goods from interstate commerce unless so labeled, he charged that there was idleness among convicts of the state penitentiaries of New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania which have industries that manufacture goods only for State institutions' use.

Representative Manlove (Rep.) Missouri, presented letters protesting against the bill from Gov. Sam A. Baker of that State and A. H. Harrison, director of the Missouri Department of Penal Institutions.

Pennsylvania Warden Denies Story of Holdups and Gambling.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 18.—Capt. Herbert Smith, warden of the Eastern State Penitentiary, said that the statement before the House Labor Committee today by Warden Lee of the Wisconsin State Prison that holdups have occurred in the prison here is "pure hokum."

Referring to football and crap shooting in the penitentiary alleged by Warden Lee, Smith said that football had been played in the penitentiary yard, but only under strict supervision.

"Ridiculous," Say Officers of the Western Penitentiary.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 18.—Prisoners in the Western Penitentiary here are too busy working to think of marble shooting, prison officers said today, declaring the statement by Oscar Lee before the House Labor Committee was "ridiculous."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge received her formal interlocutory decree of divorce today from Sebastian S. Kreske, millionaire chain store operator.

The decree, handed down in the State Supreme Court, was based on a jury verdict returned recently finding Kresge guilty of infidelity with Miss Gladys Adelle Fish of Natick, Mass. It will be made final in three months.

THREE GIRLS INJURED WHEN TRUCK HITS CAR

Driver Abandons Machine After Collision—Arrested at His Home.

A motor truck ran into the rear of a Jefferson street car discharging passengers at Jefferson and Cass avenues at 6:30 o'clock last night and injured three young women, two of them seriously, as they were alighting. The truck, a converted Buick touring car, careened and hit the car again near the front and then was abandoned by its driver.

Miss Mary Wilson, 19 years old, of 2727 Thomas street, was knocked down and suffered a broken nose and contusions of the body. Her sister, Clara, 17, was run over by the truck and suffered several fractured ribs and possible internal injuries.

Flying glass cut Miss Mildred Funke, 17, of 2402 Cass avenue, about the face. She was treated by a neighborhood physician. The sisters were taken to City Hospital.

About an hour later police arrested George Tiffany, 42, an automobile mechanic, whose name appeared on the truck, at his home, 4648 San Francisco avenue. His face was cut and at City Hospital physicians said he had been drinking but was not intoxicated.

Tiffany said he recalled colliding with the street car but not hitting the young woman. He waited 10 minutes, he said, and when no policemen came decided to go home.

Tiffany admitted he had had several drinks of whisky.

"I was on my way home after doing some shopping downtown," he related. "The street car stopped suddenly and I collided with it."

CHIEF TOMMY IN MOURNING

Seminole, His Wife Dead, Spending Four Days in Wilds.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—Tony Tommy, first Seminole chieftain to accept the white man, tonight had turned to the fastnesses of the Everglades to carry on the tradition of his forebears in a four-day mourning period for his wife, the former Edna John, who died yesterday.

When Chief Tony and Edna were married last year, thousands came to look on at the ceremony, the first of a Seminole to be witnessed by a white man, and Chief Tony welcomed them. But when Edna died, her funeral was held ahead of schedule, that no curious persons might mar the solemnity of the tribe's grief. The princess was buried in a casket instead of in the Indian manner, wrapped in blankets and saw grass cords, on a pole frame deep in the swamps. But there the concession to white men's customs ended. Besides the body the casket contained the more prized of her personal trinkets and a plentiful supply of food for her spirit.

SUNDAY SAYS TO DO LITTLE THINGS WELL

Admonishes Washington U. Students Not to Make Cold Storage Plants of Brains.

"Don't make a cold storage plant out of your brain," was Billy Sunday's admonition to students in an address at Washington University yesterday under auspices of the university Y. M. C. A. He was introduced by W. H. Danforth.

He said there were a lot of young people whose existence counted nowhere but in the census, and a lot of others who looked all right and sounded all right, but were only "a reprint of the one that's had their ears last."

"The one that succeeds is not the one that waits for something spectacular to show his ability, but the one who does well the thing that lies next at hand," he urged.

Common Things in Uncommon Way.

"Learn to do a common thing in an uncommon way. A fortune awaits the man who painted the sign at Harper's Ferry. It bears only the two words, but it was done 40 years ago, and the paint has neither cracked nor faded. Paint manufacturers have searched for him for years. Chances are, if they find him, he will be a man of common ability who can do one thing well.

"Be careful of little things. Every week 176,000 letters accumulate at the dead letter office because somebody didn't have sense enough to lick a stamp or put on the right address. A dozen men are kept busy in the St. Louis Postoffice rewrapping packages. The world is full of people that somebody has to follow and tinker up after all the time.

Keep From Diluting Character.

"Don't touch work with the ends of your fingers. Don's 'stall,' the world will squeeze the water out of your stock. Be careful of your company; you are a part of all you've met. Don't allow your character to be diluted.

"Be kind. Kindness is an instinct; politeness is an art; camouflage, apple-sauce. If you give it to others in the neck, they'll give it to you in the neck, and then you can thank God you're not a giraffe or an ostrich."

Several thousand women attended his sermon for women only at the Coliseum last night. He deprecated birth control and illegal operations, marriage for reform, women who educated their daughters only for marriage and that for money. He gave statistics on "white slavery" and discussed what—and when—to tell adolescent boys and girls.

Says He Must Preach Plainly.

"It has simply come to this, that somebody has to preach plainly, and that somebody seems to be me," he remarked. "I preached like this in a town in Ohio once, and the next day I heard of eight or ten engagements that had been broken."

"Don't worry if you don't marry," he commiserated. "There are worse things in the world than being an old maid, and one of them is marrying the wrong man. Some of the noblest women in the world have been old maids—simply 'ladies in waiting.'

"And say, girls, don't simper and look silly when you speak of love. There's nothing silly about it, even if some folks are silly because they are in love.

"Don't let your actions advertise, 'Man wanted quick.' That's not the way to get a real man. You might get something with pantaloons on, but some of the specimens you see going around wearing trousers ought to be arrested for disguising themselves as men."

A delegation is to drive from Sparta, Ill., to hear today's sermons, which are for everybody. Collections for the evangelist begin today, starting off the last week of the seven-week revival. Earlier collections have covered expenses.

U. S. Defeats Proposal To Outlaw Intervention

conference. He welcomed the present occasion to explain in public the situation of his country which had attracted the curiosity of all America. No matter what the present situation might be in Nicaragua, he said, his country faced it in the belief that it would lead to a sure and brilliant future.

To the expressions of opinion that the work of the Congress was incomplete without arriving at a decision on intervention were added similar remarks by leaders of the delegations from Uruguay, Panama, Chile, Costa Rica and Brazil.

Victor Maurtua, of Peru, whose report on the subject of national independence had raised the storm in committee by proposing that independence be subordinated to the observance of rights of other states, came to the support of the position taken by Hughes.

Maurtua said that he desired to declare "emphatically and categorically" that "never, even for a moment," was there a difference between the principles he defended and those the others upheld. They were unable to reach a unanimous agreement on the matter simply as a matter of organical codification of law. No one ever had maintained the principle of sovereignty of independent Republics with more heat than he had, he insisted.

Hisses From the Gallery.

Dr. Guerrero read his resolution after the hour of corridor discussion and a debate followed between delegations favoring adoption of the committee report as the only basis of agreement and those insisting on a vote on the resolution. Dr. Faule Ferandes of Brazil would not risk division of the congress by a resolution vote, terming that measure an ideal toward which the union must slowly work. Dr. Castro Beeche of Costa Rica supported this stand. The crowded gallery hissed his remarks and applauded Dr. Guerrero when he rose to press for a vote on his measure.

Finally the tide of feeling swung away from the demand for expression of the principle of absolute nonintervention and Hughes clinched it with a speech, considered by its auditors one of the most significant of his career.

At his conclusion, Dr. Guerrero, who said he took cognizance of the fact that his resolution would be without value without unanimous support, agreed to accept the recommendation that it not be submitted to a vote.

Union Convention; Armed Aggression; Arbitration.

The earlier approval of the Pan-American Union convention was aided when the new chairman of the Argentine delegation said that, under expressed instructions from his Government, his delegation would sign the convention, with a reservation that it regretted that it did not contain the economic principles for which Pueyrredon had fought. The Congress received this announcement with great applause. The convention was adopted unanimously in the exact form approved by the committee.

Armed aggression in all of its phases was outlawed by the unanimous vote of the plenary session when its approval was given to the Mexican resolution for abolition of all wars of aggression.

Dr. Guerrero of Salvador proposed the substitution of "all aggression" for the word "war," inasmuch as "there are aggressions which do not constitute war." Dr. Gonzalez Roa of Mexico, author of the resolution, agreed to the change and the resolution was carried.

Compulsory Arbitration.

Suggestions of Hughes and others were put into the form of a report indorsing compulsory arbitration by the committee of Public International Law.

The report calls for the summoning of an "arbitration conciliation conference" in Washington within the next year to draw up a collective Pan-American arbitration convention. Delegates to the conference will be jurists with plenipotentiary powers, authorized to sign whatever pact the conference may work out.

Happy Day for Hughes.

Hughes, telling his Latin-American colleagues of his satisfaction in witnessing the happy culmination of efforts to advance the cause of peace, said, "I count this one of the happiest days of my life."

He alluded to the spirit of cooperation within the subcommittee which approved compulsory arbitration. He said the general realization was that limited time made impossible the conclusion of an arbitration convention at the present Congress.

This conference, he pointed out, had agreed upon definite principles and had reached a unanimous accord on the necessity for arbitration of disputes between the nations of the world.

"These are our principles, established by unanimous support of the delegations," Hughes said. "Before long we shall take practical steps to carry them into execution.

The first article of the subcommittee report is a flat, unconditional statement that the American republics consider compulsory arbitration. Such unqualified indorsement of a bare principle, even if, as is the case, it is modified in the second article providing for the conference to discuss exceptions, is considered here as the greatest and most important modification of the established policies of Chile and the United States, nations regarded by the delegates as the traditional champions of conditional optional arbitration.

Arbitration Resolution.

The resolution relating to arbitration, as introduced by Raul Fernandez, president of the Brazilian delegation, follows:

"Whereas, it is the desire of the American republics to give expression to their condemnation of war as an instrument of national policy in their mutual relations; and

"Whereas, the American republics are most anxious to contribute in every possible way to the development of international arrangements for the pacific settlement of international disputes:

"The sixth international conference of American states resolves:

"That the republics of America adopt obligatory arbitration as the means which they will employ for the pacific solution of their international differences of a juridical nature.

"That the republics of America will meet in Washington within a period of one year in a conference of conciliation and arbitration to draw up a convention for the realization of this principle with the minimum expectations which they consider indispensible to safeguard the independence and the sovereignty of states, as well as its exercise in matters within their domestic jurisdiction, and also excluding matters involving the interests or relating to the action of a state not a party to the convention.

"That the Governments of the American republics will send for this purpose plenipotentitaries with instructions regarding the maximum and the minimum which they would accept with regard to obligatory arbitral jurisdiction.

"That the convention or conventions of conciliation and arbitration which they succeed in drawing up should leave open a protocol of progressive arbitration which will permit the development of this beneficent institution to the greatest possible extent.

"That the convention or conventions which may be drawn up upon signature, should be submitted immediately to the respective Governments for their ratification in the shortest possible time."

Maritime Pact Approved.

The conference today rushed all reports and recommendations in an effort to finish on schedule Monday.

The plenary session adopted the following committee recomendations:

A convention regulating all formalities surrounding treaties. Salvador announced it would not sign this, while Bolivia and Mexico introduced reservations.

"A convention on maritime neutrality drafted by the Committee on International Law. The United States made reservations to a clause forbidding the arming of merchantmen for defense in time of war and carrying the penalty of loss of their status as neutrals."

A draft convention on the rights of asylum of foreigners, with reservation again made by the United States.

A convention on the rights of aliens. Again the United States made reservation to the proposal forbidding the subjection of aliens to military service.

Plenary meetings also will be held tomorrow. The final session Monday is expected to be of a formal nature allowing various delegates to express opinions of the work of the conference as a whole.

Most of the United States delegates have made plans to leave Havana Tuesday morning. Hughes, Dr. Leo S. Rowe and several technical members will not depart until Wednesday night.

Bolivian Minister Congratulated on Victory for His Country.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The Bolivian Minister in Washington, Dr. Diez De Medina, has received a cablegram from the Bolivian delegation to the Pan-American conference at Havana, congratulating him upon adoption there of the declaration embodying Bolivia's contention that she should be permitted to receive arms in war time through neutral territory.

Bolivia has no seaport and Dr. Medina has taken an active interest in promulgating the thesis that nations so situated should be given a right of transit by their neighbors for war materials. The Conference Committee on Public International Law at Havana yesterday approved an amendment to the maritime neutrality treaty imposing that obligation on the signatory nations.

The Bolivian delegation in its message of congratulations said that adoption of the amendment means that the thesis sustained by Minister Medina now becomes an American doctrine.

Electrocuted at Radio Station.

ELGIN, Ill., Feb. 18.—Ely Jordl, 21 years old, was electrocuted last night when he touched a wire in contact accidentally in a transmitting station of the radio station WGN and WLIB. Jordi was employed by the Elgin Watch Co.

You can buy protection like this in other ways

...but think what you'll have to pay!

YOU can buy a roof of ordinary shingles and get weather protection. You can buy an "under-roof" of special insulating material and get protection against heat and cold. But you pay the cost of two separate materials, plus the cost of two separate applications.

Why not buy insulation and weather protection at one and the same time, in the Carey Cork-Insulated Shingle?

Broad investigations by the Roofing Fellowship at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, Pittsburgh, Pa., show that the new Carey Cork-Insulated Shingle, laid in the usual manner, three plies, is equivalent in insulating value to practically a half-inch of standard fibre insulating material.

While you are enjoying this Carey shingle's "inside" advantages, your friends will be admiring its "outside" appearance. This shingle is 50% thicker—it gives a deep, artistic shadow-line. And it comes in such beautiful shades: Silver-Green, Indian Sage Red, Blue-Black and the rich, new blend of Autumnal tints. Stop in and have us show them to you.

TWO CARRIERS OF MENINGITIS GERMS IN CITY WORKHOUSE

Not Ill Themselves; Discovery Follows Death of One Prisoner and Illness of Another.

Health Department physicians, who have found two prisoners at city workhouse who are carriers of spinal meningitis germs although not ill themselves, have examined the 175 prisoners in the one cellhouse under investigation without discovering additional traces of the disease.

Recently one prisoner in this house died of spinal meningitis and another is suffering from it now. Announcement was made yesterday of the finding of the second unwitting germ carrier, John Broyles. He has been in contact with fellow prisoners in the workhouse quarry. Herbert Powell, the first one found, handled food served to cellmates. Both men are isolated for observation.

POSTOFFICE CALLS FOR BIDS FOR MEXICO-U. S. AIR MAIL

Projected Dallas - Laredo Route Last Link With Connection at the Border.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The Postoffice Department today announced that bids on a new air mail route from New Orleans to Laredo, Tex., would be asked for immediately and that the Texas air transport had been instructed to begin service at a moment's notice between Dallas, San Antonio and Laredo in order to complete the air route from Mexico City to the northern United States.

The announcement followed the receipt of a telegram from Cosme Hinojosa, Director General of posts of Mexico, that the Mexican Government was prepared to inaugurate service between Mexico City and Nuevo Laredo, across the border from Laredo, Tex.

The New Orleans-Laredo route will represent a substantial saving in time over the Dallas-Chicago route in the dispatch of mail between New York and the Mexican border. A part of the new route extending from New York to Atlanta will be in operation April 1.

WANTED a distributor

A well-rated manufacturer of a household gas and electric utility, established for 17 years and operating nationally, is seeking a high-grade distributor connection in St. Louis territory.

We offer for distribution in St. Louis a line retailing at $50.00 up and second to none in point of completeness, quality and favorable price.

The man we want must be thoroughly responsible, both financially and otherwise. Investment required to cover suitable stock of merchandise and operating expenses, will be in the neighborhood of $10,000.00.

This man must be a real salesman, a good organizer, as he must organize a sales force, form dealer connections, exercise close supervision in the field and in general act as our district representative in the St. Louis territory.

Some existing sales organization, now representing one or more manufacturers might find this line a valuable addition. However, our proposition possesses sufficient size and possibilities to warrant and support well a sales organization handling our line exclusively.

Our products will lend themselves to direct sale or sale through dealers and a large volume can be secured through either method or a combination of the two.

We invite correspondence from any individual or organization with vision and resources ample to firmly establish a line of merit in a territory possessing broad possibilities.

To this firm or individual we offer the co-operation of a high-grade manufacturer with unquestioned standing—a line of products which in quality, price, performance and completeness is unique—and an opportunity to build a substantial, dignified business on a firm foundation and with possibilities for growth limited only by you or your organization.

If you are qualified and will submit your qualifications to us an early interview will be arranged. Any information you may give will be held in strictest confidence.

DENOUNCES BORAH FOR BREAD SUIT FORGERY CHARGE

Abram F. Myers Says Senator Is 'Villainously Unfair' in Making Accusations Over Letter.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Abram F. Myers, Federal Trade Commissioner, took a fling today at Senators who have been assailing the course he pursued, as an Assistant Attorney General, in the bread merger case.

In a formal statement, supplementing one he issued last night after Federal Judge Soper of Baltimore, who handed the consent decree in the case, had testified before a Senate subcommittee, Myers reiterated that he inadvertently had placed in a Senate Committee record a copy of a letter he had written to Soper, but had not sent. The judge, he said, received a revised letter which gave a different version of Myers' part in the litigation.

Miss Alice Giesler, secretary to Myers, assumed full responsibility today for sending to the Senate a carbon copy of the unsent letter to Judge Soper which brought forth the assertion from Senator Borah of Idaho yesterday that "lying and forgery" were apparent.

Miss Giesler said that she had failed to destroy carbons of the letter which was supplemented, and had inadvertently substituted the wrong copy to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"Senator Borah's characterization of my letter to Judge Soper in the record in the bread trust investigation as 'lying forgery' was so villainously unfair that I do not think I should wait until the hearing on Monday to disclose the fact," Commissioner Myers said.

"Every important act of the Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commission during the last several years has been the subject of political attack on Capitol Hill, and I think the time has come to shed light on the metheds employed in some of these investigations. The very great accomplishment of the Department of Justice in the baking case has been sneered at and belittled and months and now years have been devoted to discredit on what even Judge Soper admits is a false issue.

"I expect to practice law for many more years than I hold my present office, and I do not intend to submit passively to abuse from individual Senators."

WISCONSIN FARM PRODUCTS TRAIN IN ST. LOUIS TOMORROW

In the afternoon they will make inspection trips to the Ralston Purina Mills and the Anheuser-Busch plant.

U. S. CONSUL OUT IN PROTEST

Official in Argentina Says Service Is Being Squeezed Out.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18.—After 15 years of service, Tracy Lay, United States Consul General here, has resigned and the Department of State has accepted his resignation. Lay, who comes from Gadsden, Ala., explained his resignation as due to his desire for freedom "to protest against our present foreign service adjustment."

Instead of a single, well-organized foreign service, he declared the United States has two foreign services, controlled by two government departments. The consular service, constituting the economic machinery of the Department of State, he contended, was being "squeezed out" through absorption of its economic functions by the foreign service machinery of the Department of Commerce. This, he added, places the Department of Commerce in control of "the substance of diplomacy," and leaves the Department of State with social representation only.

WHITE MAN HELD POLICY ON SLAIN NEGRO'S LIFE

Denies Knowledge of Killing; Paid Premium to Provide Burial Fund, He Says.

A white storekeeper in whose favor a Negro's life had been insured for $500, was arrested for questioning yesterday after the Negro had been murdered.

The Negro, Claude Dean, 52 years old, a janitor, 2351A Clark avenue, was found with his skull crushed in an alley near his home Thursday night, and died Friday. At the inquest yesterday a boy testified he had seen a light-skinned Negro strike Dean with an ax. A Coroner's verdict of homicide at the hands of an unknown man was returned.

The storekeeper told police he had taken out the policy on Dean's life a year and a half ago. He considered Dean, then employed by him, to be "old and friendless," and intended to use the insurance money to give Dean decent burial in the event he died. Dean's wife knew nothing of the insurance until two weeks ago, when an insurance collector asked her if she knew the white man was paying the premiums and was the beneficiary.

The storekeeper denied knowledge of the murder.

Increase for German Metal Workers.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—The official arbitrator in the metal workers dispute in central Germany, which has been in progress for some time, has decided that wages should be increased by five pfennings (about 1¼ cents), an hour. Under the decision the employers and workers must agree by Monday whether they are prepared to abide by this award. The employers previously had announced that unless a settlement was reached they would declare a general lockout beginning next week.

the lighting-circuit receiver that has revolutionized radio

SUCH a "wonder box" as Radiola 17 a few years ago would have been thought beyond the range of human achievement.

It is the result of 26 years of radio research culminating in the work of the 200 electrical and acoustical engineers in the radio laboratories of the Radio Corporation of America and its associated companies—General Electric and Westinghouse.

To more than 100,000 homes it has brought a new conception of radio simplicity and perfection.

Radiola 17 is as easily operated as an electric fan—a touch of the finger brings in the fine programs from the great broadcasting stations, with amazing fidelity and realism. It is ruggedly built of specially tested materials, insuring long life and dependability, and is self-contained in a fine mahogany cabinet.

Radiola 17 is the most popular Radiola ever offered because it meets these exacting tests of a fine radio instrument:

Sensitivity — ability to pick up broadcasting stations, near and far, over the entire broadcast range.

Selectivity—ability to select the program from one station to the exclusion of all others.

Tone Fidelity—ability to reproduce faithfully — realistically — music and voice as transmitted from the broadcasting station.

Simplicity — inexpensive operation as simple as an electric lamp or electric fan, at the touch of the finger.

Dependability — long life, with a minimum of upkeep—resulting from precision manufacture with the finest materials under competent engineering direction.

DETECTIVE JOHNSON BETTER AFTER BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS

Officer Shot in Pistol Fight Will Have Second Operation If Condition Is Favorable.

The condition of Detective Ralph Johnson, 31 years old, who was shot Thursday night in a pistol fight between police and two felony suspects, was reported improved at City Hospital late yesterday.

Johnson has received two blood transfusions, two pints of blood having been transferred to his veins from his wife, Margaret, and from Detective Fred H. Camp, one of ten brother officers selected for transfusion from among a score of volunteers. Johnson underwent an operation at the hospital Thursday night and, in the event of further improvement in his condition, he will undergo a second operation to further repair damage done by the bullet, which entered the lower abdomen and punctured the bladder.

Charles Supplee, 23 years old, who shot Johnson, was killed and his brother, Frank, 26, an ex-convict, and two women bystanders were wounded in the exchange of shots on the third floor of a rooming house at 2826 Chouteau avenue. Johnson and other detectives sought to arrest the Supplee brothers for Kansas authorities on charges of stealing the automobile of a University of Kansas professor after kidnaping him and of stealing the automobile and revolver of the town Marshal at Osage City, Kan.

A Coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday at an inquest in the killing of Charles Supplee.

GOV. SMITH HAS NO WISH TO FLY WITH LINDBERGH

"I'll Go Along With Him on Anything While He Remains on Ground," Executive Says.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 18.—"No flying for me," was Gov. Smith's reply today to a report that he might have an opportunity to take a short spin with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when the trans-Atlantic flier comes to Albany on Feb. 29 for a legislative aviation hearing.

The Governor was informed that such an opportunity might be offered to him if the War Department places a large plane at the Colonel's disposal. "The application will be received and placed on file," said the executive, "but no flying for me. I'll go along with Col. Lindbergh on anything but flying—I'll stay with him while he remains on the ground."

FIGHT FOR POST OF MRS. BLAIR SEEMS LIKELY

Cut and Dried Program of Democratic "Party Leaders" for State Convention May Hit Snag.

MRS. FLANDERS STILL IN RACE

Row Over Committee Woman's Place Won't Hinder Reed's Indorsement—Delegates Elected.

BY CURTIS A. BETTS.

Carefully laid plans of Democratic organization leaders for a cut-and-dried program to be carried out by the Democratic State Convention in St. Joseph Feb. 28 without hitch or friction are threatened by supporters of Mrs. Ella Jean Flanders of Excelsior Springs, who is seeking election to succeed Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Joplin as National Committeewoman from Missouri.

An announcement that the "party leaders" had agreed upon Mrs. Charles B. Faris, wife of Federal Judge Faris of St. Louis, for the place on the National Committee, to which Mrs. Blair is not seeking re-election, and also had agreed upon the men and women to be delegates-at-large from Missouri to the National Convention, has aroused protests from the western part of the State, and the information now is that the fight will be carried to the State convention.

Mrs. Flanders in the Race.

Mrs. Blair several days ago sent a letter to a newspaper which had published the "decision" of the party leaders, demanding that it give the names of the "leaders," and Mrs. Flanders, who, it was reported, had withdrawn, has notified St. Louis friends that she still is in the race and that she will remain in until she is either elected or defeated by vote of the State convention.

The prospect of this fight is the first indication that the convention will be othe rthan a mere ratification of the program decided upon by Senator Reed's supporters and approved by the party organization generally in the interest of a harmony, which they hope will make possible the carrying of Missouri in November.

The attitude of Democracy generally in the State, at least insofar as it is reflected by the organization, is to elect a Reed delegation to the national convention by a State convention which contains few delegates who have not been Reed supporters. In the counties the anti-Reed groups have maintained a silence and in most counties have taken the position that this is a Reed year in Missouri and that they will neither interfere nor take part.

While Mrs. Faris is regarded as a supporter of Senator Reed and probably is the choice of those close to the Senator, Mrs. Flanders is not opposed by Reed followers in the western part of the State. While she was active in the anti-Reed movement in 1922, when she was a member of the State Committee, her activities against Reed ceased after the primary and she had no part in the "Rid-us-of-Reed" organization in the general election campaign.

Delegates Chosen.

Delegations to the State convention were elected in all counties in the State yesterday afternoon and in the St. Louis wards last night. They were Reed delegations generally and it is not expected that any opposition will develop in the convention to the adoption of instruction that the Missouri delegation shall vote for Reed throughout the balloting, or until Reed releases it.

The district delegates, of whom there will be 32, two from each Congressional District, will be elected on the day of the State convention, the delegates from each district meeting separately for that purpose. Their selections are subject to the approval of the State convention.

The convention as a whole will elect the delegates-at-large, four men and four women each with one-half vote in the national convention.

The organization slate for delegates-at-large, which seemingly will not meet opposition, contains the names of Edward J. White of St. Louis, general solicitor of the Missouri Pacific Railroad; Bennett C. Clark of St. Louis, son of the late Champ Clark; Charles M. Howell of Kansas City, head of the reciprocal insurance interests in the state and a close friend of Reed; Dr. Arthur W. Nelson of Bunceton, nominee for Governor in 1924; Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner of St. Louis, wife of former Gov. Gardner; Mrs. Thelma R. Campbell of Kirksville, member of the Democratic State Committee; Mrs. R. J. Curly of Kansas City and Mrs. Granville A. Richart of Blackburn, Saline County.

Device Being Developed by Radio Corporation of America, Says Engineer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—A radio picture receiver which can be plugged into any receiving set and intercept both visual and audible entertainment is being developed by the Radio Corporation of America, group of manufacturers, Dr. A. N. Goldsmith, chief broadcast engineer of the corporation, announces.

Engineering laboratories of the General Electric Co. and the Western House Electric and Manufacturing Co., he said, are concentrating to a large extent on the development of suitable appartus for this purpose as a resu. of the public's reaction to the photo-radio experiment carried out on Jan. 27 between the WEAF transmitter at Belmore, Long Island, and the receiver situated in Manhattan.

ASKS COURT TO SET ASIDE RECEIVERSHIP FEE OF $2750

Harry J. Klingler, a produce dealer, filed a motion yesterday in Circuit Judge Mix's court to set aside a fee award of $2750 in favor of Alex R. A. Garesche for service by him as receiver of three parcels of realty. Klingler owns the realty for which Garesche was appointed receiver May 24, 1927, pending suit of Klingler's former wife, Norma, to have her interest in the property determined.

Recently Mrs. Klingler obtained a divorce from Klingler, who settled the receivership action by paying $40,000 to her for her interest. Thereafter the receiver claimed a fee of $3000, contending he had done a large amount of work in the case and collected receipts totaling $12,447.54.

Included in the realty was the White Building, 6217 Easton ... nue, and other property at 6317 Easton and 4527 McMillan avenue. It is contended by Klingler that the award made by Judge Mix to the receiver was "excessive and unjustly large." His counsel said that $600 would have been an ample allowance.

INDIA VOTES FOR BOYCOTT OF ALL-BRITISH COMMISSION

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 18.—The ...dian Legislative Assembly today adopted a motion urging a boycott of the Simon Commission which is now in India to investigate the progress of Indi n self-government within the past 10 years.

The motion was introduced by Lajpat Rai and was adopted by the narrow margin of 68 votes to 62. The commission, which is headed by Sir John Simon, has no Indians on it, a fact which has led to much hostility among Indian Nationalists. When the Simon Commission first arrived in India there were demonstrations and disorders against it in some of the larger cities, but these were quickly placed under control.

While speaking at Doncaster, Eng., concerning the Indian antagonistic attitude toward the commission Lord Birkenhead, Secretary of State for India, recently said:

"I wish to make it as plain as I possibly can that either with the assistance of the Indian Legislature or without their assistance this commission will carry its task to a conclusion."

STEWART SEEKS TO PROTECT SINCLAIR, ATTORNEY SAYS

Wickersham Argues Head of Indiana Standard Should Be Returned to Senate's Custody.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Urging the Court to return Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, to the custody of the Senate, George W. Wickersham, special Government counsel, sought today to have the temporary writ of habeas corpus by which Stewart secured his freedom set aside.

In a 50-page brief submitted to Justice Bailey in the District of Columbia Supreme Court Wickersham contended that the Senate investigation into the disposition of $3,000,000 in Liberty Bonds purchased by the extinct Continental Trading Co., Ltd., with profits from the purchase and resale of oil was entirely legal. That Stewart was not arrested as a punishment but to coerce him to answer questions as to Continental Liberty Bonds and whether he had discussed the deal with Harry F. Sinclair, who the Government charges gave $230,000 to Albert B. Fall as Secretary of Interior who granted him a lease to the Teapot Dome naval oil lands.

"He was protecting Sinclair," Wickersham's brief says, "which was no business of his and it was apparent from his attitude toward the question that if compelled to answer he would have had to disclose information from Sinclair which might be of great importance in enabling the committee to obtain the information required by the resolution under which it was acting. Whatever excuse Sinclair might have to his answering such questions, the petitioner did not plead any privilege recognized by law to protect him from answering the question."

The Government brief contended the proceeding was legislative and not judicial as contended by Stewart and that in refusing to answer questions the oil magnate defied part of the requirement of the subpoena under which he appeared.

Stewart's plea that the inquiry was into private affairs of an individual and therfore beyond the power of the Senate was answered by a review of the oil scandals that followed the Continental deal which said:

"Can there be anything private in the transactions between the representatives of two great oil companies which results in the securing of a profit of $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 to a paper corporation created for that purpose, which profit is then invested in Government bonds, some of which demonstrably were used to corrupt a former Cabinet officer of the United States; others apparently to pay the debts of great political parties . . . and the petitioner risks the consequences of contempt of the Senate rather than tell what he knows of the disposition of the bonds."

Blackmer's Son Called to Testify at Oil Hearing Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — Unable to obtain the testimony of H. M. Blackmer, one of the moving spirits in the organization of the Continental Trading Co. Ltd. of Canada, the Senate Teapot Dome Committee decided today to subpena his son Myron F. Blackmer, of Denver, an officer of the Mid-West Refining Co. He is expected to testify at the reopening of the hearing next Thursday. The younger Blackmer will be asked what he knows of any Liberty bond transactions or other financial affairs of his father, who is a voluntary exile in France evading a subpena to testify in the oil conspiracy case.

The elder Blackmer negotiated with the late A. E. Humphrey of Denver, for the purchase of the oil which the Continental Co. bought at $1.50 and resold at $1.75 a barrel on the same day to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. and the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. at a net profit of $3,080,000, which profits were converted into Liberty bonds.

Harold W. Kenwell, secretary of the Hyva Corporation, a private company organized by Harry F. Sinclair within his own family, is commanded to produce books and documents showing the receipts by the Hyva Corporation of Liberty bonds between 1920 and 1925, and the disposition of such bonds.

Graham Youngs, treasurer of Blair & Co., a private New York banking house, has been directed to bring all books or accounts showing dealings in 3 1-2 per cent Liberty bonds by either the Hyva Corporation or Sinclair since Nov. 21, 1921.

Robert Rae, New York agent of the Dominion Bank of Canada, also has been summoned to produce books of accounts and correspondence showing any transactions in Liberty bonds with the Continental Trading Co. and its president, H. S. Osler, from 1921 to 1925 inclusive.

DECLARES CREDITORS PAID 50 PER CENT COMMISSION

Trustee of Bankrupt Milk Producers' Concern Wants Restitution of Overcharge.

A report of the trustee of the bankrupt Illinois-Missouri Co-Operative Milk Producers' Association, submitted to Referee Walter Grant at East St. Louis, Friday, sets forth that creditors were charged 50 per cent commission for collection of their claims, and requests Grant to secure restitution of all commissions above a "legal fee." Incorporated in the report is a resolution in meeting passed by the St. Louis Pure Milk Producers' Association, the membership of which is made up of Illinois dairyman, who were stockholders in the bankrupt company.

The resolution states that the representatives of the St. Louis Credit Men's Association accepted power of attorney on claims from creditors of the bankrupt company, and advised the creditors that only 15 per cent commission would be charged for collecting the dividend declared from the sale of assets and outstanding accounts.

The Illinois-Missouri Co-Operative Milk Producers' Association was adjudicated a bankrupt in December, 1924 and the final report of the trustee was made last December. Claims amounted to $130,000 and creditors received only 10 per cent. There were 1500 claimants and 2500 stockholders, most of them dairy farmers, who lost $300,000 invested in stock.

GENTRY TO SEEK $5,000,000 BOND IN INSURANCE SUIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 18.—Attorney-General N. T. Gentry will ask the Federal District Court to require stock fire insurance companies in Missouri to file an additional surety bond of $5,000,000 to guarantee State refunds, when a hearing is held in Kansas City March 10, in the 148 Federal injunction suits filed by the companies in a new attack on the Missouri 10 per cent rate reduction order. The hearing was originally set for Feb. 21.

Approximately $10,000,000 in premium refunds is due Missouri policy holders under decision of the U. S. Supreme Court sustaining the reduction order issued by the State Insurance Department on Nov. 15, 1922. The companies posted a $1,000,000 surety bond by order of the State courts, when the litigation started more than five year sago. The new move in the Federal courts may delay final action indefinitely. The amount of disputed premiums is piling up at the rate of about $21,000,000 a year.

NEW MOVE FOR 7-CENT FARE ON NEW YORK SUBWAY LINE

Interborough Company Obtains Writ Suspending Action in State Court.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Interborough Rapid Transit Co. moved last night to keep its fight for a 7-cent fare in the Federal courts. The company obtained from United States Judge Winslow a stay, returnable next Tuesday, ordering the city and the Transit Commission to suspend prosecution of their suits in the State Supreme Court to maintain the present nickel fare.

The city obtained three temporary restraining orders in Supreme Court last Tuesday to prevent a fare increase on the Interborough's subway and elevated lines. They are returnable next Monday.

Judge Winslow's stay was interpreted by James L. Quackenbush, general counsel for the Interborough, as in no sense an injunction forbidding interference with the collection of a 7-cent fare, but merely an order preparing the way to decide whether the Federal courts will retain the jurisdiction he said they acquired when the company filed its suit Tuesday.

SENATOR REED STARTS ON SPEAKING TOUR

To Make Addresses in Dozen Western States, Opening Tomorrow in Dallas, Tex.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Although Senator Reed has not formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, he will talk politics on his western trip, on which he started today and which will take him into a dozen states west of the Mississippi. His first speech will be delivered Monday night at Dallas, Tex.

"My present speaking engagements have been made at the insistent demand of many friends in each locality," he said just before leaving Washington, "and are the result of the invitations of long standing. I shall discuss those national issues which are conceived to be paramount, particularly stressing the necessity of driving corruption from high public office.

"In the coming campaign the Democratic party will demand an honest administration of government; the swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribe-mongers and bribe-takers; the equalization of the burden of taxation; the dismissal from the ranks of the Federal Government of an army of spies and informers, and the liberation of honest business from oppressive interferences by governmental agencies."

Thus far Senator Reed has made no plans to go into North Dakota, where on March 20 he and Gov. Smith are to be voted for in the first contested primary of the year. Across the line in South Dakota, where some local preference meetings were held this week, the New York governor captured some delegates to the district conventions, although most of the precincts voted no preferences.

Reed to Enter California Presidential Primary.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Definite decision to enter Senator James A. Reed of Missouri in the California primaries in May by placing delegates favoring him on the ballot was announced today by William K. Hughes of St. Louis, who arrived here to perfect an organization. The Al Smith Democratic leaders, headed by former United States Senator James D. Phelan, met today and outlined plans for selecting men who will comprise the Smith ticket at the presidential primary. Senator Phelan was a supporter of William G. McAdoo at the last presidential election. A third delegation in prospect will come from persons in the Democratic party who are opposed to both Reed and Smith.

LA GUARDIA ASKS WILLIS AND CURTIS ABOUT PROHIBITION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Representative La Guardia (Rep.) New York, is taking the advice of Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, and is asking presidential aspirants some pertinent questions about prohibition.

La Guardia made public letters he had sent Senators Willis and Curtis, both presidential candidates.

Outlining the difficulties of prohibition enforcement and estimating that adequate enforcement would require the employment of at least 100,000 Federal agents, the New York wet asked them:

"Will you enforce prohibition equally and uniformly in all of the states? As you are opposed to local option for states as to alcoholic content, I assume, of course, that you will insist upon equal enforcement by Federal forces in all of the states.

"Whether or not you would favorably and vigorously enforce the prohibition regardless of the number of men that it requires and the cost?

"If, after employing 100,000 men and spending $250,000,000 a year or more, you would realize that the law cannot be enforced and would not be enforced, would you then, after a fair trial, officially so state and recommend an amendment to the law?"

"I am certain," he added, "that you will see the relevancy of this inquiry in the face of your declared stand on the matter of prohibition."

JASPER COUNTY STILL ANTI-REED; OTHERS FAVOR HIM

While Nearly All Conventions Indorse Candidacy, Carthage Meeting Withholds Approval.

THREE COUNTIES DECLARE FOR HAY

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair and Several Others Decline to Go as Delegates to St. Joseph, Feb. 28.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Feb. 18.—Jasper County, the scene of the 1920 Democratic State Convention which read United States Senator Reed out of the Democratic party and refused to elect him a delegate to the National Convention, was reconcilable today when the Democrats in almost every other county in the state indorsed Reed's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. It refused to instruct delegates for him or to approve his candidacy.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Joplin, Democratic National Committeewoman from Missouri, and vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, led the fight on Reed and prevented his indorsement, notwithstanding a determined effort on the part of supporters of State Senator A. L. McCawley, a candidate for the nomination for the Governorship, to restore harmony by urging a resolution approving Reed's candidacy.

The Jasper County convention was willing to indorse McCawley and did so, but it refused to follow the advice of his supporters that an indorsement of Reed would be an aid to McCawley. The only concession to Reed was a recommendation to the district convention that it elect A. W. Thurman of Joplin, a strong Reed supporter, as a delegate to the National Convention.

Lawyer Aids Mrs. Blair.

Mrs. Blair, who has opposed Reed since 1920, and who has been opposed by Reed, was assisted in her fight here today by Allen McReynolds, a Carthage lawyer, whose anti-Reed speech in the Jasper County convention in Webb City in 1920 was taken as the guide in almost every County in the State in denouncing Reed in that campaign.

Although the Reed indorsement was refused, Mrs. Blair and several others who were elected delegates to the State convention in St. Joseph resigned from the delegation, announcing they knew the State convention would send to the National convention a delegation pledged to vote for Reed, and that they would not sit in a convention which would take that action.

It had been expected the Jasper County convention would indorse the candidacy of Charles M. Hay for the United States Senate, but in the fight over Reed, Hay was lost sight of, and his name did not appear in the resolutions.

Except for the action in Jasper County and a few other counties, where there were no indorsements of candidates, rural Missouri in its Democratic county conventions completely reversed its 1920 attitude toward Senator Reed. Then every county except two adopted resolutions denouncing Reed. Today almost every county adopted resolutions indorsing him.

As a result of the county conventions, is is certain the State convention in St. Joseph Feb. 28, will elect a delegation to the national convention in Houston, June 26, instructed to "vote for Reed first, last and all the time."

Three Counties Indorse Hay.

The candidacy of Charles M. Hay for the nomination for United States Senator was indorsed by Callaway, Clay and Daviess counties. James A. Collett was indorsed for the Senatorial nomination in his home county, Charlton. Charles A. Lee was indorsed for the nomination for the Governorship in Phelps County, and Francis M. Wilson was approved for the same nomination in Grundy County.

In Buchanan County, where recently bitterness was aroused by Reed's refusal to approve a movement designed to bring former Judge R. E. Culver into the Senatorial race against Hay, there was little outward sign of disturbance and Reed was indorsed. In Clinton County there was a resolution asking Culver to reconsider his decision not to be a candidate.

Candidates for nomination for various State offices were given votes of approval by the conventions in several counties.

REJECT VORONOFF TREATMENT

Britans Decide Against Method of Rejuvenating Livestock.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A committee of experts appointed by the board of agriculture today issued an adverse report on Dr. Serge Voronoff's gland treatment of livestock. The report admits that the claim possibly is justified that the effect of the treatment was rejuvenation of aged and decrepit male sheep and similar animals, but considers the evidence was not based on critical experimentation and, therefore, the data given fails to warrant an estimated of economic value.

EAST ST. LOUIS FEDERAL COURT BONDS UNDER INQUIRY

New One Required for Saloon Man on Ground W. E. Tevebaugh Made False Affidavit.

A motion to require a new bond was granted by Federal Judge Wham in the Federal Court at East St. Louis yesterday on representation by District Attorney Baker that William E. Tevebaugh, professional bondsman, had made a false affidavit regarding his ownership of property listed as security.

Baker said that at the time the bond was signed, the property was held by Tevebaugh's wife, who since then had transferred it to him by warranty deed. Baker said issuance of a warrant charging perjury would depend on the outcome of inquiry into other bonds signed by Tevebaugh.

The principal of the bond, amounting to $3000, is Paul Slack, East St. Louis saloonkeeper, who recently was arrested on a liquor charge. A charge of conspiracy to extort funds is pending in the Federal Court against Tevebaugh in connection with the alleged collection of $25 for protection from Federal raids.

A similar action was allowed by the court against Ben Shatzman, as surety for two bootleggers. Shatzman, a wholesale grocer of East St. Louis, was adjudicated a bankrupt Friday. Bench warrants were issued for the three defendants.

LISTERINE FIRM WINS SUIT

Houston Concern Found Guilty of Infringing on Trademark.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 18.—Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson here today held the Listerated Co. of Houston guilty of infringing on the trademark of the Lambert Pharmacal Co., of St. Louis, manufacturers of Listerine.

Judge Hutcheson ordered the books of the Houston concern audited and all profits they show to be paid to the St. Louis concern. He enjoined the Houston firm from further manufacture of products under the term "Listerated" and ordered labels bearing that name be destroyed.

MOST BRILLIANT COLORS IN CINERARIA EXHIBIT

500 Plants in Chromatic Riot at Shaw's Garden Shown With Subtly Shaded Orchids.

The Cineraria Show will open today in the north wing of the Palm House, or main conservatory, at Shaw's Garden, with the Orchid Show, more resplendent than ever, still occupying the Floral Display House.

A marked contrast is provided by the subtly shaded orchids and the bright cinerarias, which are probably the most brilliantly colored flowers seen in St. Louis. About 500 plants are displayed, in a chromatic riot of blues, reds, purples and white.

Unusual luxuriance of the orchids, since they were removed from city conditions to eight special orchid houses in the 1600-acre extension garden at Gray's Summit, permits continuation of the Orchid Show for an unusual period. It will continue until the end of this month.

Many fine plants were brought in last week from the extension garden. The delicate blending of orchid shades is strikingly illustrated by a new exhibit of the cattleya trianea, or Tulipan, frequently seen in florists' shops, showing the almost imperceptible gradations from virtually pure white to a deep mauve or light purple.

5 PCT. INCREASE IN U. S. WATERPOWER DEVELOPMENT

Total Now 12,296,000—Gain Ascribed to Public Utility Power Plants.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Water power development in the United States increased 575,000 horse-power, or 5 per cent in 1927, there being a total of 12,296,000 horse-power Jan. 1, 1928, the Geological Survey discloses in a report showing that the increase was in plants of public utility power companies.

The report shows that the total amount of potential water power available 90 per cent of the time is 38,110,000 horse-power, with 56,166,000 horse-power available 50 per cent of the time.

If it were feasible to develop all the water power resources in this country, 85,000,000 horse-power could be produced, the report continues.

California ranks first in the developed water power with 1,993,000 horse-power; New York is second with 1,779,000, and Washington is third with 707,000. Washington leads in potential water power with 11,200,000 available 50 per cent of the time. California is second with 6,700,000, Oregon is third with 5,900,000, and New York is fourth with 5,000,000. Most of the undeveloped power in New York is on the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers.

EX-CONSTABLE ACCUSED AS CUSTODIAN OF BET

Warrant for Floyd Bush Issued After Policeman Lays Wager on Horse.

A warrant charging former Constable Floyd Bush with being custodian of a bet, a felony punishable by a prison term or a fine, was issued yesterday by Miss Florence Weigle, Assistant Circuit Attorney.

Bush was arrested in the cigar store of "Buck" Keenan, 15 North Seventh street, Friday, after a policeman had reported placing a bet on a horse race with Bush. Keenan, also in the store, was arrested, but no warrant was issued against him.

This was the first bet placed by police to obtain evidence since the Missouri Supreme Court two weeks ago upheld this method of trapping bookmakers. The Court's decision was given in a case in which a St. Louis bookmaker was fined $1500 for being custodian of a bet.

3 CANDIDATES SEEK TO BE OHIO'S SECOND CHOICE

Lowden, Curtis and Watson Pledging Willis Delegates to G. O. P. National Convention.

MOVE TO KEEP THEM FROM HOOVER

Commerce Secretary Won't Get One Because He Entered Presidential Primary, Willis' Aid Says.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 18.—Three more presidential candidates were today brought into the fight between Senator Frank B. Willis and Secretary of Commerce Hoover for control of the Ohio delegation to the Republican National Convention. Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas and Senator James E. Watson of Indiana each authorized Willis candidates for delegates to name them as second choice, Willis headquarters announced.

Charles A. Jones, private secretary to Senator Willis, said this was "absolutely" in line with the Senator's stand from the beginning to permit his delegates to pledge their votes on second choice to any other candidate they may choose.

The Break With Hoover.

He declared that Hoover's managers had asked that all Willis delegates pledge their second choice to Hoover, but that "no power on earth could have compelled some of the Willis delegates to make Hoover their second choice."

Neither Lowden, Watson or Curtis will enter the preferential primary, Jones said.

The fight between Hoover and Willis has completely eliminated the possibility of Hoover's ever getting support in the convention from any of the Willis delegates, Jones declared. He said that Hoover undoubtedly would have received support of the Willis delegates some time during the convention had he not chosen to make the fight in Ohio.

Brings Up League Issue.

That the League of Nations may be brought forward by Willis as one of the dominant issues of his campaign against Hoover to win Ohio's delegation to the national convention is indicated by a statement given out by the Senator after conferring with his campaign managers.

"The people have a right to know definitely what is the attitude of those asking their suffrages upon doctrines that are regarded as fundamental in the policy of the party," Willis' statement says. "The people of the country have twice spoken most decisively with reference to the League of Nations. There are some candidates that are evidently in favor of the League of Nations. At any rate it is urged on their behalf by their friends in various States that if nominated and elected they will proceed immediately to take our country into the League of Nations."

WOMAN FIGHTS OFF THIEF UNTIL POLICEMAN ARRIVES

Sergeant Hops Off Passing Street Car to Go to Rescue of Telephone Operator.

When a Negro tried to snatch a purse from Miss Dorothy Peterson when she was waiting for a street car at Eighteenth and Market streets yesterday morning, she clung to it and fought so fiercely that the thief failed to notice the approach of a policeman and was captured.

Miss Peterson, 23 years old, of 4034 Blaine avenue, a telephone operator, had stepped into a doorway at 2 South Eighteenth street, to avoid the wind when the Negro followed, seized her purse and struck her with his fist. Dealing him blow for blow, she clung to her purse and called for help. Police Sergeant Thomas Connelley, riding past on a Market street car, saw the scuffle and alighting ran to her assistance. A crowd then gathered demanding that the prisoner be given "a good beating" but the officer dissuaded them.

The Negro said he was Henry Revol, 28, of 1221 Chestnut street. A warrant charging assault to rob was issued for him.

TRADE BOARD SAYS STATES NO LONGER CAN ADEQUATELY CONTROL UTILITIES

Growth of Holding Company Pyramids Have Caused Power Concerns to Outdistance Laws.

FLATLY AGAINST 'REPRODUCTION NEW'

Recommends Inquiry to Find Fair Basis of Valuation and Legislation to Fix It.

By CHARLES G. ROSS.
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
Reprinted from Yesterday's Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—"The growth of holding company pyramids, interstate connections, and interstate movements of power all mark points at which the industry (the electric power industry) has outgrown and outdistanced state regulation."

The quotations is not from a speech by Senator Walsh of Montana in favor of an investigation of the electric power industry; it is from a report by none other than the Federal Trade Commission, which is headed by that hard-boiled conservative, William E. Humphrey.

The report has just been transmitted to the Senate. It is the second of two reports made by the trade commission in response to the Norris resolution of 1925, which called for a study of the industry with special reference to the holdings of the General Electric Co.

In the first report made about a year ago the Commission declared that the excessive pyramiding of holding companies was primarily a device to obtain high speculative profits.

State Regulation Inadequate.

In finding that the industry can no longer be adequately regulated by state bodies, the Trade Commission goes directly counter to one of the main arguments used against the proposed Walsh investigation.

The Commission says that the sale of power across State lines has definitely raised "two problems of interstate regulations."

One, created by the sale of the power in interstate commerce and the other by the fact that the large holding companies exercise financial control over operating managements in different states.

"With the rise of the holding company with its consolidations under unified control operating companies in two or more states sometimes contiguous, sometimes widely separated," says the Commission, "the trend toward interstate development in the industry is marked. Such developments, however are almost entirely beyond the scope of state regulation.

"Controlling interest in desirable properties purchased at figures far in excess of the capitalized earnings of the operating companies at the time of purchase, or of their probable earnings for years to come, may be consolidated and exploited in the formation of pyramidal holding companies whose securities are sold to the investing public which may buy them under the assumption that state regulation of electric power companies' property safeguards investments in holding company stocks and bonds.

State Commissions Powerless.

"In this connection it is argued by holding company interests that state control of operating companies affords effective control over holding company finances. Obviously, this is only partially true. State commissions apparently have no power to regulate the issuance of securities in mergers of holding companies.

"The financing of the two is distinct and different, consequently the fact that the underlying properties are under state regulation offers no assurance or guaranty of a reasonable return upon money invested in holding company stocks and bonds. Unless the holding company's financing has been done on a most conservative basis, the state commissions responsibility to maintain fair rates to the consumer may result later in inability on the part of the holding company to pay anticipated interest or dividends upon its outstanding securities."

The Commission finds that "unquestionably" there is the possibility of abuse in the relationships among companies under single control. For example: "Excessive fees charged to operating expenses may be made a convenient method of padding accounts to conceal profits. Thus the holding company may become the direct recipient of profits that, if accurately shown, would warrant rate reductions. In the case of any excessive fees, that may be capitalized in the rate base, the controlling interests benefit in two ways, first, directly through excessive prices for services rendered, and second, indirectly thorugh inflation of the rate base upon which public utility commissions will in the future allow a return.

Speculation by Holding Companies.

"Thus, with respect to excessive fees which are capitalized, the greater the profit taken by the central controlling group for present financing and construction services, the greater the profit that may be expected from future rates."

Notice is taken of protests, both within and without the industry, against "the growing recurrence of speculation" in electric power securities, Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light Co., is quoted as having said in 1926:

"I know of no more reprehensible abuse than for speculators to buy up companies for high prices, put them into a holding company and then by trading upon the credulity of the investing public relative to claimed increases in economy, to unload the holding company's securities at advanced prices and thus get completely out from under before the bubble is punctured leaving the unfortunate final investor to face an angry consumer."

Criticisms of holding companies, the Commission says, have come from the Investment Bankers' Association for failure to give full information in their bond circulars and annual reports regarding their financial structure.

"Likewise," the report continues, "from State public utility commissions there are coming warnings against speculation in the utility field. Recently the Oregon Commission issued a warning that speculative activities are likely to prove a serious blow to legitimate customer ownership plans."

The report deals at length with the subject of valuation of utilities for rate-making purposes. Utility commissions of the states, it says, "are advancing more strongly than ever before their objections to the economics of the decision in the case of Smyth vs. Ames, and in particular to reproduction cost less depreciation with the rate base for depreciation as the rate base for fiscatory.

O'Fallon Case Cited.

"In the St. Louis and O'Fallon Railway case, the Interstate Commerce Commission likewise has definitely stated its conclusion that he use of reproduction at current prices as the controlling factor in the rate base is improper and unsound.

"In the solution of this problem of valuation, for rate purposes it would seem that the adoption of legislation by Congress respecting interstate commerce, and by state legislatures respecting intrastate commerce, embodying the best thought of specialists studying the question from the broadest, most impartial viewpoint of justice to both consumers and utility owner, can do much to bring the legal questions and the economic principles involved before the courts in their proper relationships. Progress comes normally by trial and error. The old rule of Smyth vs. Ames has been tried for nearly 30 years. It should now give way to the trial of other means of attaining economic justice in regulatory effort."

HAWES GIVES COOLIDGE FLOOD CONTROL VIEWS

Urges Equality for Civilian Engineers With Army Men on Any Commission Named.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Senator Hawes of Missouri called at the White House this morning, and strongly urged President Coolidge to give equal representation to civil engineers and army engineers on any commission that may be appointed to supervise flood control measures on the Mississippi River. Emerging, after a visit of about 40 minutes, Senator Hawes said he had got the impression that the President was sympathetic to that view.

Hawes criticised the efforts of Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, to exclude civil engineers from active participation in flood control supervision, declaring that Gen. Jadwin was not only injuring prospects for flood control measures, but was disrupting relations between civil and army engineers.

Civilian Engineers Capable.

"Every state has a university from which it graduates civil engineers," he said upon leaving the White House. "In addition there are many special colleges producing men of ability in this line of work. The engineers are organized, have a high code of ethics and are represented by state and municipal as well as national organizations, to discuss the bigger problems of engineering.

"The solution of the flood problem will entail an expenditure of from $500,000,000 to $775,000,000. It is the greatest undertaking, in the matter of money and engineering, that our Government has ever engaged in.

"I think it is not proper for me to discuss what the President had to say, but I believe he is entirely sympathetic with the idea suggested to him of having equal representation upon any commission that may be created to handle flood control.

"Gen. Jadwin is making a serious mistake, not only so far as flood control is concerned, but in disrupting the relations between the army engineer and civilian engineer, by trying to relegate the Mississippi River Commission upon which are some civilian engineers, to a mere advisory capacity. I think the final bill that will be written will give the civilian engineer his proper place in deciding this great problem.

"The object is too great to be looked at through the spectacles of any one man. We want the best talent, and some diversity of opinion in the general plan. The administrative work can be done by the army engineers. I am hopeful of a successful compromise that will bring what we want; enough money to take care of the flood situation, and a program for future navigation."

SENATORS TO SEE CONDITIONS IN COAL STRIKE REGION

Couzens Refuses to Take Part in "Hippodrome," as He Terms Pennsylvania Visit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee will leave Tuesday for Pittsburg, Pa., to make personal inspection of conditions in the Pennsylvania coal strike region.

This was announced today by Chairman Watson after a meeting of the entire committee. The subcommittee, which is headed by Senator Gooding (Rep.), Idaho, is to take no testimony, but merely to observe conditions in the strike district and report to the full committee.

Besides Gooding, those on the subcommittee are Senators Metcalf (Rhode Island) and Pine (Oklahoma), Republicans, and Wheeler (Mont.) and Wagner (New York), Democrats.

Senator Pine was selected after Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, had declined to serve, declaring that the visit of the committee would simply "be a hippodrome" in which he refused to participate.

ALLEGED DRIVER OF MURDER CAR TAKEN IN CINCINNATI

Julian Blanke's Story of Huke Killing Confirmed by Another Witness.

Julian Blanke, chauffeur alleged to have driven the car in which Albert Huke, former taxicab driver, was killed last Monday night, was brought back to St. Louis from Cincinnati by Detective Wanders last night. Blanke was arrested on a warrant charging first degree murder.

Blanke frankly told of being an eye-witness to the murder of Huke, Wanders said, but denied he had operated the car. William Bruley and Georke Huck, saloon keepers held for the killing, drove Huke and Thomas Lowe, an ironworker, from the saloon at 4127 Easton avenue with revolvers, he said. They ordered Huke and Lowe into an automobile, he added, and four shots were fired in the rear seat, where Bruley sat with Huke. At that point, Blanke said, he jumped from behind the steering wheel of the stationary car and fled. Lowe escaped from Huck and also fled.

Blanke's story corroborates in virtually every detail the story told police by Lowe, after Huke's body had been found in a passageway at 4027 Maffitt avenue.

To Investigate Arizona Dry Chief.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Commissioner Doran has ordered an investigation into complaints of the administration of prohibition in Arizona. He has directed G. E. Ellsworth, field director, to take charge of the Arizona headquarters and make a thorough inquiry into complaints against the administration of John Udall, director for Arizona.

DOROTHY DWAN WINS $7500

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Feb. 18.—Dorothy Dwan, movie star, wife of Larry Semon, a former Sedalia girl, who was Dorothy Ilgenfritz previous to her marriage and entry into filmland, today was awarded a verdict of $7500 against her father, Melvin Ilgenfritz, of Houston, Tex., a former Sedalia merchant, by a jury in Circuit Court.

The judgment was on a note for the amount given that had been made out to the daughter in 1911 by the defendant when the now Dorothy Dwan was six years old. It bore no interest and the reason it did not become outlawed was that the statute of limitations does not apply as to a minor, the plaintiff contended. The plaintiff in the presentation of the suits contended that the note was given when her father and mother separated as a settlement in full. No payments had been made on the note. The mother of Dorothy Dwan, Mrs. Nancy Dorothy Smith of Los Angeles, was here for the trial.

AMERICAN ATTACKED IN NICE

Mystery Surrounds Case as Victim Refuses to Make Charges.

Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

NICE, Feb. 18.—Mystery surrounds the circumstances of a night attack on an American, Amende Gordon, 32 years old, of New York, particularly as the victim refuses to make charges against his assailants.

The attack occured in one of the principal streets in Nice and was not reported to the police. They discovered it when investigating the finding of a stained hat in the street. Gordon said he was hit on the head from behind with a stick by two strangers. His aggressors, he said, tried to wrench rings from his fingers but only succeeded in getting away with his wallet containing a few dollars. The commissary of the police stated Gordon's story is unlikely and is keeping on with his own investigation.

PLAYWRIGHT ORDERED FREED

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 18.—On instructions of the British Consul General in Shanghai, Deputy Attorney General W. D. Carter today ordered the release of William Preston Gibson, playwright, of Washington, D. C., who was arrested Monday on his arrival from the Orient.

R. L. Maitland, counsel for Gibson, has been advised that the charge against the American has been withdrawn. Gibson had been in custody of a provincial police constable since Canadian immigration authorities refused to interfere in the case. No particulars of the charge were received but Gibson had been informed that he was detained on a charge of forgery committed in Shanghai.

FOSTER MAKES STIR ON STAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Hearings of a sub-committee of the American Bar Association on legislation to promote peace between capital and labor closed today with a mild demonstration by a delegation headed by William Z. Foster, former head of the Workers' (cofmunist) party of America.

Foster was waved from the witness stand after he had climaxed a demand to address the session, rather than submit to a question and answer interview, with the charge that the committee in a three-day session "heard nothing but propaganda."

Foster said he was fundamentally opposed to any contract between capital and labor.

While Chairman Julius Henry Cohen was explaining that the committee would consider the testimony and recommend some course of action at the Bar Association convention in Seattle next July, he was interrupted by Harriet Silverman, who described herself as secretary of the Workers' Health Bureau. She said she wished to protest against the treatment accorded to Foster.

PROPERLY LEAVENED FOODS ARE EASILY DIGESTED

— state eminent authorities on the subject of children's food.

Mothers of bygone days were forced to sit idly by and allow their children to grow up in a haphazard way, trusting to fate that they keep well and develop into sturdy men and women. But such is not the case today.

Science has made an exhaustive study of child life and has determined that correctly balanced diets of easily digested foods play an important part in the raising of children. It has also discovered that properly leavened foods are the easiest to digest. Experiments have proven that fretful, puny, backward children can be changed into happy, robust, youngsters through right feeding.

Many mothers now realize that, but are under the impression that scientific feeding is complicated and difficult. The truth of the matter is, it is the simplest and easiest thing in the world.

One of the very first steps is the selection of baking powder that insures proper leavening action. Because without properly leavened foods all of the charts and feeding systems ever invented are worthless.

Calumet Baking Powder has proven, millions of times, that it provides the leavening force absolutely essential in the making of wholesome bakings.

The next step, is a thorough knowledge regarding children's foods. That may be easily acquired by sending for a very comprehensive book written by eminent food authorities entitled "Your Children's Food." It tells about The Backward Child, Precious Salts, Vitamines, Feeding the Child, The School Child, Food as a Preventive Medicine, etc., and is an invaluable guide in avoiding the errors of improper feeding. Lebrix and Costes To Make Cross-Country Cruise.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The French inter-continental flyers, Joseph Lebrix and Dieudonne Costes, have announced they would hop off Feb. 25 for a flight to the Pacific Coast. Stops will be made at Chicago and Cheyenne, Wyo., with San Francisco as the western terminus of the trans-continental flight. The flyers plan to sail from the California port to Tokio and said they might fly from Japan to France.

The announcement was made through Clarke Pease, president of the Hispana Suiza Co. of America, official representative of the flyers in New York. He said the trip across the continent would be made in as short a time as possible, since the flyers desired to sail from San Francisco not later than March 15.

OLD-TIME PLAINSMAN MARRIES AGAIN AT 64

Pawnee Frank, Frontiersman, Now Runs Print Shop in St. Louis.

Pawnee Frank who, with his twirling lariat, six-shooters and Indian yells, has been a source of constant delight to children in the neighborhood of his home, 808 Madison street, was married Thursday to Mrs. Stella Madison.

The old plainsman, who is 64 years old, became lonesome after the death of his Indian wife six months ago, and has told friends that, when the "right woman" came along he would "hitch double" again. Mrs. Madison is 41. Pawnee Frank's seldom-used family name is Wilmarth.

With relics of the days of the old West hanging on the walls of his small print shop beneath his home, Pawnee Frank is the center of attraction of children going to and from school, as they pass in front. Running his small hand press, the old plainsman goes methodically about his work while the boys and girls look from his Indian costumes, bow and arrows, old muskets, cowboy paraphernalia and ball-and-cap pistols on the walls, back to the quaint figure at the press and back again to the relics.

The old plainsman, who is one-quarter Indian, was raised among various tribles, from which he picked up their languages. Because of this, he was chosen to serve as interpreter, when only 12 years, with troops of United States soldiers who were going to join Gen. Custer's command of cavalry when Custer's soldiers were wiped out in Custer's Last Fight, after they had gone into an Indian ambuscade.

"Soon after the massacre, an old Indian brave I knew named Yellow Nose told me he thought a bullet from his rifle had killed 'Yellow Hair,' as they called Gen. Custer," Pawnee Frank said. "Others of the Indians said they had been told by Sitting Bull, who was in command of most of them, not to shoot 'Yellow Hair,' but to take him captive.

"Of the men who participated in any way in Custer's last fight, there were only two others besides myself who are still living. Both are considerably older than I am. I hear from them sometimes and they tell me what they are doing."

Pawnee's Frank's hair was cut for the first time just before his former wife died. Previously he roled its long strands into a large ball, which he wore beneath the high crown of his cowboy hat when he went out. He came to St. Louis to "settle down" 18 years ago, after he had spent a number of years as a pony rider with the circus of the late William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill).

FERDINAND STEINDEL, BROTHER OF ST. LOUISAN, KILLS HIMSELF

Widely Known Chicago Musician Leaps From Seven-Story Window in Hotel.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—When two men representing themselves as city detectives went to his hotel room at 4 a. m. today and demanded payment of a $75 check, Ferdinand Steindel, widely known musician, leaped to death seven floors below in a snow-filled street. A verdict of suicide was returned by Coroner's jury.

The police, who think the alleged detectives were blackmailers, reported Steindel spent all of Thursday drinking in a downtown cafe. At the end of the session he wrote a check for the $75 bill handed him by the bartender. Yesterday a man who said he was from the cafe telephoned that the bank had denied the check and that Steindel would be killed unless he made the amount good. Three times more the man telephoned and was assured by Mrs. Steindel that she would pay the amount at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Steindel, 38 years old, was a nephew of Bruno Steindel, noted 'cellist, and a brother of H. Max Steindel, a St. Louis 'cellist. He had been a soloist at times with the Chicago and St. Louis Symphony Orchestras and led an orchestra in Mexico City for two years. At other times he led orchestras in numerous places of amusement.

STEADY TO LOWER PRICES FOR HOGS

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

Hogs	100,250	92,244	73,073

Horses and mules	2,263	2,850	2,111
	130,089	115,645	102,523

Under increased receipts in cattle the market broke on steers and cow stuff here this week, steers sharply lower, with best kinds showing the bir end of the decline. The increased receipts were most apparent in steer cattle and sharp breaks at other markets around the circuit were also noted. Other classes of cattle sold about steady with the exception of a 25c decline on real calves at the week's close. In addition to lower prices, the quality this week was of rather poor description and few weighty steers or those with finish were included among arrivals. One consignment of steers that averaged 1312 pounds brought $14.35 early in the session, this price holding good all the week's highest sale. On yearling steers the figure was much lower, stopping at $13.90, a bulk of all native steers was ganght at $10 to $13. Among the week's features was a string of Oklahoma fed steers that classed as the best in this line to be offered here in some time. The highest paid was $13.35, which carried down to $13, $12.60, $12.50 and on down to $9.50 for the less desirable kinds. Prices for the week averaged 50c to 75c. The offering of yearling steer and heifer stock was hardly up to recent weeks, either in quality or volume. The limited supply aided salesmen in holding prices to a steady basis; little or no change recorded on any class. Top for mixed attained the $12.75 mark, with straight heifers selling up to $12.25 in sizeable lots. Bulk of sales in this department moved in a spread of $9 to $12.15. Several cars of Kansas offerings cashed in a spread of $10 to $11.40.

Twenty-five cents was considered as the average break in beef cow prices here, although extremes were quoted 40c lower. Canner and cutter cows varied from 10c to 15c off to near steady in spots. One prime beef cow sold at $12.00 for top while bulk of sales registered at $7.00 to $9.00. Cutter cows sold mostly at $6.00 to $6.50, some plain kinds going as low as $5.75 toward the latter part of the week. Canners varied from $5.00 to $5.75, bulk at $5.00 to $5.50. Bulls sold on a strong basis throughout the week and while tops were not indicative of any material advance the bulk averaged somewhat higher than the previous week. Beef bulls reached $10.00 in a few instances while majority sold from $8.00 to $9.00. Bologna bulls bulked at $7.50 to $8.50, plainer kinds ranged from $7.00 down, according to weight and fat. Meager supplies of stocker and feeder steers this week resulted in a proportionately small quiuo to country feedlots. Supplies were hardly sufficient to justify any change in existing quotations and the general trend of prices indicated by those changing hands was steady. A few feeders cashed in a spread of $11.00 to $11.85 with 979-lb steer weights varied from $7.50 to $10.50 largely. Cows sold mostly from $8.50 to $7.50, with some attention to trade in this class. Veal calves maintained a relatively high selling basis the bast week and for three consecutive days out of the six, top calves held to $17.00. A break of 50c in the closing deals was the total decline from the previous week's finals for top calves. First cuts in proportion sold from $15.00 to $14.00, second cuts $11.00 to $13.00 and blainer calves downward to $6.00. Kannies broke 50c to $1.00 for the week, sales on the close at $5.50 to $6.50.

Hog Run Again Heavy.

With country roads in better condition receipts of swine the past week were again heavy after being light the middle of last week. The supply the week just closed approximated more than 100,000. Eleven markets also received liberal offerings. The market, for the most part, was a lower affair, but an upward trend Tuesday and today virtually erased losses of previous days. Packers were practically the only buyers for weighty offerings and, although they were bearish, they cleared the market well each day. Due to the bearish pressure exerted on those weights as compared with a week ago they were 10c to 15c lower, while lights hogs and light butchers are steady to weak. Shippers were good buyers the past week with butchers coming in for a goodly number, also. Top for the week was $8.20, with the closing top at $8.50. Bulk of all desirable hogs sold $7.60 to $8.65. Due to the abnormally high percentage of 600-lb arriving, especially light pigs, the market failed to show any improvement over last week in satisfactory grade. The wide spread continued with light pigs as much as 50c lower than a week ago. Medium weight kinds are around 25c off, while heavy pigs or light lights are about steady. Top light made $8.30 with the bulk of 90 to 130 pound good quality natives at $8.50 to $8.25. Some Southern dressed hogs weighing less than 90 pounds went under $8.30. Packing sows followed a lower trend and closed the week about 25c lower. Bulk of sows sold at $6.75 to $7 with light sows up to $7.15 early in the week. Stock pigs were slow demand, a few selling around $8.50 vaccinated.

Lamb Prices Irregular.

A scant supply of stock held prices steady in lambs the early part of last week and sent ewes and wethers up 50c. However, Thursday the supply was comparatively heavy and the lamb market reacted, taking a 50c downturn. Older classes held steady at the advance earlier in the period. At the high time packers paid $15.75 for lambs, while city butchers paid $16. Late in the week top to shippers was $15.75, with the bulk of lambs to packers at $15.50 to $13.25. Some medium stuff sold at that time at $14.75. Culls sold principally at $10.50 to $11.50. A small bunch of yearling wethers weighing over 100 pounds sold at $14.50 at one time. Ewes of good quality cashed at $9.25 to $9.80, with weightier consignments not quite as good quality at $7 to $8.50. Calf sheep went mostly at $3 to $6. Quotations: Slaughter stock—Fed Western and native lambs, good to choice lambs, $13 to $15.75; medium to good, $14 to $15; plain to medium, $13 to $14; cull and common, $10.50 to $12.50. Good to choice yearling wethers, $13.75 to $14.25; medium to good, $13 to $13.75; plain to medium, $12.50 to $13; plain to medium, $12 to $12.50. Good to choice mutton ewes, $9 to $9.50; medium to good, $8 to $9; plain to medium, $6.50 to $8; choice sheep and ewes, $5 to $6; canners, $3 to $4.

Horses and Mules.

Decreased receipts of horses and mules exerted a beneficial effect on prices this week, heavy runs previously having weakening influence on some kinds. Only the thrashy kind of mules failed to respond as all mules of good quality and with some weight showed a stronger trend. There was a good demand for certain rangy mare mules from sections such as Tennessee and Kentucky and buyers for green mare mules although horse mules were anything but brisk, sellers. Receipts were well cleared at the week's close.

Eastern states furnished a ready outlet for the run of horses and at firm values. Buyers from Pennsylvania wanted good sized, broke geldings and good sound chunks of 1500 and 1600 lbs. weight were inquired for. No very great demand was encountered for plain thin horses regardless of size but a satisfactory clearance was effected for the week.

NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $140@200; medium to good draft, $85@140; good to choice chunk, $75@100; medium to good chunk, $50@80; choice Southern horses, $45@80; fair to good Southern horses, $25@35; smooth-mouthed Southerners, $13@25; plugs, $8@13.

NATIVE MULE QUOTATIONS.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Lowar prices for butter on the wholesale markets have caused a reduction in prices to the consumer which should be quite a factor in stimulating consumption.

Apparently, if the present comparative low price to the consumer can be continued over a period of several weeks, the demand may be increased enough to take care of current arrivals of fresh butter without further price declines. However, production in Southern territory is considerably heavier than last year, and is increasing at a fairly rapid rate.

Heavier production in the South has curtailed outlets for Northern-made butter, and may be in a measure responsible for the excess supplies on the larger markets.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The raw sugar market was firm today, but trading was not very active. Prices were unchanged. The only sale reported was 7000 bags of Philippines, nearby, at 4.14. Refiners showed no interest. Cuban offerings were light, most holders asking advances of 1-16 of a cent or 4.21 duty paid.

Raw sugar futures were firmer on active covering by March shorts, some of which was believed to be for European account, and by increased buying for outside account. Less pressure in the spot market, and more favorable advices from abroad seemed responsible for the upturn. While there was much liquidation or realizing, offerings were readily absorbed and final prices showed net gains of 4 to 6 points. Approximate sales 24,000 tons. March closed 2.43; May, 2.53; July, 2.63; Sept., 2.72; Dec., 2.82; Jan., 2.82.

The refined sugar market continued quiet and prices were unchanged at 5.60 for fine granulated.

WHEAT CLOSES HIGHER AT WEEK-END SESSION

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 18.—Wheat futures closed higher at the end of a week-end session on the local market, the Chicago un, reports there being no select trade. Cash sales estimated up to 500,000 bushels had been made. Receipts also had unfavorable competition on sight at some points east of Missouri River. May corn closed higher. Anticipated softer weather next week was a factor of influence on price trend.

In the local cash grain market Saturday the scarcity of soft wheat forced buyers to meet 1c advance in prices. While demand was limited, a little more could have been placed. Hard wheat was steady to 1c higher. There was quiet selling demand. Nebraska No. 1 hard sold at $1.33½; No. 2 hard 11,21 per cent protein, $1.35½; ordinary No. 2 $1.34. Cash corn prices were steady to 1c lower. Offerings were light, but demand was only fair. The limited supply was taken by shippers and scattered local users. Oats were steady to ½c higher. There was a fair local and shipping demand for light receipts.

Trade opened unchanged and ruled so for the immediate trade, while corn was in the opening quiet. May being a little off is subsequent transactions. Liverpool wheat closed ½@¾d lower. Winnipeg was early and July and October higher. May wheat later sold fractionally higher.

Hard winter wheat opened at $1.32⅝, July $1.28¼. May corn 97¼c and May oats 53¼c.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago; corn receipts were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago; oat receipts were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Wheat shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago; corn shipments were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago; oats shipments were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago.

REPORT OF BIG FLOUR SALES BULLISH FACTOR IN WHEAT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Announcement of big flour sales apparently pointing to surprising scarcity of flour in the eastern part of the country led to higher prices today for wheat. As much as 300,000 barrels were reported to have been bought over night for shipment East, the largest business of the kind this year.

Closing quotations on wheat firm, ¼c to ¾c net higher, with corn ⅝c to 1⅛@1⅜c up, oats ¼c off to an equal advance, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

Large-scale Eastern purchases of flour reported today were direct from millers, and this circumstance was construed here as evidence that stocks of flour in second hands East and in course of distribution have been unduly curtailed. Today's flour sales were estimated as alone representing 1,250,000 bushels of wheat. In this connection it was recalled that when demand of late by domestic mills has been unusually keen. Talk was also heard that Russia will buy wheat and flour before long, despite official denials that purchases are contemplated.

Contributing to strength of the wheat market today report was current that crop damage has resulted from alternate freezing and thawing weather east of the Mississippi. Advices were also at hand that snowfalls in some districts were proved to be less than had been indicated. Other bullish factors included word that Spain has authorized immediate importation of 1,600,000 bushels of wheat. An opposite influence, however, came from news that European countries have raised 15,000,000 tons more potatoes than a year ago, implying relative lessening of demand for breadstuff grain.

Corn rallied with wheat, and as a result of prospective cold weather this week. Meanwhile, however, country offerings to arrive were somewhat larger. Oats were dull and unsettled, within a narrow range.

Provisions held about steady, although hogs were 15c to 25c higher.

LONDON WAITS ON FOREIGN ELECTIONS

Special to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

BY ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The latest political developments in Germany have served to remind the market of the important part that coming election will play in France during the coming spring. The possibility is already being considered of the German election bringing up the question of reparations, and the replacement of the Dawes scheme by some arrangement providing for the finality of German payments.

Whether the occurrence of the French elections at about the same time is likely to complicate these delicate matters remains to be seen, but realize generally and broadly, it is considered that the atmosphere is not unfavorable for a discussion of international problems generally. On the whole these discussions have undoubtedly been cleared under present slandings between the various European countries, and the general the disinterestedness of America and Great Britain in European affairs is being increasingly recognized, and the natural fear of other countries to advise has been steadily increased by her financial aid they have given to Europe.

Inasmuch, however, as German elections may involve practically timeless like reparations and as French elections will undoubtedly bring in the problem of currency and the question of general disposition here is to do little in the stock markets pending the result of both elections and perhaps pending the election of both the nominations for President of the United States.

Here, the usual monetary scarcity is prevalent owing to the ingathering of taxes, which is followed by the usual slow period. The enormous losses in rubber and rubber shares on the recently published facts is also slow until after the budget in April when, if no untoward developments come to the surface, a better feeling will be looked for.

Meanwhile gilt-edged securities may benefit from the caution referred to and the general steadiness looked for, while the interval between now and April is likely to be filled by several foreign loans.

It is impossible to forecast the outcome of the rubber inquiry, but it must not be overlooked that the properties which have been underweight since the restriction scheme was announced, and any abandonment of restriction. Should restriction be removed, which at present seems hopeful, a further fall in rubber is regarded as inevitable, but because many companies sold right after the scheme was announced, it is thought that shares may not necessarily fall proportionately to the decline in rubber itself.

Railway reports here are moderately good, showing a great decline in operating expenses. Nevertheless, the fact remains that special reserves have been so drawn upon that dividends even more than in recent years, when cash reserves were huge.

Moreover, the encroachment on these reserves to the extent of many millions of pounds has materially diminished the annual income of the railways from investments.

COTTON CLOSES FIRM AFTER REGAINING LOSS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Rallies developed from an opening decline in the cotton market today, May selling up from 17.92c to 18.14c and closing at 18.12c on trade buying and covering. The general market closed firm, at net advances of 8 to 11 points.

The opening was barely steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points. Active months sold 9 to 12 points net lower under a continuation of the selling and liquidation in evidence on the decline yesterday. Offerings were lighter, however, while it seemed a good part was being absorbed by trade buying. The market later rallied on week-end covering. Trade buying was accompanied by reports of continued steadiness in the Southern spot situation. There also may have been some buying on talk of better prospects for the avoidance of labor troubles in Lancashire, and a feeling that the decline below 18 cents had left the market in a healthier technical position.

March, which had eased off to 17.77c early, rallied to 17.98c, while October sold up from 18.06c to 18.08c. Closing prices were within a point or two of the best.

Manchester cables said the acceptance by operatives of the invitation to a conference with employers to-day is regarded as marking a distinct change for the better in the prospects for an agreement and that responsible opinion is terminating the present wage schedule have been withheld. Private cables to the trade were also showing private cables stating there had been fair trade calling and covering on the more nearby months in that situation. They also reported good cloth sales in the Shanghai district with improved demand from Africa and a fair business in Egyptian yarns.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 120,440 bales, against 182,023 last week and 129,377 two years ago.

Private cable advice from Bombay said Indian spinners were only buying from hand-to-mouth, but estimated the purchases of American cotton for India at 40,000 bales with additional purchases of 30,000 expected.

Count Shows Seven Have Fallen 35 to 60 Points, Others Lesser Amounts —Downward Drift During Week Plainly Reflects Change in Speculative Sentiment, Says Review.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"In the face of influence both favorable and unfavorable stocks drifted downward this week in a series of sessions that plainly reflect a change in speculative sentiment. Some still wonder whether the market is going to drop but the obvious fact is that it already is dropping. A count shows that seven stocks have fallen between 35 and 60 points from their 1928 highs, 16 including these seven have fallen at least 30 points, 27 at least 25 points, 41 at least 20 points, 76 at least 15 points, 171 at least 10 points, 385 at least 5 points and 623 up to 5 points. Perhaps the market's own concern over the loan position overshadows all other influences at this time for a decline, for notwithstanding the Federal Reserve system's plain intent to check speculation, its efforts to date have not greatly reduced the volume of broker' loans.

Rise in Ratio.

"In times past a rise in the ratio of Stock Exchange loans to the value of all listed stocks has represented a fair index to the market's performance. The computation of this ratio for Feb. 1 reveals a rise to 8.99 per cent in the ratio, which is the highest for any month since early 1926 just previous to the March break. What this means is that loans of $4,420,352,541 now represent virtually 9 per cent of the market value of $49,145,011,525 for all listed stocks. While the volume of loans grew persistently during 1927 the growth in stock values and the growth in the number of listed issues kept the ratio of loans to values remarkably steady somewhat above 8 per cent. Since a year ago the ratio has been swelled from 8.14 to 8.99, but the slight distortion is a recent development.

Government Bonds Bought.

"With this week's contraction in stock speculation more attention has been given to Government bonds. The conclusion that some stockholders are shifting their stocks into Governments is borne out by the facts. Closely related to the flurry in Governments this week was release of pressure on the market from the pressure of sales of Government securities by the Federal Reserve banks. Instead of sellers the Federal Reserve Banks in the last week were buyers of Government securities, although at $7,000,000 the increase in their Government portfolios was small. Liquidation in stocks usually is accompanied by liquidation in bonds, but the financial district is not now greatly concerned over the possibility of any extended decline in bond values. The volume of new financing under consideration represents largely refunding operations. A majority of the leading industrial and public utility companies are in so strong a cash position that they are not pressed for immediate funds. For money with which to refund old loans they can and doubtless will await a more favorable market. If the present firming tendency in money persists then the market is not likely soon to become burdened with fresh offerings.

Bread Line and Unemployment.

"The formation of bread lines in New York for the first time since 1920 drives home a condition of unemployment more serious than people generally have understood. Not in years has the tide of factory employment at points been so low as it is now. Unfortunately the available employment tabulations do not enable us to judge how many of the workers released from factory jobs have found work elsewhere. In part the army of unemployed has been swelled by the mild weather conditions and will be reduced in the next two months as the demands for spring work multiply. Those who want the full truth about business cannot ignore the growth in unemployment, but perhaps the excellent wages of those employed has helped to offset suffering. If the present improvement in the steel industry continues during the spring and if motor production is accelerated as expected not only the problem of unemployment but others that loom doubtless will be satisfactorily adjusted. At any rate those in position to know remain confident that business in the next few months will hold up.

POOL SPECIALTIES SUFFER MOST AS STOCKS ARE SOLD

New Record for Saturday Trading When 1,831,000 Shares Sell—Offerings of Bear Traders Swelled by Liquidation of Impaired Marginal Accounts.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—A new high record for Saturday trading was established in the declining movement of prices in today's stock market. Total sales for the two-hour session were 1,831,000 shares, against 1,603,000 on Dec. 17 last, with the ticker 35 minutes late in recording the final quotation despite the abbreviated quotation system.

There was nothing in the day's news to influence the selling movement, which was generally accepted as a further correction of the top-heavy speculative position created by pool manipulation in recent months. While most observers were agreed that the setback was warranted, a sharp difference of opinion exists as to whether the current decline spells the end of the "bull" market. Time alone will supply the answer.

As in the sharp break of yesterday, selling pressure was directed chiefly against pool specialties. Offerings of bear traders were swelled by the liquidation of impaired marginal accounts and the profit-taking of investors who had built up large paper profits. Short covering and possibly some "bargain hunting" tended to lessen the force of the declining movement. Standard industrials which have not been the objects of recent pool operations, offered good resistance to selling pressure, as did the rails, which had been freely liquidated earlier in the year as a result of the poor earnings and traffic reports for the latter part of 1927.

Some of the Losses.

Midland Steel Products preferred, which advanced from 104 last April to 315 in December, broke 13¾ points to 199 and then rallied to 202. Baldwin Locomotive fell 9 points and rallied 1. American Machine & Foundry and Vanadium Steel fell 7¼ to 6¼ points, respectively, and closed at the bottom.

Freeport Texas fell nearly 5 points to 66½ as against a high of 190¾ on Jan. 12. Other stocks to show net declines of 3 points or more included Abraham & Straus, Borden, Borroughs Adding Machine, A. M. Byers, Calumet & Arizona, Greene Cananea Copper, International Business Machines, National Distillers, People's Gas, Rossia Insurance, Snider Packing preferred and Warren Bros. U. S. Steel common dipped below 140 for the first time this year, but the net loss for the day was less than a point. General Motors sold down to 132½ and then rallied to 134 for a small fractional gain.

There were a few issues to move against the current trend, the most conspicuous of which were Mullins Manufacturing and Standard Milling, which closed at net gains of 4¾ and 3½ points, respectively. Union Pacific closed 1½ points higher.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Sterling cables were quoted around $4.87½.

Deficit in Reserves.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a deficit in reserve for the third consecutive week, but it was considerably smaller than the preceding two, amounting to only $5,534,690, against $18,100,-510 a week ago. Aggregate reserve totaled $639,437,000. The detailed statement of actual condition this day showed decreases in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments dropped $50,564,000; cash in own vaults, $1,219,000; net demand deposits, $26,844,000, and time deposits, $10,582,000. Reserve in Federal Reserve Bank of member banks gained $6,223,000.

METAL MARKETS OF WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The activity on the part of steel mills, with production reported as increasing steadily, continued to be the feature of the steel trade. Apparently the bulk of the movement was necessitated by the increased orders for shipment against current contracts. New business, however, especially for second quarter shipment, was said to be below expectations. Prices were firm, with the tendency higher.

Pig iron was firmer, but the volume of new business was rather small, as consumers have covered needs for the first and a good part of the second quarter of the year.

The copper market was rather quiet during the past week, with both foreign and domestic buying confined to small lots. Offerings at concessions in some quarters was said to have failed to stimulate purchases, and large producers continued to hold steady at 14½ for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley. January statistics published early in the week were viewed as rather favorable.

Tin continued to decline, with prices the lowest in about three years. Sellers again pressed the market, and while consumers were fair buyers early in the week, purchases tapered off toward the close. London also declined.

Lead was easier. Lead ore was reduced and London displayed considerable irregularity. Consumers were not active, with the buying side said to be limited to moderate amounts and largely for prompt shipment.

Zinc late in the week joined with some of the other metals in the price trend and averaged lower. Demand was reported as extremely quiet.

Antimony was steady, with the market apparently featured by an absence of selling pressure on the part of the first hands or dealers. On the other hand, consuming demand was reported as restricted.

GENERALLY LOWER PRICES ON BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Extensive but profit taking and doubtless some liquidation to obtain funds to support "long" accounts, weakened by falling prices, brought generally lower stock prices in the bond market today. Very few issues were able to resist the pressure, although losses of as much as a point were numerous.

The offerings during the week fell off from $60,000,000, against about $50,000,000 in the preceding week. The absorption reported of these new issues indicated that many investors were turning from preference over listed securities.

Railroad liens were again hard pressed to find buyers, dropping about 9 points to new low levels for the year. Some convertibles, such as Andes Copper 6s also rendered rather sharply. Debentures also sustained a point loss and Equipment 4s, which displayed comparative easy in the week, fell back 3 points to a year's low of 84.

Leaders in the railway group were by no means immune from the selling, declines were held to fractions of a point in instances. Rock Island, "Frisco," Missouri Pacific issues and Chesapeake Corporation appeared to be in most abundant supply.

Foreign issues also were more evident than recently, although small amounts of the foreign group were in relatively small volume. French, Belgian and Australian obligations, however, moved against the trend.

Little business was transacted in the United Government department and price were nezlible.

Wall Street News and Comment

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Speculative unrest over the huge volume of brokers' loans and the situation as to unemployment were generally described as the two major factors behind the sharp reaction in stock prices this week. Measured by the movement of 20 leading issues in each group, such rails and industrials closed the week about 9 points below the year's highs, although rails have been declining steadily for several weeks, while industrials have broken rather precipitously in the last few days.

The reaction followed such ordinarily favorable good news as the publication of record-creating peace-time earnings by the General Motors Corporation. Comment was consequently pronounced to the effect that a corrective reaction in the monetary after the speculative excesses of recent months, but there was a wide divergence of opinion as to how far it would proceed. Some observers already have indicated that many investors were turning from preference over listed securities.

Railroad liens were again hard pressed to find buyers, dropping about 9 points to new low levels for the year. Some convertibles, such as Andes Copper 6s also rendered rather sharply. Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Evening Post in conjunction with its weekly foreign exchange market review today, says:

The foreign exchange market during the week showed a re-establishment of confidence on about the same volume and character that prevailed before the World War. There was no important transactions in the European exchanges at present time which operated on the other side. London at present is a factor in causing special movements. There was also an adjustment of the position of Dutch exchange to the high money rates prevailing here which caused holders down to 40.21, but part of this was recovered toward the end of the week. Sterling held very close to 4.87 all through the week, there being little variation in the position of London exchange, bids and offers being about close together at all times.

Trade exchange reflected the stabilizing arrangements of the Government, varying little from 3.93 for cables, although there is now an increased demand for bills in connection with requirements and purchases which are expected to reach a large volume.

Canadian exchange was also steadily maintained by cables holding around 100, Scandinavians without the necessity of government control showed little variation in their market positions during the week. Denmark making a moderate gain and Norway was for a time in second demand.

Latin exchange had its usual wide movement, ranging from 17.04 to 16.92. Some of the selling on a decline yesterday came from London. India exchange was heavy but after the 20-point break last week met absorption and rallied to almost 56.50.

Japan was heavy in the early trading but moved to a higher level late in the week.

Argentine was a special feature, moving from 40.16 to 42.84 for the paper peso, and again indicates a gold movement. The foreign banking circles this week in Argentine exchange is attributed to demand for money there in connection with industrial improvements on a large scale.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Foreign exchange quotations were as follows:

Drygoods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Trade in wash goods was steady today with limited activities. Gray goods were quiet, with little demand. Raw silk opened steadily. Silk goods were in fair demand. Burlaps were unchanged. Prices of wool and worsted goods are shown for fall and trade in them is moderate proportions.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $6,591,000; previous day's sales, $10,841,000; week ago, $6,127,000; year ago, $7,013,000. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $448,436,000; compared with $602,-242,000 same period year ago and $487,197,000 same period two years ago.

COLT BEATEN DAY BEFORE IN A POOR FIELD PAYS $54.64

10,000 Crowd at New Orleans Hisses After Race—Brilliant Outruns Some Good Sprinters.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—After a sudden reversal of form shown by the horse Aregal in winning the Comus Handicap, feature race at Fairgrounds here today, the stewards ordered the stable of W. S. Heaton suspended pending investigation of the horse's running. Aregal ran yesterday and was defeated by 16 lengths by such horses as Breastplate and Gale.

Jockey Leonard, who rode the horse in his race yesterday, was called before the stewards and explained that the horse stumbled several times during the running, but the stewards ordered both Heaton and Jockey Leonard to appear before them Monday morning.

Aregal beat a good field in today's race and when Jockey Leyland rode him back to the scales the crowd of about 10,000 hissed and booed.

Sam Louis' colors were carried to victory in the second event, when Harry Carroll, ridden by Jockey Eddie Barnes, scored in a romp. Shampoo was second and Swoop third.

Shampoo cut out the earyly pace but in the stretch Harry Carroll came with a rush and won by a length and a half.

Mrs. W. J. Potter's Brilliant, displaying excellent speed, won the third race, a six furlong sprint, leading home some of the best sprinters at the local track. Two days ago Brilliant was defeated by Medley in virtually the same kind of going.

Rosinante cut out a very fast pace but around the turn Herodian and Percentage both moved up to him. They quickly made Rosinante quit and Percentage took the lead but in the last furlong Brilliant came with a rush and won by a length and a half. Percentage took the place by four lengths from Rosinante.

Bookie, on a track that was to his liking, scored easily in winning the fifth race, a mile gallop for three-year-olds. He ran the distance in 1:45 2-5. Penthorn was second and Jack Higgins third. Preparing for Tomorrow's World Title Wrestling Match

Stecher-Lewis Mat Title Bout Tomorrow Their Tenth Meeting

Long Battle Expected by Wrestling Fans, and Champion and Challenger Both Are Equipped for Endurance Test — Starti ng Time About 10 O'Clock.

By Dent McSkimming.

Men who discuss the Stecher-Lewis championship wrestling match at the Coliseum tomorrow night are strangely reluctant to predict the winner, but in almost all such discussions there seems to be little question that the match will be a long-drawn-ont struggle.

Each man is equipped to withstand the demands upon nature which a long match entails but Stecher would seem to have an advantage in this respect, for in training for the match he built UP from 215 to 225 pounds, whereas Lewis tore DOWN from about 248 to 228.

This will be the tenth meeting of the two men, since, 1915. That they are evenly matched may be surmised from the fact that in all these previous meetings, each man has won three bouts and each man has won 4 falls.

No Time Limit on Match.

Since there is no time limit on the match, the casual observer may wonder how far the men may go if they both decide to do a "watchful waiting act." This question was put to the managers of both Lewis and Stecher and also to Referee Sharpe. Here is what Sharpe had to say:

"Under the rules governing the match, I am not authorized to force the wrestlers to go to the mat. However, I do not anticipate any particular difficulty in this respect, for the very weight of public opinion, as expressed by the big crowd, will force each man to give forth his best effort to win as quickly as possible."

Tony Stecher, manager of the champion, expressed great uneasiness over the tactics Lewis may employ. "I'm afraid he's going to stand off, merely blocking and checking every advance made by Joe and possibly running away from him for hours. If Lewis pulls that stuff, Joe is not going to wear himself out running after him. If Lewis will come out of his corner willing to wrestle, it will be a real match. If it's a bad match for the spectators, it will be Lewis' fault, for Joe wants to mix."

"If one man wants to make a defensive stand, he is privileged to do so," said Billy Sandow, manager of Lewis. "In the first place, you're wrong if you assume Lewis is going to stand in his corner and wait for Stecher. Ed is going to win and win quick."

Start About 10 O'Clock.

But the fact remains that no official step can be taken to force the men to "mix" if they do not consider it wise to do so. The crowd, by voicing its disapproval of either man's methods, may do more to force action than the referees can do under the rules.

It is probable that Lewis and Stecher will get into the ring at 9:45 o'clock and the match should

WRAY'S COLUMN

The "Low Down."

THE sports editor of a Chicago newspaper wired the writer for the "low down" on tomorrow night's wrestling match at the Coliseum, advertised as being for the "championship of the world."

He wanted to know whether the bout is to be an exhibition or a "shooting" match.

This letter is one of at least 10 of similar import received during the past 10 days from various parts of the country.

To all the reply was made that it is impossible to condemn anyone for an act not yet committed, that the circumstances attending the coming bout indicate both Lewis and Stecher will "shoot" (i. e. wrestle in earnest at all times) because of personal grievances and the amount at stake.

Bad Odors Numerous.

THE writer holds no brief for the wrestling game. It is not conducted right. Much about it leads to suspicion. Its history is rooted in a welter of scandal and the fact that it is barely able to lift its head in communities that have had bitter experience with it, is the best evidence that it has not always traveled straight.

The very doubt manifested in questions about the title match here, indicate the widespread distrust of the game—one of the oldest and normally one of the greatest of all personal contact sports.

And yet it is unfair to let the suspicion that has attached to previous shows in which the principals have been involved bias us into condemning in advance the meeting at the Coliseum.

There will be nothing to prevent one forming and voicing judgment of the principals AFTER it is all over, however. It can be assumed that the contestants tomorrow night will demean themselves properly, as any suspicious conduct would mean the closing of one more door against them. It would only take another of those Wayne Munn things to spill the beans.

Going South.

THEY'RE off for the training camps!

The spring training getaway of the St. Louis Browns is undertaken with very modest hopes for the coming campaign. Phil Ball carried out his threat to wreck his club and only about a baker's dozen of last year's squad

CONGER DEFEATS HAHN, SETTING WORLD RECORD

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 18.—Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A. flier, lost his first race in two years and dropped one of his four coveted world's indoor records when Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. flash, led him to the tape in a special 1000-yard race here in the record time of 2 minutes, 11 seconds.

The race was the feature event of the Kansas City A. C. indoor meet. Hahn, who held the record of 2:12 4-5, finished under protest after Conger passed him within 50 yards of the tape and lodged an immediate protest with the referee, claiming he had been elbowed off

U. S. Bobsleigh Team Makes Best Time in First Descent Of Olympic Games Chute

Another Trial Will Be Held Today, Total Times Determining Winner — Canada Beating Great Britain, 14 to 0, Is on Way to Hockey Championship.

By the Associated Press.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 18.—The end of the eighth day of Olympic winter sports competition tonight saw another title unofficially in Norway's possession, while the United States had a half-grip on its second championship.

On the basis of the length of the leaps alone, Norway placed first and second in the ski jump, and was considered virtually certain to gain the title officially when the judges have completed their study of each contestants' style of approach, jump and landing. America fared poorly on the basis of the unofficial standing, finishing fifth, seventh and eighth.

The United States got some consolation, however, when the bobsleigh team, headed by William Fiske of Chicago, made the best time in the first descent of the Olympic chute. Another descent will be made tomorrow, total times determining the winner.

Canada Wins at Hockey.

Canada's hockey team romped through its second test, crushing Great Britain, 14 to 0. Yesterday the Canadians shut out Sweden, 11 to 0, and tomorrow will meet Switzerland, the last hurdle to be cleared by the Dominion sextet in its march to the championship.

Although he placed unofficially, no better than fifth, Rolf Monsen of the United States was the star of the ski-jumping event. Suffering from an injured knee that would have kept most men out of competition, Monsen took the jump in splendid form.

Albert Anderson, Norway, was credited with the best jump of the day, 64 meters. His countryman, Sigmund Ruud, Norway, was second, with 62.50, and the German, Recknagel, third, with 62.

Figures for the other contestants were:

Beetil Carlsson, Sweden; 61; Rolf Monsen, United States, 59.50; Rudolph Purkert, Czecho-Slovakia, 59.50; Charles Procter, U. S., 56; Anders Haugen, U. C., 52.

Jacob Ghana, Norway, leaped 73 meters, a meter beyond the world's record, but made a bad landing.

American Leaguers Will Start Work Tomorrow, With First Workout for Knot-Holers Tuesday.

Rogers Hornsby On Browns' Train On Way to Camp

ROGERS HORNSBY, former manager of the Cardinals and later captain and second baseman of the Giants, who was traded to the Braves this winter for Outfielder Welch and Catcher Hogan, departed on the same train with the Browns yesterday afternoon. Hornsby will report to the Braves at their training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hornsby.

Hornsby's contract, which had another year to run, was taken over by the Braves when the Giants decided to play Santa Claus. At the time of the trade Hornsby said he would ask for a three-year contract, but he has not had a chance to discuss contract with President Fuchs of the Boston club.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Bill McKechnie, the Cardinals' new manager, will lead the first squad of his men to the Avon Park, Fla., training camp this afternoon, leaving Union Station at 4:30 o'clock. With the departure of the National Leaguers' advance guard the first steps in preparing for the 1928 baseball season will have been taken by both St. Louis major league clubs, as the Browns' first contingent left for West Palm Beach, Fla., yesterday under command of Manager Dan Howley.

There will be but few Cardinal players leave this afternoon as it is more economical for most of the men to go direct from their homes to camp rather than come to St. Louis first.

Catcher Bob O'Farrell, last year's manager who returns to the ranks this year at an increase in salary of $5000 a year, accompanied by his bride of a few days, will go with McKechnie as will Hal Smith, a young pitcher.

Youngsters to Make Trip.

Other players in the party will be Pitchers Fred Ostermueller and Lawrence Irvin, who belong to the Rochester Club of the International League, and Catcher Ralph White, who is the property of the Topeka, Kan., team. These youngsters will help out with the battery work and Otto Reiselt, World's 3-Cushion Champion, Also Says He Is Willing to Meet Cochran or Schaefer Under These Conditions; Plan Was Suggested in St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Willie Hoppe yesterday filed an official answer to the general challenge hurled by Young Jake Schaefer and Welker Cochran to meet any three-cushion player in the world with the diamonds on the table covered.

As Hoppe is the present leader in the American three cushion billiard league he feels that he is the one to represent the three cushion players, and today, on his behalf, Charles S. Kline of the Strand Academy, which Hoppe represents, announced that he was prepared to back Hoppe from $5000 upward for a three cushion match at from 200 points upward with either Schaefer or Cochran as the opponent.

While in St. Louis a few days ago on a balkline tour Schaefer and Cochran issued a joint challenge to the three-cushion world that they would play anyone with the diamonds covered, as they figured this would break up the play of the so-called system players and thus give the natural billiardist the edge.

In his first answer Hoppe protested that the challenge in itself was unfair, as the diamonds were as much a part of the table as the cloth, cushions and slate.

Later Hoppe announced he would play either balkline star with diamonds covered or uncovered. It also was learned today that Otto Reiselt, the world's three-cushion champion, said he would meet either player under the conditions they outlined.

BEAUMONT IS ELIMINATED AS CONTENDER FOR BASKETBALL TITLE

SOLDAN WINS AND GAINS ON ROOSEVELT

Central Surprises by Defeating Cleveland, 29-27 for First City League Victory.

Beaumont was eliminated as a contender for the Public High School League basketball championship last night on its home court when Soldan won its fifth victory in six starts to gain on the leading Roosevelt Rough Riders. In the other game, Central surprised by defeating Cleveland, 29 to 27, at the Cleveland gymnasium.

Beaumont had a chance to tie for the title before losing to Soldan, but now the battle for the honors is between the latter team and the Roosevelt quintet, idle last night.

Both Teams Are Wild.

The game at Beaumont was anything but exciting except for the final minutes, when the North Siders approached the victors' total. At all other times both teams were guilty of wild passing and inaccurate shooting. Soldan had better luck with its tries at the basket but few of its field goals were the result of good pass work down the court.

Soldan held a 16-8 lead as the first half ended but last the services of its most effective player when Capt. George Edmiston was sent to the sidelines with four personal fouls charged against him early in the second half. Later two more Soldan regulars, Hellmich, center and Buchele, guard, were ejected for the same reason. The absence of these men helped Beaumont to cut down the lead to 24-21 a few seconds before the final gun.

In defeating Cleveland, Central scored its first league victory of the season. But victory was not assured until the final whistle blew for Cleveland made a terrific last minute rush, scoring 13 points in the last quarter.

Pilinski Scores Winning Basket.

After Central had led throughout, the third quarter opened with Cleveland trailing, 14 to 22. Then something broke. Central defense became sieve like and Cleveland couldn't miss with its long and short shots. Bieber tied the score at 27-all with a fine field goal and it looked like certain defeat for Central. But with less than a minute to play, Pilinski flashed through for a short shot which gave Cleveland the winning margin of two points.

Small crowds attended both games.

EDWARDS SETS RECORD IN 1000-YARD EVENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Phil Edwards, New York University flash, won the 1000-yard run in the Metropolitan senior track and field championships, held at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory in Brooklyn tonight, establishing a new time of 2:13 1-5 for the distance. The former Metropolitan mark for that distance was 2:16 3-5.

Johnny Holden of the New York A. C. finished second, 10 yards behind Edwards, and James Kennedy of the Newark A. C. was third, six yards behind Kennedy.

REIGH COUNT AND HIS OWNER, JOHN D. HERTZ.

Reigh Count, Mrs. John D. Hertz's ace, is held favorite at 6 to 1 for the $50,000 Kentucky Derby to be run at Churchill Downs, May 19, in a list of future book odds issued yesterday by a local betting commissioner. E. B. McLean's Time Maker is rated second choice at 8 to 1 and 10 to 1 are Sortie, Victorian and Misstep. Anita Peabody is held at 15 to 1 along with Agitator and Nassack.

Time Maker, not included in the last list of odds, has won three straight races at Fairgrounds in New Orleans and is considered the best colt uncovered at the Southern tracks this winter. He is entered for the Louisiana Derby in which he probably will be named favorite.

The official list of entries for the Churchill Downs event will be released Feb. 25 by the management of the track. In the event horses quoted by the local store are not included in these entries, commissions laid prior to that time will be refunded.

Westhus Drops Final Match of Billiard Meet

St. Louisan Gains High Run Honors at Indianapolis With Seven.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 18.—Bud Westhus today lost the final match of the Western three-cushion tournament of the Amateur Billiard Association, bowing to Lewis Vogler, of Indianapolis, by a 50 to 30 score in 58 innings. Vogler had already clinched the championship Friday.

Westhus, after once sharing the lead and making a noise like a future titleholder, faded away and wound up in fifth place.

Vogler set out early to trim his young St. Louis opponent. He quickly gained a big lead, and with a high run of five, numerous threes and an unfinished four he went out with colors flying.

Westhus remained in the slump that overtook him after he had won three of his first four matches.

His only consolation in the whole tournament is a nifty case consisting of purse, cigarette case and key ring for high run of the tournament. Others tied his seven, but they lacked a second run equal to his second count of seven. Vogler will play in the association's national tournament at Buffalo in March.

ILLINOIS TRACK TEAM DEFEATS NOTRE DAME; TRACK RECORDS FALL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 18.—Covering the two-mile run in faster time than any other Illinois athlete had done before, and breaking one other Illinois Armory record, Coach Harry Gill's track team defeated Notre Dame today, 76 to 19, in the first indoor meet of the season for the Illini.

Notre Dame took first in two events, the 75-yard dash and half mile, and tied or broke even the record in each event.

Elder, the Notre Dame dash star, tied the Armory record of 7 3-5 seconds for the 75 yards, beating Hale of Illinois to the tape by two yards. Abbott of Notre Dame set a new Armory record of 1:58 2-10 for the half mile, coming up in the finish of a thrilling race to beat Hal White by inches.

Indiana Hands Purdue Its First Big Ten Defeat

Boilermakers, 17 Points Behind Near Close, Make Up All but 3 Points.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 18.—Indiana tonight put the first blot in the Big Ten record of Purdue's basketball team, nosing out the Boilermakers, 40 to 37, in Memorial Gymnasium here. The Crimson had a 19 to 15 lead at the half.

Strickland, former Owensville High School star, the same Strickland that threw fear into Purdue at Lafayette two weeks ago with three baskets in the last few minutes, put the scoring punch in the Crimson attack tonight with six baskets and four free throws.

Indiana hopped into a 13 to 3 lead at the start, but Murphy's long arms and Wheeler's accurately placed shots cut down the advantage. Shortly after the second half opened Purdue drew up to within one point before Strickland started counting, with Wells and McCracken, to run up a 17-point margin.

Then with the score 23 to 40 against them, the Boilermakers started a scoring spree which Indiana's stalling tactics could halt only enough to hold a three-point lead at the gun. Purdue lost its game on fouls, as the Boilermakers counted 15 to Indiana's 13 field goals.

WORLD RECORD IN RELAY RACE AT LOS ANGELES

Quarter-Mile Mark Lowered by Southern California—Charlie Borah Loses at 100 Yards.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 18.—The two Charlies of the cinder path Charlie Borah, University of Southern California flyer, and his veteran rival, Charlie Paddock, now running under the Los Angeles Athletic Club's colors—met twice in an indirect way during the annual A. A. U. relay carnival here today and Borah won the honors, if any, by a shade.

The curly haired youth and the kingpin of the dashes met first in the quarter-mile four-man relay, and the result was a new world's record for that event, 41 3-5 seconds, made by Southern California.

Paddock Gains Six Yards.

Both ran in the anchor position on their respective teams in the quarter-mile, Borah receiving the baton before Paddock got his, to get away to a seven-yard start, but the powerful drive of Paddock's running legs all but made up for it. With a final burst of speed Borah breasted the tape first with less than a yard separating them.

The new record-holding quartet is comprised of Weldon Draper, Chink Sauers, Jimmy Hayne and Charlie Borah.

The former record was established here in May, 1925, by another Southern California quartet—Brice Taylor, Ed House, Bob Lee and Keith Lloyd.

Borah and Paddock did not run against each other in the other race, the half-mile four-man relay, but Paddock, giving all that was in him, made up several yards that Borah had gained in a previous lap, to give the Los Angeles Athletic Club victory. Borah ran the second lap. The time was 1 minute 28 1-5 seconds.

Lee Barnes, Southern California vaulting ace, soared only to a height of 13 feet 6 inches in beating two teammates for first place in the altitude event.

Borah, in addition to running in the two relays, participated in an open 100-yard dash and saw a fellow teammate, Weldon Draper, a new Southern California sprint sensation, breast the tape before him. The time, 10 seconds, flat, was fair for this time of the year.

Women Set Records.

Feminine athletes just about ran away with record-shattering honors in the meet, which attracted some 300 performers.

Lillian Copeland, Pasadena Athletic and Country Club, three times shattered the women's discus mark before finally chalking up one of 115 feet even. Her previous record was 102.55 feet.

A new standard for the quarter mile, four-member women's relay, was set by a Pasadena Athletic Club quartet, Lillian Copeland, A. Grane, N. Doerschlag and E. Nichols. The new record is 56 seconds flat, bettering the old mark, also held by the club, by 2 1-10 seconds.

Agnes Grane tied the 50-yard dash mark when she reeled off the distance in 6 seconds flat.

Principia Loses To Roosevelt

Saussele and Kessler Brilliant in Scoring 59 to 35 Victory.

Roosevelt High outclassed the Principia Academy basketball team in a game at Howard Gymnasium last night, winning by a score of 59 to 35.

Saussele was especially brilliant, scoring 10 field goals and six free throws, but Kessler, with 11 field goals was not far off. Roosevelt's team play was letter perfect while Principia was so hard pressed to defend at all times that it could not get an offense in order.

THE dear old Browns are on their way
The Cards will pull their freight today
For training camps in Florida,
Where skies are fair and sunny.
Which indicates that spring is here,
Although the frost may nip your ear
And that the fans will get this year
A canter for their money.

To West Palm Beach the Browns will go,
To hit and run and field and throw,
And otherwise perform as though
They looked like pennant timber.
But, be the outcome as it may,
To one and all we're here to say,
The Browns will work from day to day
To make their muscles limber.

The Cards will train at Avon Park
From whence, permit us to remark,
For Pennantville they will embark
With colors gaily flying.
An early start the boys have made
To mingle in the big parade,
And if they do not make the grade
There is no harm in trying.

Concordia Is Easy Winner Over De Paul

Preachers Score 40 to 26 Victory Over Chicago University Team.

By Ed Van Stegen.

The Concordia Seminary basketball team won a decisive victory over De Paul University of Chicago last night, 40 to 26. The game at best was a rough, uninteresting affair with neither team showing a very speedy or accurate offense. During the early minutes of encounter both teams lacked the ability to score even though there were many easy opportunities.

Coach Simpson of Concordia used a new starting lineup against the De Paul team. Mehl and Chuvala were the forwards, Wetzel, center and Reinke and Colcher, guards in the starting five. The second-string team held the visitors to a small count and with the first period almost over "Doc" Simpson sent in the big team. With the regulars playing below standard due to the absence of Dau, high point scorer, the game continued to be a hard fight. Mehl and Schmidt led in points during the first period. The half ended, Concordia 18, De Paul 10.

Shortly after the start of the second period, Reilly of De Paul started the scoring with a shot from the center of the court. This counter was quickly followed by a pair of baskets scored by Werling and Schmidt of Concordia. Gradually the Concordia quintet drew away from the visitors until the Preachers were resting behind a comfortable lead.

After about 10 minutes of play in the second half the game turned into a struggle. De Paul playing a fast man to man defense against Concordia's equally agile offense. Many fouls were committed during this time. At one point late in the game it appeared the battle would be stopped, but both teams quieted angry members and the game was continued, under difficulties.

BROWNS ON WAY TO TRAINING CAMP; CARDS WILL DEPART TODAY

at the same time acquaint themselves with the major league team with which they hope to play some day.

President Sam Breadon, Secretary Clarence Lloyd, Coach Jack Onslow and Dr. Weaver, trainer, complete the party.

Ray Blades, outfielder, left for Avon Park by motor car last week and Grover Alexander arrived in Florida some time ago. Tommy Thevenow, shortstop, and Lester Bell, third baseman, also have been granted permission to join the first squad for the additional week of training and likely will be in camp when McKechnie arrives there Tuesday morning.

The Status of Rhem.

All the other pitchers and catchers on the club who have signed their contracts also are expected to be at Avon Park then. Flint Rhem, who has announced himself as dissatisfied with the terms of the contract offered him by the Cardinals, may be the only missing pitcher.

Discussing Rhem yesterday, Breadon said it was strictly up to the pitcher whether he reports or not, that the club has made him its best offer and it would not be improved upon. Breadon said he was tired of haggling with Rhem each spring, that he thought the club had always been fair to the pitcher and that this year Flint would have to sign at the Cardinals' terms or remain at home.

Breadon added that he would trade the pitcher if he could get something near his value in return but that preliminary inquiries around the National League circuit indicated that the other clubs were not very anxious to acquire Rhem and would not offer a good pitcher in return for him.

Two Workouts a Day.

McKechnie stated on his arrival here that he favored the two workouts a day plan and planned to follow this system right from the start this spring. He said he was pleased with the prospect of leading the Cardinals and was sure of being able to give a good account in the coming race.

Only two players were in the Browns' advance squad accompanying Howley yesterday. They were Pitchers Walter Beck and Fred Burnett. All the rest of the pitchers and catchers went direct to West Palm Beach.

As all of the Browns were sent transportation expenses, it appears that they have all signed contracts, for Bill Friel, business manager, said this would not have been done if they had not signed. At the same time he refused to admit that all the players were in the fold.

Early Start for Rookies.

Coach Jimmy Austin has been at camp for nearly a week, getting things ready for the start of the work.

Most of the members of the Browns will be at West Palm Beach when Howley arrives there Monday morning, as it has been deemed advisable to send the youngsters down right away to give the coaches a chance to look them over.

After their arrival in Florida the Cardinals will have until March 7 to prepare for their first spring exhibition game, which is scheduled for that date against the Red Sox at Bradentown. Then follow 24 other games between that time and April 6, when the club returns home for its first game with the Browns at Sportsman's Park on April 7.

The Browns' first spring game will be played against the Cincinnati Reds at West Palm Beach on March 10. They will play 20 other games before they come back to meet the Cardinals.

Indians Depart Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18.—Ten members of the Cleveland American baseball team will leave here tomorrow night for New Orleans, where the team will begin spring practice Thursday.

The vanguard includes Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, Secretary Walter McNichols, Coaches Howard Shanks and Grover Hartley, Pitchers George Uhle, Joe Shaute, Walter Miller, Walter Brown, Harold Heidelbach, a recruit pitcher, and Trainer Max Weisman.

HOLLAND QUINTET LOSES TO CHICAGO GIRLS' TEAM, 19-4

Passwork of Brownies Dazzles Local Squad Which Scores Only One Field Goal.

The Chicago Brownies, girls' basketball team of Chicago, decisively defeated the Holland quintet, a member of the local municipal league, last night at St. Louis University gymnasium, 19 to 4. About 1500 saw the contest.

Only one field goal was scored by the Hollands. It came in the fourth quarter and was made by Dot Brown, a center drafted from the Peetz quintet.

The clever pass work of the visitors puzzled the local team which missed many good chances on set-up shots. A return game is scheduled to be played in Chicago.

In a preliminary game the Red Birds defeated the Holland Juniors, 12 to 6.

LAST-MINUTE RALLY GIVES BADGERS VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 18.—Wisconsin defeated Ohio State tonight, 21 to 18, in a conference basketball game, but it took a last-minute rally to bring victory to the Badgers.

Until the last few minutes of play, the leadership see-sawed back and forth. Tenhopen brought his team to within one point of the State men with slightly more than five minutes to play, and Hotchkiss followed with two field goals in rapid succession, to give Wisconsin the lead.

A free throw by Behr brought the Wisconsin tally to 21 and the Badgers held their lead as Ohio State tried a last desperate rally. Both teams played wild basketball in the first half. The score was tied three times during the second half.

WESTERN BEATS CHAMINADE AND RETAINS LEAD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 18.—Western Military Academys basketball team ran rough shod over the Chaminade College five here today, to victory enabling the cadets to remain in the lead in the Preparatory League race. The score was 19 to 11. Less than a game separates the three "prep" leaders at the close of this week's play, with the standings as follows:

	W.	L.	Pc.
W. M. A.	6	1	.857
C. B. C.	7	3	.700
St. L. U. High.	6	3	.700

The Cadets have three more games to play and to win the flag this year they must capture the remaining battles with Christian Brothers, McBride and St. Louis High. The tail end of the schedule favors C. B. C. and St. Louis U. High, since the Cadets must finish the season away from the home floor. Whether Western records in the flag fight will be decided next Wednesday, when the Alton team meets Christian Brothers in St. Louis.

Minus the services of their star forward and captain, Chaffin, who was called to his New York home by the illness of his father, the Cadets had little trouble in putting aside Chaminade. Deimling made a capable substitute for Chaffin and led both teams in scoring with 15 points.

Chaminade had difficulty in locating the basket and counted only two field goals, one in each half.

Had Won 21 Straight.

Hahn's old record was set at New York last year. Tonight's defeat is his first since December, 1926. He had won 21 consecutive races.

Hahn jumped into a two-pace lead at the sound of the gun and held this advantage until the last stretch of the final lap, when Conger pulled abreast of him. It was on the turn and out of sight of the finish line that Hahn claimed the former Iowa State star nudged him off the boards.

Hahn quit the race and walked to the tape protesting at once. It appeared that the judges would take no official action on Hahn's protest; although they were reported in disagreement as to the merit of the claim.

Conger denied that he fouled Hahn. He said he felt Hahn's foot strike his lightly but that that was the only bodily contact in the race.

A new world's record was hung up when Diemund of Missouri set a new championship mark in the 50-yard low hurdles. Diemund cleared the stick in six seconds flat, breaking the old record of 6.6, set by J. J. Eller of Philadelphia in 1915 and tied by Joe Loomis of Philadelphia in 1917.

Taylor, Grinnell, finished second and Ben Taylor of Oklahoma finished third.

A scorching race was run in the 600-yard Shannon Douglas cup event between Epstein of Missouri and Youngman of Kansas. Youngman finally pulled into the lead in the 10-yard finish and won in 1:17 3-5.

Musgrave of Drake was third and Johnson of Nebraska, a favorite, threw a shoe on the first lap and dropped out entirely.

The Georgetown team made up of O'Shea, German, Shotter and Hoctor, won the one-mile college relay, defeating New York University. The time was 3:27 1-5.

Jackson Scholz Wins.

Jackson Scholz of the New York A. C. retained his 300-yard championship by a brilliant spurt at the finish to defeat his clubmate, Jimmy Burgess. Vincent Lally of Columbus Council, Knights of Columbus, was third with Charlie Jennings of the Newark A. C. fourth. The time was 32 2-5 seconds. Not more than three yards separated the leaders at any period in the race.

ONE-MILE RUN—Keith, Oklahoma, first; Manning, Wichita University, second; Slater, Missouri, third. Time, 4:34 2-5s.

WESTERN BEATS CHAMINADE AND RETAINS LEAD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 18.—Western Military Academy's basketball team ran rough shod over the Chaminade College five here today, the victory enabling the cadets to remain in the lead in the Preparatory League race. The score was 42 to 11. Less than a game separates the three "prep" leaders at the close of this week's play, with the standings as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
W. M. A.	6	1	.857
C. B. C.	7	2	.777
St. L. U. High	6	2	.750

The Cadets have three more games to play and to win the flag this year they must capture the remaining battles with Christian Brothers, McBride and St. Louis High. The tail end of the schedule favors C. B. C. and St. Louis U. High, since the Cadets must finish the season away from the home floor. Whether Western remains in the flag fight will be decided next Wednesday, when the Alton team meets Christian Brothers in St. Louis.

Minus the services of their star forward and captain, Challis, who was called to his New York home by the illness of his father, the Cadets had little trouble in pushing aside Chaminade. Deimling made a capable substitute for Challis and led both teams in scoring with 15 points.

Chaminade had difficulty in locating the basket and counted only two field goals, one in each half. The score:

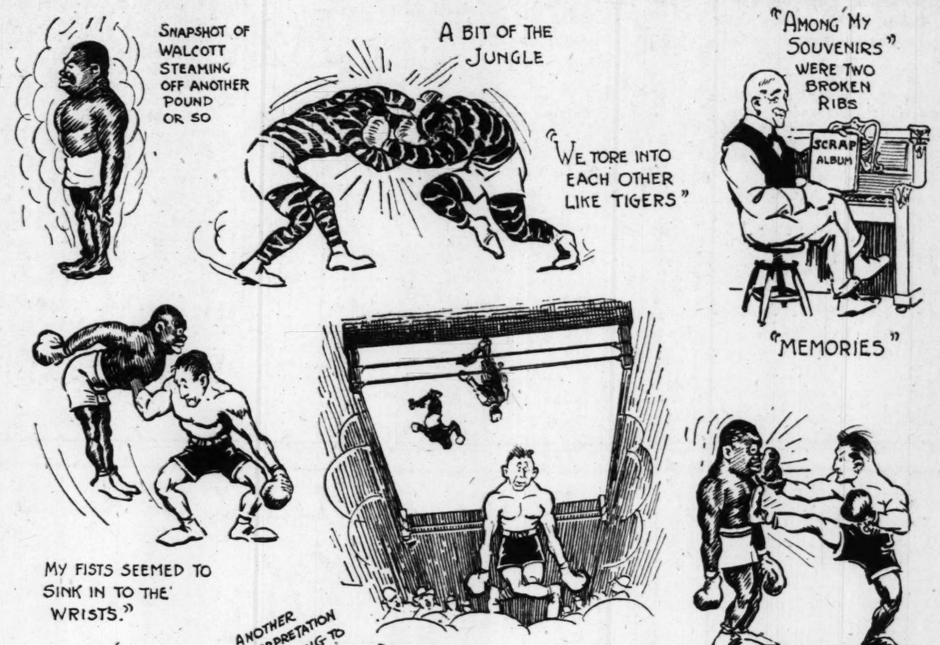
Lavigne Tells of Second Victory Over Walcott, A Bout That Started Him on Downward Path



Lightweight Who Held Title in Days "When Fights Were Fights" Says He Never Had Same Wind or Strength After That Battle.

By George (Kid) Lavigne.
Former Lightweight Champion of the World.
(As Told to E. P. Rucker.)
(Copyright, 1928.)

CHAPTER XV.

I MET Charley McKever, another Philadelphia lightweight," twice. No decision was given in either fight, though in one I beat him soundly. I also met Eddie Connelly, one of the few lightweights who could make the weight limit. He gave me one of my hardest battles. But in the eleventh round I knocked him down five times, and the towel was thrown in.

Now came the hardest fight of my career, my second meeting with that terrible welterweight, Joe Walcott, a battle which marked a turning point for me, the beginning of the end.

I am credited with two victories over Walcott, but I feel I lost the championship through those fearful struggles. I never had the same legs, wind or vitality after that last Walcott fight.

Walcott and I met for the second test in San Francisco, Oct. 29, 1897. I entered the ring at 134. I could have fought at 130. In spite of a training grind, Walcott was overweight at the hour agreed on. He went into a Turkish bath to steam off. He probably weighed around 140 when we started fighting.

Fight Starts Savagely.

I LET go a right which crashed against Walcott's jaw. We clinched, both using rights to the body. I rushed and shot a hard left to Joe's belly. It made him grunt. I followed this with solid smashes to the body. My fists seemed to sink in to the wrists.

Suddenly Walcott caught me a hard right to the mouth and the ring whirled. Then we tore into each other like tigers. I drove Walcott reeling against the ropes. As the round ended, I told Sam Fitzpatrick I was going to stop Walcott.

Newspaper accounts give me the better of the first five rounds. I was on top of the "Barbadoes Demon" every second, driving him to the ropes, staggering him with heavy smashes. I did not escape punishment. I took plenty.

The black dwarf woke up in the sixth. Goaded by his manager, Tom O'Rourke, he cut loose a terrible bombardment. The howl of the mob could be heard for blocks.

But in the seventh I again took the lead, cornered Walcott repeatedly and punished him with sledgehammer jolts. The eighth marked the beginning of the end. Once more I felt the strength of a foe waning. And what strength!

I learned afterward Walcott had complained of cramps in his legs after the seventh round. This was attributed by his handlers to the low weight, but I think the fearful body punishment I gave him had a lot to do with it.

Heads Collide.

ANYWAY, Walcott came up for the eighth session with a limp. At first I thought it was a trick, for Walcott would suddenly bound at me and fight like a tornado. Toward the end of the eighth his rock-like head collided with my forehead, opening a deep cut which bled so it covered me with gore. Walcott, from then to the finish, kept his left pumping against that wound.

Press reports give the ninth and tenth to Joe, although he continued to limp. But even in those rounds I knew Walcott was weakening. I never eased up in my pounding of his body.

In the eleventh I turned loose everything I had. I slugged Walcott from rope to rope. I drove him back on his heels with punches that made me marvel at his gameness and stamina. When that round ended Walcott was barely able to creep to his corner. O'Rourke wanted his fighter to quit then, but Walcott asked for another round.

He fairly ran out of his corner for the twelfth. He started fighting at a terrific pace. He caught me a blinding swing on the head and the arena seemed to turn upside down. Then he drove in a solid left to my body and almost bent me double.

I clinched and shook my head to clear things a bit. Then I threw Walcott off and rushed him to the ropes with hard rights and lefts. He lay against the ropes all but helpless, while I batted his head from side to side, as I had done at Maspeth.

Walcott Reeling.

WALCOTT reeled as he went to his corner. His enormous strength had departed. As I took my stool Fitzpatrick whispered, "He can't last another minute. How do you feel?"

"I'll be damn glad when it's over," I replied.

Just before time for the bell to ring for the thirteenth round a towel floated through the air from O'Rourke as a signal of defeat. Walcott couldn't get out of his chair. He was carried from the ring.

"It didn't end too quick to suit me," I gasped to enthusiastic friends.

I had two fractured ribs as a souvenir of this battle.

Years afterward I met Walcott in Boston. While we were talking in front of his house, several youngsters came up.

"Children," said Walcott, "here's Kid Lavigne, de man who mighty near made orphans out o' you."

be started not later than 10 o'clock.

There will be three preliminary bouts but they are restricted to 30 minutes each. There may be also a minor bout between local middleweights, starting at 7 o'clock, to entertain early arrivals in the unreserved seats.

As to the size of this crowd, which may exert its influence, Promoter Packs last night refused to say that he anticipated a capacity house. It is possible that more than 9000 persons will be inside the building. The gate, in that case would approach $100,000. After expenses have been taken care of, Stecher will receive 50 per cent of the "net" and Lewis 30 per cent.

The largest "gate" thus far in the mat game was recorded at the second Gotch - Hackenschmidt match at Chicago, when there was $78,000 in the park.

Promoters Will Be Here.

Some of he better known figures associated with the promotion of wrestling in various parts of the country, who have made reservations for the match are as follows:

Joe Coffey, Ed White and Doc Krone, Chicago; Jack Curley, New York; Ray Fabiani, Philadelphia; Al Haft, Columbus; Cy Mitchell, Wheeling, W. Launches Move for Stadium

Washington U. Committee to Investigate and Submit Recommendations.

Definte action on a new Washington U. stadium, designed to accommodate many thousands of fans, is indicated in the latest move of the Civic Athletic Association, from which a newly appointed committee of investigation has just been announced. The new committee, headed by Fred Armstrong Jr., local attorney, assisted by W. C. Henning, and A. S. Johnson, was named by Frank W. Swann, president of the organization, following a meeting reported as highly favorable to a stadium drive.

Armstrong stated yesterday that his committee would begin active work Monday in compiling all information deemed essential to consideration of a stadium.

The committee will not, however, undertake any active work on a stadium drive, but will be most active in presenting the information gathered to the parties whom it is determined are the proper agents for such a program.

It is understood that one of the first moves of the committee will be to communicate with Dr. George E. Thropp, chancellor of the university, to ascertain the exact attitude of the administration. According to reports circulated, members of the corporation are favorable to the stadium plans in prospect.

The exigencies of the present Washington U. athletic situation practically demand the expansion which the stadium permits, it was explained. Should the stadium program be culminated successfully, it was indicated, an intersectional schedule program would be a probable outcome.

"We feel that we can't get the right sort of games now without a real stadium," a committee member stated. The present stands on Francis Field were erected in 1904 as part of the athletic equipment necessary for the Olympic games. Seating accommodations provide for only 7500 persons, however, and may be augmented by temporary stands to the extent of double that number. It is pointed out by the committee that the average university stadium provides for 30,000 spectators.

BOB MEINHARDT ROLLS 290 GAME IN PIN TOURNEY

Greeleys and the Roberts Five Tie for Lead in City Scratch Championship Tourney, Score 2866.

A 290 game by Bob Meinhardt of the Drink Whistle team, and a tie for first place between the Greeley Printery and the Roberts Undertaker teams featured the day's play in the St. Louis Scratch bowling tournament at the Delmar Recreation yesterday and last night.

It was not until the last squad last night that the tie for first place developed, each team shooting 2866. On the Greeleys, O. C. Ambrosius and R. Tschampers were the stars, with 630 and 573, while on the Roberts team Andy Leicht shot 617 and H. Exler rolled 605.

The Medarts were third with 2836, the Meletios fourth with 2833 and the St. Clair Recreation of East St. Louis fifth with 2829. This team had a wonderful chance to break into the 3000 column but faded away to a whisper in the third game. Their score for the first game was 1000, and for the second 1005, but in the third game they fell down badly for an 824 total.

Meinhardt, in getting his fine score of 290, opened with a spare and then struck out with 11 straight strikes. He also faltered and came out with a 644 total.

W. Zahrndt was leading in the singles with 643.

Roy Lay with 623, and Ray Newton with 638, totaled 1261 to take the lead in the doubles.

Ray Newton's score of 1907 leads the all-events competition. The tournament will continue throughout this week.

Today's Schedule.

ST. LOUISAN HOLDS ERNIE JARVIS TO DRAW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Ernie Jarvis, British flyweight, and Benny Hall of St. Louis, fought a six-round draw in the main event at the Olympia Club, in Harlem, tonight. There were no knockdowns. Jarvis weighed 117¾, Hall 117.

In another six-rounder, Jimmy McNamara of New York, 133½ pounds, defeated Tommy Gervel of Allentown, Pa., 133¼. Joey Knapp of New York, 157¼, won from Jimmy Moore of California, 157½, in six rounds.

will be on hand at West Palm Beach when the 32 or more athletes assemble there.

The team, stripped of its waning stars of other days, appears even weaker than before; but it will have the advantage of starting with a clean page and beginning life all over again.

It seems a large order for Manager Dan Howley, this year, but he will not be burdened with over optimistic predictions impossible to live up to, as in the past.

The Browns will have a young team and if it happens to get away to a good start and make a showing, the future of the club for several seasons will be assured.

Hope for the Cards.

THE Cardinals are shouldering the burden of popular favoritism. The public, remembering last year's remarkable race in which the local team fought its way to second place despite an almost horrifying series of setbacks, believes that the breaks are due to fall in favor of the team this year. Fans realize that with even one or two fewer misfortunes last year the club would have repeated its flag victory of 1926. They therefore scent another pennant in 1928.

McGraw Low-Spirited.

JOHN McGRAW is very dispirited about our Cardinals. He sees our pitching shot and guesses that Sherdel, Alexander and Haines will prove flops.

That's John's guess, and he isn't such a clairvoyant. A man who guesses that Catcher Hogan is more valuable than Rogers Hornsby doesn't make a hit as a soothsayer.

Muggsy's view of our finish is almost a second division nightmare, and right there we have to part company with him. It not only "looks like first division" for the Cardinals, even with six clubs in the hunt, but it also looks like a one-two finish.

Alexander has been in Florida in advance of the entire team fitting himself for the season.

Haines reached his peak last season and why one should pick him to "flop" this year is beyong understanding.

Sherdel eased up last season, but is too young to be counted out of the running.

Rhem has seen the light and is due for a better season, if he can be signed in time to do spring training. Rhem's failure to report for work early in the training was responsible for the sore arm that handicapped his season all last year.

There are still IFS about the club, to be sure, but they are IFS that last year were cold and unnerving facts, last year. We may sidestep some of them this season.

One has to be a pessimist not to put the Cards in a one-two-three finish. And the professional betting now 2½ to 1, agrees. The bookies pick the Cardinals to finish second to Pittsburg.

MAPLEWOOD DEFEATS NEW LONDON, 40 TO 9

Maplewood High easily defeated New London (Mo.) High in a basketball game last night at Maplewood, 40 to 9. Drissow, Maplewood forward, led the scoring with 17 points, including eight field goals, and Bruno, center, was next with 11 points.

FITZGERALD TO REMAIN IN THE MILLER LINEUP

Foley Still Seeking Better Forward Combination — Meet Tablers Today in League Game.

As a final test before the impending Western semifinal cup game of Feb. 26, the Ben Miller club will oppose the Tabers in a St. Louis Soccer League game at Sportsman's Park today. In the first game of the double-header, the Wellstons and Morgans will meet. The American-Hungarian club of Cleveland will oppose the Milers here next Sunday.

So satisfactory was the showing of "Peewee" Fitzgerald at inside left last Sunday that he will be retained there. The question of filling the cenetr and inside right positions is not quite so simple a problem, however. Joe Hennessy, who has been playing center, looks to be a better inside forward and Bollam, the regular inside right, falls far short of being a good footbal player. Manager Foley has O'Hara, Thumm, Curran, Mulroy, Fitzgerald, Hennessy, Bollam and Nash in his squad of forwards. Nash is almost recovered from an attack of "flu."

George Klund, who broke in at left fullback for the Millers last Sunday, may get another chance in today's game. He looked especially promising.

The Tablers' lineup will be shifted as a result of Jimmy McCarthy's suspension and an injury suffered by Halfback Phelan.

Joe Tuvil may be used at halfback for the Wellstons in the game against the Morgans.

The first game will start at 2 o'clock.

that was expected to disqualify him.

Siske's American bob sleigh team made its run down the chute in one minute 38 9-16 seconds. Belgium was second, Argentina third, England got fourth place and a tie for fifth with Switzerland with John Heaton's Americans next.

Meanwhile the spectators still were pondering whether the weather was going to permit completion of the winter sports program.

As the ski jump was completed the snow was melting fast and there was some doubt whether the competition would be finished tomorrow as scheduled.

Sonja Henie of Norway captured the women's Olympic figure skating championships today with Beatrix Loughran of New York, third.

The results, announced tonight by the judges, gave Mlle. Henie first place with 8 points; Fritzi Burger of Austria, second, with 25; Miss Loughran, United States, third, with 28; Maribel Vinson, United States, fourth, with 32; Cecil Smith, Canada, fifth, 32; Constance Wilson, Canada, sixth, 35.

Miss Vinson was given the fourth position over Miss Smith after three hours of deliberation by the judges. Each was credited with 32 points.

Keeps Your Hair Neat, Rich-looking and Orderly

IF your hair lacks natural gloss and lustre, or is difficult to keep in place, it is very easy to give it that rich, glossy, refined and orderly appearance, so essential to well-groomed men.

Just rub a little Glostora through your hair once or twice a week,—or after shampooing, and your hair will then stay, each day, just as you comb it.

Glostora softens the hair and makes it pliable. Then, even stubborn hair will stay in place of its own accord.

It gives your hair that natural, rich, well-groomed effect, instead of leaving it stiff and artificial looking as waxy pastes and creams do. Glostora also keeps the scalp soft, and the hair healthy by restoring the natural oils from which the hair derives its health, life, gloss and lustre.

Try it! See how easy it is to keep your hair combed any style you like, whether brushed lightly or combed down flat.

If you want your hair to lie down particularly smooth and tight, after applying Glostora, simply moisten your hair with water before brushing it. A large bottle of Glostora costs but a trifle at any drug store.

MUNICIPAL SOCCER SEMIFINALS TODAY AT FAIRGROUND PARK

Two Clubs From Fairground, One From Carondelet and One From Sherman Park Contenders

After having struggled to victory through a winter season of mud, snow, rain, and sometimes sleet, four survivors of the Municipal Soccer League race will meet at Fairground Park this afternoon in the semifinal round of the championship competition. If fair weather prevails a crowd of $000 is anticipated, R. W. Tapperson, superintendent of recreation, said today. Seats have been erected around the field and the admission charge of 25 cents will be made to raise funds for intercity games.

Out of a total of 30 teams which contested all season for various group championships, the following four teams survive: Palermos, Angelicas, St. Thomas and Geraghtys. Today's winners will meet in a three-game series starting Feb. 26.

There is scarce any basis upon which one may make a prediction as to the outcome of today's games. In their game of last Sunday, the St. Thomas club displayed a neat passing game in which Johnny Rooney, former star of the Hense's and the Scullins, appeared a dominating influence. Rooney was drafted by the St. Thomas management from the ranks of the Brandts. But the backfield of the Geraghtys may effectively tie up this very clever forward line, in which case a rare battle will develop.

No club in the Municipal League is more colorful than the Palermos, who oppose the Angelicas in the first game of the double-header. They are a team developed through regular stages from playgrounds days, having learned their soccer as juniors at Columbus Square. McDonnell, at center forward, is a good goal getter and a fair all-around footballer, when he's not too selfish. On the other side, a very stout defense will be presented by the Angelicas. This club, under the name of the Morgans, fought a five-game final series with the Killarneys for the championship last season.

Following is today's schedule:

Palermos (Fairground No. 3) vs. Angelicas (Fairground No. 2).

Starting time, 1:15 p. m. Referees, John Cradock and Dick Wall.

St. Thomas (Carondelet No. 1) vs. Geraghtys (Sherman Park).

Starting time, 3:15 p. m. Referees, O. Miller and Harry Donovan.

Time of halves will be 45 minutes. Timer, Tom Lyster.

HANDBALL MEET IN QUARTERFINAL ROUND

Blocker and Gast of Y. M. H. A. defeated Hawe and Daly, unattached, and Weiller and Wolf, Downtown Y. M. C. A., beat Demian and Hemseth, Downtown Y. M. C. A., in matches of the St. Louis Handball Association's doubles championship yesterday on courts of the Downtown "Y." The scores were, respectively, 21-13, 21-7 and 21-5, 21-8.

Quarter final matches will be played tomorrow.

Caspari-Abel Wedding in Setting Of Spring Flowers

The Rev. Dr. John S. Bunting Officiates at Ceremony in Home of Bride's Parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Caspari.

IN a setting of early spring flowers, tulips, jonquils, sweet peas and yellow daisies, arranged in vases against a lattice entwined with wild smilax, Miss Florence Leslie Caspari, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Caspari, became the bride last evening of Dr. Oliver Abel Jr., at the home of her parents, 6951 Kingsbury boulevard. The bridal party descended the stairway and walked through an aisle of satin ribbon to the candle lit floral setting where the Rev. Dr. John S. Bunting of the Church of the Ascension performed the double ring ceremony. The guests were limited to relatives and close friends.

Preceding the bride were her sister, Miss Emily Caspari, maid of honor, Mrs. Clarence Barksdale, formerly Miss Elizabeth Caulfield, as matron of honor, and her young cousin, Virginia Harriet Kirkman of Baltimore, flower girl, and following her were John and Thomas Jr., sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Armistead, small friends and neighbors of the bride, who carried her train. William Warren Crowdus was Dr. Abel's best man, and Charles E. Caspari Jr., groomsman.

Pastel shades of chiffon were chosen for the attendants' gowns. Miss Caspari was in orchid and Mrs. Barksdale, Nile green. The frocks were made in one piece effect with pleated skirts and wide sashes with the ends depending to the floor. At each shoulder was fastened a chiffon streamer. They carried great arm bouquets of spring flowers tied with satin ribbon to match their gowns. The flower girl wore a white smocked chiffon model and carried a basket of spring blossoms.

The bride was gowned in ivory satin with a deep yoke of rose point lace and a draped skirt, caught at one hip. There were long close fitting sleeves. Her court train was of Spanish lace over chiffon, weighted with orange blossoms, and she wore a billowy veil of illusion arranged under a filet of the blossoms. Her flowers were roses and lilies of the valley.

A reception followed the ceremony, and Dr. and Mrs. Abel departed on their wedding trip. They will make their home at 5783 Pershing avenue. The out-of-town guests included Mrs. Walter Kirkman of Baltimore, who came with her daughter; Miss Harriet Caspari, a sister of Dr. Caspari and his mother, Mrs. Charles Caspari Sr.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended Wellesley College for two years. She has served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. Dr. Abel is a graduate of Washington University Medical School and is a member of Alpha Tau Omega and Nu Sigma Nu fraternities.

Historic Culloden Sold.

By the Associated Press.

CULLODEN, Scotland, Feb. 18.—The historic e...te of Culloden, Invernesshire, where perished the last hopes of the Stuarts of ever regaining the English throne, has been purchased by John G. Stuart, business man of Herefordshire. At Culloden, in 1746, 5000 Highlanders, commanded by Bonnie Prince Charlie, were crushed by an English army of 12,000 under the Duke of Cumberland, the brother of King George II. A cairn now marks the site where the fighting was fiercest. The estate was in the hands of the Forbes family for hundreds of years.

Washington's Social Season Nearing End

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—As the social season nears its end with a mad jumble of dancing, dining and opera-going, there is a general air of hilarity in society, and perhaps that is the thing that inspired florists to turn the usual stately floral decorations always used at a Cabinet dinner for the President and first lady into a novel valentine piece at Secretary Work's dinner the other night. And there's a story attached to that.

Secretary Work's dinner, which Mrs. Coolidge was unable to attend because of a cold, was given in the Pan-American Union Building, the square table built about a sunken garden in the Hall of the Americas the most stately chamber to be found in the capital. A great heart was built of red tulips in the center of a bed of yellow tulips, which entirely filled the center of the square about which the table was laid. Just off to the left of the President was a fine, fat cupid, fully three feet high in native undress, who had flung a golden arrow into the middle of the heart.

About the board were arranged square gold baskets of spring flowers in gay colors. Standing like sentinels were tall standards bearing aloft huge Brazilian fern, giving a half canopy effect.

But Dan Cupid? What became of him? He was there as the table stood ready to receive the President, but he was gone when the guests were all seated, for as many as were queried on the subject assert there was no undressed cupid on hand.

However, with or without the god of St. Valentine's day, and naturally one wonders who ordered him removed, the dinner was a splendid success, the only thing marring it being the absence of Mrs. Coolidge.

The visit of Gov. John H. Trumbull of Connecticut and Mrs. Trumbull, and their daughter, Miss Florence Trumbull, reawakened the gossip of a possible engagement between Miss Trumbull and the President's son, John Coolidge. There is even a rumor that there may be a wedding in the White House before the President reaches the end of his term. Miss Trumbull is a wholesome young person with far more liking for athletics than for society. She looked very fit indeed going about the White House in her up-to-date sports clothes.

Several nights of not very successful opera, a carnival ball and other balls of lesser magnitude filled the week with more opera and more balls to come next week and lapsing of social events after Ash Wednesday.

The illness of Mrs. Marshall Field has kept her abroad for a year, but her Park Palace on Sixteenth street has had additions and improvements put on it and she is expected back.

The Vice President and Mrs. Dawes are the most popular of official guests. From now until the end of Congress they will seldom dine at home. Friday night they were guests of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Davis, and Thursday night the Congressional Club will give a reception in their honor. Feb. 27 they dine with Representative and Mrs. James M. Beck of Philadelphia, and March 1 they will dine with Capt. and Mrs. John R. Edie. There will be dinner parties for them in between these.

The usual flood of dinner parties from now on bids fair to be disrupted with congressional night sessions, but it is remarkable how the bevy of bachelor Senators find time to dine out and even to dance. However, the digestive organs of these solons will be given a bit of a rest at least as the five popular bachelors have been joined by a sixth in the person of Senator Bronson Cutting, who is really a New York man but comes from Santa Fe, New Mexico. This group of popular men, who have enough dinner invitations in a week to last them for a month, are Senator Robert J. LaFollette of Wisconsin, Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, and Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland. To be sure, there are two attractive detached dinner guests from Kansas, Senator Charles Curtis and Senator Arthur Capper and other widowers, who are quite as popular as are the bachelors, with Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana quite in the lead as far as popularity goes but the senatorial sextet bears away the palm.

Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose of Kansas, who first came to Washington as the friend of Miss Helen Cannon, daughter of the late Speaker Joseph Cannon, has joined the large group of very wealthy widows who add their meed of interest to Washington society. Strange to say, the greater number of these wealthy widows are Western women, like Mrs. Marshall Fields, Mrs. Robert R. Hitt, Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, Mrs. George Mesta, Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett and Mrs. Richard H. Townsend, with Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mrs. J. Borden Tarriman, from the East.

At the White House the Vice President follows out the conventional up to a certain point—that is marching downstairs with the executive groups, greeting the guests in the Blue Room, and so on, but he soon slips out to a small reception room at the right of the big front door and there, with his inverted pipe, sits and smokes and chats until informed by some one that the reception is about over, when he returns to the Blue Room just as though nothing had happened.

Activities of Society At Resorts in Florida

By the Associated Press.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 18.—The many social events heralding the Washington's birthday regatta and ball, which climaxes the winter season, found their beginning St. Valentine's day, when society donned its best and attended parties galore.

Interesting among them was the formal opening of the Bath and Tennis Club. This boasted no definite motif of cupid and bow, but was none the less a high spot of the week. All its officers had arrived for the event. They included Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., president; Harris Hammond and Edward F. Hutton, vice presidents, and Arthur C. F. Keheler, secretary and treasurer, hosts and hostesses of the evening included Mr. and Mrs. Osborne Howes, Miss Bernice Chrysler, who with Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Chrysler, is at Whitehall, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Van Riper.

When society combines charity and patriotism in the Washington's birthday affair at the Royal Poinciana, Wednesday, it is predicted that a new standard of gaiety and splendor will be set for this outstanding event of the season. The thousands sure to be in attendance will include not only people from every section of the United States but a goodly number of Canadians and a large sprinkling of European dignitaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sloan, with guests, arrived this week by special car and are at the Everglades Club. Mrs. Alfred Fair Vanderbilt comes early next week and among her guests at Whitehall will be Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Markoe Robertson (the former Cordelia Biddle Duke). Dr. and Mrs. A. Hamilton Rice, of Newport, who spent their honeymoon in South American exploration, are here on their yacht Eleanor, to remain into March.

Monday night the third concert of the Society of Arts will see the "Diamond horseshoe" occupied by directors and guests. Boxes will be used by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman and house party, including Madame Charambos Simopolous, wife of the Ambassador from Greece; Mrs. E. H. G. Slater, Mr. and Mrs. George Rasmussen and Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury.

ORMOND BEACH—Newcomers here this week included Sir Clifton Tifton of Toronto, Canada; Dr. Morton Prince of Harvard and Oxford Univerities, and Judge William I. Shaffer of Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Besides the annual St. Valentine's costume ball, outstanding among parties was the "rube dance" given in the barn and stable of the Ormond Beach Hunt Club. The big barn was elaborately decorated with abundant hay and harness and the stable was utilized for special box parties. Society adorned itself to fit the setting.

MIAMI BEACH—Valentine did not pass without its series of masque and costume balls here. Three brilliant events dotted the social calendar, with balloons and souvenirs providing noisy competition for orchestras.

Bridge and dancing combined on a large scale occupied the Monday Club and its guests at the Coliseum. While hundreds of couples danced at this charity event, bridge lovers lined the walls and occupied the boxes, apparently oblivious to the bedlam of the terpsichorean devotees. Society generally turned out, so universal was the appeal, even to the wallflowers.

Ohio won the attendance contest at the All States Club luncheon and card party this week, with a registration of 20 of the 165 guests. Illinois was second with 26 and New York third with 25. Indiana and Michigan tied for fourth with 11 each.

Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, wife of the Chicago artist, spent a day in Miami Beach on the way to "Treasure Island," the McCutcheon winter retreat in the Bahamas. Her two children were with her.

Distinctive afternoon dress worn by a society matron who was assisted in entertaining at tea by her mother was a hard-pleated sport frock of white georgette. The mother wore gray georgette trimmed in lace.

Officers and patrons of the Florida Society of Arts and Sciences attended a private showing of the residue of the estate of the late Princess de Montglyon, De Mercy, Argenteau, in Argenteau Castle Museum, Coral Gables. Original manuscripts by Mozart, one of his chairs and gifts from crowned heads of Europe comprise the collection.

ORLANDO.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was a guest at several social functions here this week. Mrs. Owen said she would begin active campaigning for her race for Congress as soon as her mother, Mrs. W. J. Bryan, returned from a visit to her son in California. Mrs. Bryan will make Florida her permanent home, said her daughter.

CLEARWATER.—One of the foursomes seen almost daily on golf courses this week was composed of Walter McDougal, Hood Valley, Ore.; E. D. McDougal, Chicago; L. S. Fulmer, Cleveland, and Stephen A. Vorhees, Plainfield, N. J., retired vice-president of the National City Bank of New York.

The Belleair Hotel was the scene of numerous functions attended by the social colony here. Mrs. Caleb Fox, noted woman golfer of Philadelphia, was host to a number of friends, including Hale Holden, Chicago, and his daughter, Eleanor.

Trans-Pacific Flight Postponed.

TOKIO, Feb. 18.—The recent refusal of the Japanese Department of Communications to approve the present designs and construction of airplanes for a proposed Japanese trans-Pacific flight this summer is generally understood to mean postponement of the flight for at least another year. At a meeting of the technical committee of the Japan Aeronautical Society, the opinion was expressed that postponement of the flight would be necessary, although no official decision was taken.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

How Well Do You Know It?

KUHS BUICK COMPANY

THE KUHS BUICK COMPANY was organized about six years ago and from a starting organization of approximately fifteen employees has grown to an organization of sixty-five employees. The organization soon outgrew the original building and it was found necessary to erect an additional building in 1925 of approximately 10,000 square feet to take care of the many owners of Buick cars.

In this building, a most modern shop is maintained so as to give the customer the best possible service.

The Kuhs Buick Company have a branch store at 4004 Nat'l Bridge Ave., for the disposal of their used cars, but their main showroom and used car department are located at 2837 N. Grand Ave.

In 1928, the Company delivered approximately 5000 new and used cars and this together with their service, accessory sales, etc., came within a few thousand dollars of reaching the $1,000,000.00 mark.

Every day this space will be devoted to some one particular manufacturing plant or industry which is contributing to the dynamic growth of St. Louis.

E. E. Atkinson & Company, of Minneapolis, has been one of the leading ready-to-wear specialty stores of the Northwest for many years. Two years ago they added the fabric sections, which now — because of difficulties in obtaining leases for necessary expansion of their business — they are discontinuing. Knowing Nugents reputation for fabrics, they gave us first opportunity. We bought the entire assortment — realizing that never before had Nugents had such an opportunity to offer the women of St. Louis.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through you hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Kittredge of Berkeley, Cal., secretary general of the League of Red Cross Societies, is among those invited to meet at Geneva on Feb. 23 to take steps for the creation of an international union for relief for people stricken by disasters such as earthquakes and floods. This union was authorized by an international conference held at the League of Nations last July.

Each nation which is a member of the union will contribute to an initial fund, but close co-operation is provided for with non-official organizations such as the Red Cross.

The American Government was not represented at the July conference, but the American Red Cross sent Kittredge because the proposed union provided for collaboration of Red Cross organizations.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Jumps Around Like a Two-Year-Old—Little Green Capsules End His Rheumatic Pains

Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores Offer 5-Day Trial on Money Back Basis

There's nothing in the World that brings such quick and complete relief from the pain and misery that makes life almost unbearable as those tiny green capsules known from coast to coast as Allenrhu Number 2.

More than one man and woman whom horrible rheumatism has been carrying down to helplessness—suffering the torture of the damned can testify to this.

All you have to do is to take one tiny capsule each hour for the first ten hours the next day one every two hours for 14 hours then take as directed.

Don't think, however, that Allenrhu Number 2 stops at just giving relief. Its continued use for a few days after the pain has disappeared helps banish from your system the poisoning that causes the trouble and thus prevents an early return of the awful torture that makes your very existence a burden.

In spite, however, of all the claims made for Allenrhu Number 2—in spite of the remarkable results obtained by others these little green capsules must prove themselves in your particular case. For that reason Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores and good druggists everywhere have been authorized to make this guarantee: If after taking one full bottle of Allenrhu Number 2 as directed you are not satisfied—go back and get your money.

LEGION TO MAKE CAMPAIGN TO OBTAIN 2300 MEMBERS

Seeks to Increase 1700 Enrollment of Local Posts to 4000 by April 6.

A membership campaign conducted by the 22 American Legion Posts in St. Louis in an effort to increase the present enrollment of 1700 members to 4000, will begin this week and continue until April 6, the anniversary of the entry of the United States in the World War.

There are 62,000 former service men in St. Louis and St. Louis County. The Commanders' Council is in charge of the campaign.

Individual posts are offering prizes to members obtaining the greatest number of applications. The benefits of Legion membership will be broadcast nightly by radio and, in addition, local sports authorities will broadcast brief histories of various sports as an interesting sideline to the membership talks. An advertising cocern has donated 100 large billboards with decorative posters advertising the campaign, which is national.

A party for ex-service men will be given at St. Louis University gymnasium next week on a night to be designated later. The program will include the singing of war songs, vaudeville, movies and refreshments. An amateur boxing program, to be held at Washington University Field House the first week of March, is being arranged by Dr. William Edmunds, former athletic director. The campaign will close with a banquet.

RESERVE AIR CORPS UNIT HERE SUGGESTED

Organization of Squadron at Lambert-St. Louis Field Will Be Considered at Meeting on Monday.

Organization of an active Reserve Air Corps squadron to be stationed at Lambert-St. Louis Field and to be equipped ultimately with a hangar, machine shop and airplanes, will be suggested tomorrow night to flying officers of the regular army, National Guard and Organized Reserves at a meeting at 7 o'clock at Battery A Armory.

To determine how many reserve flyers will be available from St. Louis and vicinity for the proposed organization, Col. E. L. Butts, chief of staff of the 102d Division, has issued an appeal to all flying officers of the reserves to attend and to furnish information on their aeronautical experience.

If sufficient support for the proposal is evident, immediate steps will be taken to have an active unit located here. Late type training planes with radial motors are now in construction for National Guard and Organized Reserve units. Should the unit be authorized, a regular army officer would be stationed here as an instructor.

The meeting for flying officers tomorrow will be held in conjunction with meetings of officers of other branches at the St. Louis University Medical School following a dinner in the school restaurant. At 8:15 the officers will gather in a common meteing to hear Maj. T. H. Middleton, D. S. M., of Fort Leavenworth, discuss battalion tactics in a divistonal attack in open warfare.

EX-MAHARAJAH AND AMERICAN GIRL ON WAY TO BANGALORE

Refuse to Discuss Plans at Madras — Bodyguard Against Photographers.

By the Associated Press.

MADRAS, India, Feb. 18.—Surrounded by a bodyguard of his own men to prevent his arrival being photographed, Tukoji Rao, former Maharajah of Indore, came to Madras today with his bride-to-be, Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash.

The party came from Nuwara Eliya, Ceylon, and maintained silence about their plans. They left this evening for Bangalore, Mygore.

Miss Miller was accompanied by an aunt. She alighted first. Tukoji Rao followed soon after, having made sure there was a wall of his own men between him and the battery of cameras.

It appeared that objection has been taken to the describing of Tukoji Rao as a former Maharajah of Indore. One of his party said that, according to the best legal opinion, this was libel and only Tukoji Rao's generosity prevented him from initiating such proceedings.

FRANCE TO CENSOR U. S. FILMS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—American movies will have to undergo a strict censorship under a decree which the French Government has decided upon to control screen production. Minister of Education Herriot announced today that the decree would institute for motion picture houses in France the same regulations as govern other theaters. A new censorship committee will be set up composed of 16 Functionaries, seven film producers and seven film artists.

Herriot said that it was not the intention to hinder the importation of American films, but simply to give French producers a chance. He said that American films produced in America paid for themselves before being sent abroad resulting in disadvantage to the competing French firms. This requires correction, he concluded.

When Newer Styles Are Shown, Sonnenfeld's Will Show Them

By Shirley Dare

NEW . . . fascinating word . . . allied with smart and applied to women's apparel . . . is invariably associated with Sonnenfeld's. And rightly so, for the store's policy of presenting the New and Smart simultaneously with their Paris originations warrants the reputation. The sketches below indicate the style trend for Spring.

other baku hats are priced from $18 to $48

glistening cellophane

THE fascinating quality of this rough, but supple straw, with its glistening finish, is dramatically illustrated in the black cloche with upturned brim of felt. The lower, rounder crown is exceedingly smart. $22.

ballibuntl with felt

BALLIBUNTL in fashionable natural color, partially covers its crown with dark felt in the hat with one side wider than the other, after the manner of Reboux. The irregular brim-line is as flattering as it is new. $35.

Well known speakers from many parts of the country will address the noonday services from 12:05 to 12:30. Organ recitals by Daniel Philippi, Cathedral organist, will be given every day from 12:30 to 1 o'clock.

Russell Bowie of Grace Church, New York, March 12 to 16; Bishop William F. Faber of Montana, March 19 to 23; Bishop F. B. Howden, of New Mexico, March 26 to 30, and Dean William Scarlett in Holy Week.

To Find Out Who Started War.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—"Who started the war?" is going to be settled, at last, to the satisfaction of France, anyway. It was getting to be as hot a subject of debate as "who won the war?" Three of France's most eminent [illegible] historians and strategists have been appointed by the Government to dig up all necessary documents and to ascertain how it all happened.

Mussolini on Washington

Italian Dictator, in First Article in English, Finds Interesting Lessons for Posterity in Life of Our First President.

By Benito Mussolini

Published in the Post-Dispatch by Arrangement With the New York Herald Tribune. (Copyright, 1928.)

I ADMIRE in George Washington the personification of those manly virtues and mental faculties which are so eminently the characteristic of the great American people of whom he is called "Father."

His integrity, his generosity, his endurance under adverse circumstances, his huge energy, his sagacity combined with his cool common sense formed the moral power of this great patriot; while his mental gifts—his stupendous memory, that minute attention of his to both great and little things which constituted his genius for system, his infinite capacity for work, his realistic lucidity in the penetration of difficult problems, his patient methods of thought—made him an executive genius worthy of the admiration of all times and all countries. They made him, as well, prototype of the sane and sensible captains of industry of modern America.

His life, like the lives of all those who do not live just to sell alone, is full of interesting lessons to posterity.

His unremitting efforts to make the American people into a real nation and, despite carping criticism, to safeguard what he considered to be the true interests of his country regardless of his own popularity, must surely awaken the interest of the Italy of today whose own outstanding task is to consolidate in the consciousness of her people and maintain before the world her own national unity, which has but recently been perfected.

Agrees With Washington.

But in addition to my admiration for George Washington, I am moved by the breath of fellow feeling when in the writings of your great countryman I strike such passages as the following:

"The men, who oppose a strong, energetic government, are, in my opinion, narrow-minded politicians or are under the influence of local views. The apprehension expressed by them that the people will not accede to the form proposed is the ostensible, not the real cause of opposition."

"The difference in conduct between the friends and foes of good government is that the latter are always working and distilling their poison, while the former are depending, oftentimes too much and too long, upon the sense and good disposition of the people to work out their conviction and neglect the means of effecting it."

George Washington hereby expressed his realization that procrastination in difficult political situations can be the thief not only of time but of efficacious reform as well.

No student of George Washington's life can fail to be impressed by the fact that this sensitive high-minded man realized the danger to constructive government from attacks by the press.

Knew Danger of Attacks.

"If the government and the officers of it are to be the constant theme for newspaper abuse, and this too without condescending to investigate the motives or the facts, it will be impossible, I conceive, for any man living to manage the helm or to keep the machine together," he wrote.

In President Washington's first Cabinet, with Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton as members, the Cabinet meetings, Washington's biographers relate, became mere debating societies. So that Washington himself wrote Pickering: "I shall not . . . bring a man into any office of consequence knowingly, whose political tenets are adverse to the measures which the general government is pursuing."

This was afterward adopted as the principle of the government of the United States. And it has also been adopted by the national government of Fascist Italy.

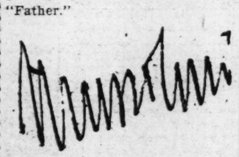
What living American would indorse today the opinion of one of Washington's most bitter adversaries who had the audacity to declare: "If ever a nation was debauched by one man, the American nation was debauched by Washington; if ever a nation was deceived by one man, the American nation was deceived by Washington. Let his conduct be a warning to the future ages."

Washington's Fame Secure.

Yet the "future ages," like the great majority of his sensible and affectionate contemporaries, failed to heed the warning of this "politician." With imperturbable attachment, with profound veneration and with that decorum of spirit which characterized Washington himself and was the natural outcome of his deep-rooted, passionate regard for law and order, those "future ages" united each year in the celebration of the birthday of this magnanimous, cool-minded, unassuming man who throughout all the storms and crises strove to represent his nation as an indivisible whole, never failing in his vision of the government he was building up for the generations to come after him nor in his faith in the people who had the common sense and intelligence to appreciate his aims.

A much maligned philosopher, Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche, whom George Bernard Shaw has called "a saint," once said: "What life has promised us we will fulfill to life."

This remarkable nineteenth century definition of the sense of duty and the sense of historical destiny without which no statesman can be great and without which no people can be self-respecting was and is realized and fulfilled by President George Washington as well as by the great people of whom he was the "Father."



THIS is Mussolini's first article in English. It is significant that he chose for this effort a discussion and a tribute to George Washington, who in the eyes of the Roman dictator is "the greatest American of them all."

Five years ago when Mussolini made his triumphal entry into the Eternal City he knew no English. Today he speaks it with very little accent and writes it with characteristic vigor.

In the midst of reorganizing Italy, of remaking the laws, of firing a nation with a new spirit, establishing new relations with the rest of the world, Mussolni has concentrated a part of his time and his mind on the mastery of two important languages—English and German.

"Through language we learn people," were his own words.

In the beginning of his administration ambassadors brought their interpreters. Each day saw a constantly increasing flood of important people from all over the world waiting in line at the Palazzo Chigi.

Mussolini worked on his French and soon was able to deal directly with the diplomats. But he was at a disadvantage in other languages, especially in English, of which he knew virtually nothing.

Decides to Learn English.

BRITISH COMMISSION STUDIES PROBLEM OF LARGER SELF GOVERNMENT IN INDIA

Group Headed by Sir John Simon, Sent in Accordance With 1919 Act of Parliament, Has Task of Reconciling the Many Religious and Caste Differences in Reporting on Capacity for Self-Government.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.
War-Time Premier of England.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

THE Simon Commission will ever be a towering landmark in the history of the East. Its decisions will, directly or indirectly, affect the destiny of a vast country with an area of 1,800,000 square miles and a population of well over 300,000,000. It will determine whether the experiment shall finally be made of adapting Western ideas of Democratic self-government to an Eastern civilization which has never in the past attempted to put those notions into practice.

The people of India have, since the dawn of history, been governed autocratically. Public opinion has made itself felt by such methods as are available in states despotically ruled. Today, there are more than 300 native states in India—some of them of considerable size, some of them minute—with an aggregate population of 72,000,000, which are governed by despots with no check upon their authority beyond that which is exercised, in the case of gross misgovernment, by the British Viceroy, acting in the name of the King-Emperor.

Move for Freedom Begun by Students

The movement for self-government in India began some years before the war. It was not a popular movement in the sense that it rose from the people. It was started by a number of lawyers and students, whose moving impulse was not so much the application of Western theories to their native country as the emancipation of their native land from foreign rule. There is practically no movement for self-government in the native states, although the people in those states have no voice in the making or administration of the laws by which they are governed.

The great war gave a notable impulse to the movement. There was a resurgence of national spirit all over the world. In Europe, it took the form of a demand for complete national independence by races which had been submerged for centuries. Czechs, Croats, Letts, Poles, Lithuanians, and others, all clamored for complete freedom from external control.

President Wilson crystallized this demand into the phrase "self-determination." That phrase itself was largely responsible for the encouragement and acceptance which the movement received in all quarters. Its impulse could not be confined to Europe. It swept over China and India and is accountable for the restlessness which has disturbed the serenity of the thronging populations of those ancient civilizations.

Concession Sets Up Provincial Legislatures

In 1919, a concession was made by the British Parliament to the desire of the educated classes of India for a measure of self-government. Separate legislatures were set up in each of the provinces, with a central legislature covering the whole country. The franchise was more liberal than that enjoyed by Englishmen themselves at the beginning of or even far into the nineteenth century. The powers conferred on these legislatures were rather those of criticism, suggestion and delay than of initiative.

In practice, the restricted powers have proved to be very effective in enabling the Indian representatives to impose their views upon the executive. But they do not satisfy the leaders of Indian opinion, who will be content with nothing less than full and unfettered powers of decision such as are enjoyed by all the free parliaments of the world.

Future of Government Left to Commission

When the 1919 act was passed, it was avowedly experimental. A pledge was given by the British Government that the position would be reviewed once more at the end of 10 years. Hence the Simon Commission. It has been appointed to report, in accordance with the 1919 act, "as to whether and to what extent it is desirable to establish the principle of responsible self-government, or to extend, modify or restrict the degree of responsible government already existing," and also, "on any other matter affecting British India and the provinces which may be referred to the commission by His Majesty."

The whole field, therefore, of the future government of India lies open to the commission, subject always to acceptance of British overlordship. The commission has the active backing of all parties in this country, which means that its recommendations will be treated on their merits by any government which happens to be in power when the time comes to deal with them.

SIR JOHN SIMON

The disappointing feature of the situation is that the leaders of the popular parties in India so far have met the commission with rebuff. Some of the independent provinces have shown they are eager to give support. The Maharajah of Bikaner, while making it clear that interference in the internal affairs of his state would be strongly resented, condemned the boycott as the height of folly.

Both the Indian National Congress and the Indian National Liberal Federation have passed resolutions refusing to have anything to do with the commission on the ground that it is a purely British body and that India is not represented on it. Even the publication of Sir John Simon's conciliatory statement, on his arrival in India, defining the procedure of the commission and inviting representatives of the Indian Assembly to a joint conference after they have taken evidence separately or, under certain conditions, conjointly, does not seem to have modified the hostility of these bodies.

Objectors Denounce Method of Choosing

Their main objection to the Simon proposal appears to be that the Indian representatives at a joint conference would be chosen by a body which is not exclusively Indian but contains nominees of the British Government.

This objection ought not to be insuperable and negotiations may end in removing the boycott.

But removal of the boycott is not the end of the task—it is only the beginning. As one Nationalist paper points out, the Indians "will agree to nothing, accept nothing and co-operate with nobody" on any other terms but that they shall have a decisive voice in settling their own future. That seems a very simple and, to the Western mind, a very attractive proposition. But its application to India is not so easy. There are inherent difficulties in the problems with which the commission is confronted which are well nigh insuperable.

India is not and never has been a nation. Its inhabitants are not and never have been one people. There are several nations which, as Lord Curzon once said, are as remote from each other in race, language and religion as an Irishman is from a Turk. There are at least 20 different languages spoken between Kashmir and Travancore. They are not dialects of the same tongue but are as different as French is from German.

Religious Differences Cause Much Trouble

A still greater practical difficulty arises from the fact that religion divides the people into separate and often hostile communities in a way for which there is no precedent or comparison in any other country. Hindu and Moslem, living side by side, view each other with an antagonism which often breaks out into riot. To preserve peace during the frequent outbreaks of religious rivalry and jealousy strains the resources of government.

The Hindus number 216 millions and the Mohammedans 68 millions. Where one of them predominates, the other exists only through the protection afforded by British authority. It is an ancient feud and time does not assuage its ferocities. There is such a chasm between the members of these rival sects that they vote in separate communities for the return of members to the legislative assemblies. Any attempt to effect a change in this respect by placing the franchise on a national basis would be resisted by one, if not by both, of these powerful religious organizations.

It works all right because justice and order are in charge of the British authorities, but the Mohammedans would view with horror any arrangement by which the preservation of law and order would be left entirely to the Hindu majority and vice versa. In the native states, autocracy finds it pays to be impartial and in the end democracy would find that equality of treatment would best serve its interests. The majority, however, dread the interval before the lesson is learned.

Lloyd George Considers Members Best That Could Be Chosen, but Points Out Far-Reaching Responsibilities They Bear in Carrying on Work Among Millions Beset by Varying Aspirations.

Caste System Also Presents a Difficulty

Then there is the deepest trouble of all—that which comes from the caste system. There are millions so low in the social scale that they are branded as "untouchable." Are the privileges of self-government to be enjoyed by them? These are some of the perplexities of the Indian situation which Sir John Simon and his colleagues have been set to unravel. Will they succeed?

It depends on three men—Sir John Simon himself, the Viceroy and Lord Birkenhead, Secretary of State for India. A few words on the character of these decisive personalities will illustrate what I mean.

The Viceroy, Lord Irwin, belongs to the best type of the English upper classes. His father, leader of the Anglo-Catholics in the Church of England, has as his ambition to see the Church of England back in communion with Rome whilst preserving its national independence. He is imbued with more than a touch of fanaticism.

His son is of a calmer type. He is an upright man with a keen sense of patriotic duty. He is intelligent without being intellectual. He sees straight and acts straight. It is a great advantage that he is entirely free from obstructive prejudices. But he has more sedentary wisdom than initiative originality or resource. He is a man whose serene courage will be invaluable if a bold plan is submitted to him.

Lord Birkenhead a Man Without Fear

The second distinguished figure who will influence the decision and action is Lord Birkenhead. His courage amounts to audacity. He is fearless. When he has made up his mind to take a certain course, he will not be turned back by the resistance of friend or foe. He is loyal to his associates at all hazards. His brilliant career as Lord Chancellor marked him as a man of real judgment. He was undoubtedly the greatest Lord Chancellor of his generation. But it is only those who have sat with him in Cabinets who know how wise he is in council.

As to the members of the commission itself, no more fair-minded body of men could have been chosen. It is a conspicuously fair commission. But I cannot see any of them actively helpful in seeking out solutions.

The ablest member, apart from Sir John Simon, is Mr. Hartshorn. He is a miners' leader whose speeches on coal have been distinguished by knowledge, lucidity and moderation. Outside that question, his natural modesty has not permitted him to travel. But he will be an able juryman when a proposition is submitted to him.

Other Members of Simon Commission.

Mr. Lane-Fox, another member of the commission, is a typical English squire—which means that he is more intelligent than he looks.

Lord Burnham is an able, broadminded and moderate man. He is a Jew but possesses more of the caution than of the enterprise of his race.

But first and foremost, everything depends on whether Sir John Simon will rise to this great occasion. No one doubts his capacity. He has brilliant gifts. He is one of the most eminent living members of the English bar. He differs from the famous advocates of the past in that he lacks passion and knowledge of the common man in the jury or witness box. He is at home with judges or in disentangling figures or in unravelling complicated facts and making them plain. He threads his way with feline tread through legal subtleties.

But he has hitherto shown no gifts of leadership, no power of understanding or of handling men. He is more remarkable for his caution than for his intrepidity. His courage is of that highly guarded kind that concentrates on avoiding risks. But no man can attain his eminence in two such combative professions as law and politics without possessing much stoutness of heart.

His professional success has militated against his embarking on the high seas of politics. He could not sail far from the law courts, so politically he has hitherto stuck to the coasting trade. He has always been within sight of land and within reach of a convenient harbor. This is his first ocean voyage. It is a voyage of discovery into seas not altogether

How England Controls Electric Power, Fixing Rates, Limiting Dividends in Public Interest

National "Gridiron" System Cuts Out Waste Service—Stations Closed Are Paid for but Not on Reproduction New Valuation.

By THOMAS O'CONNOR
Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Feb. 18.

WHILE Congress debates and orders the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the electrical industry, England goes ahead through its newly created National Electricity Board with the project of developing a "gridiron" system of generating stations and transmission lines to carry cheap and abundant supply of electrical energy all over Great Britain.

The story of what England is doing was obtained by John H. Fahey, a Worcester, Mass., publisher, and former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Fahey, who has long been interested in electrical development, visited England last summer and made a personal investigation of the developments in that country.

Fahey conducted the case against the Worcester Electric Light Co. which resulted in an order by the Massachusetts Public Utilities Commission to the company to reduce its residential rate from 7 to 5 cents a kilowatt hour. The company obtained an injunction in the Federal District Court and the case is likely to go up to the United States Supreme Court. The Worcester case is looked upon as the test case affecting rate regulation over the entire country.

England's Electricity Problem

"When in England last summer I had an extended interview with Sir John Snell, technical adviser to the National Electricity Board," Fahey said. "Sir John Snell is one of the great electrical authorities of Europe.

England has definitely formulated a national policy in regard to the generation and transmission of electricity which cannot fail to command our attention here in America. The National Electricity Board was created by act of Parliament passed in 1926 and made effective last year.

Sir John Snell reviewed the investigations made by direction of Parliament, the outcome of which was the creation of the National Electricity Board. He sketched the program of the board, which is to develop a great "gridiron" system of generating stations and transmission lines for the country with the credit of the Government at its back.

"The technical scheme outlined to carry the program into effect calls for an outlay of 250,000,000 pounds sterling (about $1,250,000,000) in the next 15 years," Fahey said.

Board in Absolute Control.

"This bold and far-visioned program has been adopted because England has come to the conclusion that the fundamental need to enable its industries to meet international competition is a cheap and abundant supply of electrical energy for its industries and its people: The board purposes to carry electricity into every factory and every hamlet.

"The board has absolute power over the interconnection of generating plants, the shutting down of old plants and the creation of new ones. It has authority to use the credit of the Government to build transmission lines. It has the power to say to either a private or municipal plant in any locality: 'Your plant is not efficient, you cannot make electricity as cheaply as it can be supplied from a distance and you must therefore shut down your plant. We will pay you what you have put into it plus five per cent and we will order a company to deliver current to you at a price which we shall fix and you will continue to distribute it with your present system.'

"The rates which may be charged are under complete control of the board. England is developing this great gridiron system because of the conviction after 10 years of investigation that this step must be taken in the interest of the business prosperity of the country and allow its people to live under decent conditions. The executive committee of the British railroads and the most conservative business interests in England supported these far-reaching plans after years of discussion and investigation.

To Close 432 Stations.

"When the technical scheme of the board is carried through, the transmission system will be fed by a total of 58 generating stations, of which 43 are already in existence. Under the plans of the Board, 432 existing small generating stations, public and private, will be closed down eventually and the owners will be reimbursed upon the basis of their investment.

"There was no talk whatever of reimbursing the municipality or the private company on the basis of the reproduction value of the property. The board, in buying electricity from the generating stations, will pay the owners, whether public or private, six and one-half per cent on their investment, calculated upon the capital put into the enterprise and the actual operating costs. The board will in turn sell the electricity over the gridiron system of transmission lines at cost price plus an allowance for the expenses of the board.

Dividend Limited to 8 Per Cent

"The plants, municipal and private, selling direct to the factories, commercial establishments and householders are to have their dividends regulated by the London sliding scale under which the dividend is limited to 8 per cent. The standard dividend is even lower and may not be increased unless at the same time the charge to the consumer is reduced. And the dividend is calculated upon the capital paid in, not upon the theory urged by some companies in America—the alleged reproduction value of the property.

"There is of course no constitutional question raised in England and no question as to the invasion of the sovereignty of local government. The question of the conformity of the British act with English law was settled in the House of Lords before the act was passed. There is consequently no judicial obstacle to the carrying through of this great constructive program."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

Boyd Gurley and the Indianapolis Times.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BOYD GURLEY, editor of the Indianapolis Times, after many months of intensive and constant work in exposing political corruption in Indiana, is taking a vacation.

He selected this particular time because it coincided with the trial of Gov. Ed. Jackson on charges of political conspiracy, charges which Gurley himself brought forth and on which Jackson was indicted.

It is a policy of the Indianapolis Times and of all Scripps-Howard newspapers, not to try cases in those newspapers.

After giving full credit to Gurley's service in the past, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in an editorial of February 9, seized upon the fact that Gurley has gone on a vacation to draw a conclusion so absolutely illogical and unwarranted that I feel called upon to protest and to ask that the protest be published.

The editorial, entitled "The Proof of the Pudding," declares that Gurley's absence is the outgrowth of the recent Scripps-Howard declaration in behalf of Hoover, and then goes on to say:

> It is said that the fact that the Scripps-Howard newspapers had decided to support Herbert Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination had something to do with the change. Will H. Hays, movie czar, and James P. Goodrich, former Governor, are said to have told Roy Howard, chairman of the Scripps-Howard board, that it would be unseemly for the Times to continue exploiting the political troubles of the Republican party in Indiana.
> If this is true the Scripps-Howard papers have already paid a frightful price for their interference in partisan politics. They have repudiated the most commendable action which has lately been associated with their name.

I am glad to see that you used the important qualifying clause, "if it is true."

As to that, it is not true.

Neither Will Hays nor James P. Goodrich has spoken to or communicated in any way with Roy Howard, Boyd Gurley, or anyone else connected with the Indianapolis Times about Scripps-Howard presidential policies as such policies relate to the Indianapolis Times and Indiana's political corruption.

Just why a journal as great and as influential and as sane, usually, as the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, should construct on the feeble foundation of an overworked editor's first vacation in two years, a theory such as that, is a puzzle too deep for me.

But because I realize that some of your readers, having as they do much faith in the editorial expressions of your newspaper, may have been impressed with what was said, I want to ask that you who published and all those who read the editorial in question watch the Indianapolis Times from now on and see whether that editorial's conclusion was justified.

How to Get Arrested in Indiana

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

OWING to the death of a relative we were compelled to take a trip of four days to Terre Haute, Indiana. We were under the impression that we had until March 1 to get a 1928 license. When we arrived in Indiana, we were arrested and our car held in the police garage and we had to go all the way back to Illinois and apply for a license before we could get our car. The policeman said they were picking up all cars of other states not having 1928 licenses. I understand you in St. Louis have until March 26 to get 1928 licenses, but that makes no difference in Indiana. Go there with a 1927 license and you'll get arrested. DISGUSTED.

Would Boycott Standard Oil.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I SUGGEST as a mere matter of public retribution that the public cease to patronize the Sinclair Oil Co. and the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana on account of the shameless, unprincipled conduct of the chief officials of those companies.

There is no other method that would have such a wholesome effect upon the arrogant overweening wrongdoers as boycotting by the public the business of the two outstanding oil companies in the United States.

The public has small opportunity of showing how these men in high places have outraged the public conscience. A temporary boycott by the public would certainly effect the speedy removal of the officials in charge of the management of those companies, who are directly and remotely connected with the great crime committed against public morals and public decency.

I am the owner of an automobile and I will drive a mile or two miles, if necessary, to buy my supplies from one of the many oil companies or petroleum companies that has no connection with the "great steal."

O. E. KENNEDY.

MR. COOLIDGE SAYS NOTHING.

Why does not Mr. Coolidge say what he ought to say about the oil scandals? The thing has gone to a point where Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr., has felt it necessary to take a stand upon the side of the government. Great Republican journals like the Chicago Tribune and the New York Herald-Tribune have become as outspoken in denouncing the scoundrels who betrayed the country as Democratic newspapers are. The district federal court in California, the federal court of appeals in the third district, the United States Supreme Court, have all denounced with undisguised indignation the men who corrupted the government and robbed the navy of its oil reserves. When a sentimental jury freed Doheny, and Sinclair broke up his own trial and that of Fall by setting the Burns Detective Agency upon the jury, the whole country emphatically expressed its resentment. When the fraudulent Continental Trading Company was taken up again to fill the news with a series of dramatic exposures in which some men fled and others defied the government, and in which it was learned that the crooked Continental deal by which Fall was bribed even served to pay some of the expenses of the Harding-Coolidge campaign, the Republican party itself adopted the obvious strategy of repudiating the Harding administration.

But Mr. Coolidge says nothing. He sat in the Harding cabinet with Daugherty, Denby and Fall. He presided over the Senate when La Follette introduced his resolution, to which the Wisconsin senator spoke two hours. He sat there when Senator Kendrick of Wyoming read into the record letters and telegrams which cast the gravest suspicions upon the manner in which the reserves had been swung out of the government's possession into that of the two biggest oil pirates in the country.

Like everybody else in the Senate, Mr. Coolidge knew all about what had happened. The two senators were unsparing, and they have since been borne out by courts from the Pacific coast to the Potomac. Yet when he became president Mr. Coolidge retained in his cabinet both Daugherty and Denby, and as the investigation proceeded he never turned his hand over to aid or abet it. From that time to this he has never done so. After the investigation began he had Doheny at the White House for tea and spent, according to the latter's testimony, a half hour with him in the smoking room.

"It was not a business call," said Doheny. "We were just invited to take tea."

Public opinion, and not Mr. Coolidge, forced Daugherty and Denby out and compelled the government to appoint Messrs. Roberts and Pomerene to prosecute the men who had betrayed it. Mr. Coolidge has been from the outset of that drama, through a crisis without precedent in Washington, a passive, frightened, silent spectator. It was not until he spoke at a dinner in New York, April 22, 1924, that he mentioned or alluded to the whole dreadful matter. He said then, apropos the greed and corruption which followed the war:

> From all of this sordidness the affairs of government, of course, suffered. In some of it a few public officers were guilty participants. But the wonder is not that this was so much or so many, rather that it has been so little and so few. The encouraging thing at present is the evidence of a well-nigh complete return to normal methods and a sane public opinion. The gravity of guilt of this kind is fully realized and publicly reprehended. There is an exceedingly healthy disposition to uproot it altogether and administer punishment wherever competent evidence of guilt can be produced. That I am doing and propose to continue.

Since this milk-and-water pronouncement, this incredible slight upon the whole effort to purify the public service, he has not opened his mouth upon the subject. During the following summer Harry M. Blackmer, one of those who had fled to Europe to avoid telling what he knew, contributed $5000 of the Continental loot to the Coolidge-Dawes presidential campaign. It has been found that Sinclair put another $75,000 of the same loot into the deficit remaining from the Harding-Coolidge campaign. What does Mr. Coolidge think of all this? Why does not he say something? He talks about everything else under heaven and on earth. He has sent messages to Congress upon subjects trivial by comparison with this not only important but truly perilous matter. We know what he thinks about flood control, about Latin-America, the World Court, tax reduction, the navy, the attitude of the press, brokers' loans, etc., etc.

Does he think the government ought to be honest? If so, why does not he take his stand upon that side with all the strength that is in him and all the moral power of his great office?

WHY McADOO?

William G. McAdoo, it is said, may begin performing in the manner of Finnegan. That is, he may get back into the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. His friends, says the New York Times, are urging him to do so.

Those friends, to be sure, are the same old standbys who have regarded McAdoo as their white-headed boy ever since he hove into view as a presidential possibility. They are people who think that the Constitution is just the eighteenth amendment and the laws of the land are just the dry laws, and people who think the Pope wants to leave the Vatican and take up residence in the Blue Room. Ever since McAdoo resigned his aspirations they have been bewailing the lack of a white hope.

Yet right under their noses they have a champion who dwarfs McAdoo as the highest Alp dwarfs an Ozark mound, a champion vastly superior in blatancy and bellicosity. Why cry for McAdoo when Heflin is handy and willing?

WHERE THE WOMAN PAYS—HEAVILY.

The car was so crowded, witnesses said, that the girls, sitting on the knees of the students, were all thrown into the street.—Associated Press dispatch from Chicago.

One of the girls in the overcrowded machine was hurled through the windshield and killed instantly. Any cub reporter, who has covered the city hospital receiving room "run" in the hours when Saturday night emerges uproariously into Sunday morning, can visualize the rest. Ambulances banged up to the doorway, stretchers were slid down out of the darkness of the cars and into the white receiving room, each bearing the form of a girl. Faces were ripped ruthlessly by glass, so that it seemed impossible to remold them into human form, noses were scrushed, hair awry, and through it all an undertone of tremulous weeping as consciousness began to return.

Every Sunday morning the receiving room of a city hospital gets its quota of automobile accident cases. Usually the victims are girls. Girls sit upon the boys' laps in crowded machines. When the crash comes, momentum carries them on at the speed at which they were traveling, through glass or into coachwork. It is a terrific price to pay for a ride. The boys, better anchored in the seats, rarely are seriously hurt. They sit in the waiting room of the hospital, owlish from liquor, dazedly feeling a bump on the forehead. A superfluous policeman stands guard in the doorway. Well, they can get bond.

A few hours' visit to a receiving room early Sunday morning would cure any girl of taking a joy ride.

WHEN IS ART LABOR?

The Minister of Labor in Great Britain has a hard job on his hands. Under the law which forbids foreigners to take jobs that English labor can fill, he must decide what is labor in the work of an actor. He has forbidden Miss Alden Gay to appear in a play. She says this is the third time she has been forbidden to play. An official says the law is being tightened up.

It is explained by the Ministry that high-priced foreign performers, with distinct individualities, would not be barred. The line is drawn at the salary. Over $100 is art. Under $100 is labor.

In the old days, everything connected with dramatic production except the work of stage hands was regarded as art. Actors and actresses, from the first appearance up, proudly claimed the title of artists. If they were not accomplished artists, they were at least artists in the making. Their art was a profession, and they scorned the designation of labor.

The Ministry refers to an instance in which the managers of the play "Broadway," which was played in London by Americans, said to be indispensable, was played in the provinces with English actors. That's an old trick of managers. In the metropolis the original producers are artists. But on the road, common labor will serve for the performances. The trick does not touch the main point.

Audiences, not the official judges in any department of government, are the best judges of what is art and what is labor in theatrical performances. Overnight an actor or an actress classed as labor in the less than $100 class might become an artist of the $1000 class. Are these budding artists, or even geniuses, to be debarred from the London stage? There may be cases in which a dramatic production is admirably fitted out with players at every point, from the highest to the lowest. It would be a distinct disadvantage to change the cast and to experiment with newcomers, who might be failures.

There is another contingency feared by the English actors and actresses. Suppose the United States should retaliate, and cut out all English performers who are not recognized stars? It would be a sad blow to British talent.

Suppose the policy applied to actors is applied to other forms of art. Suppose artists of all kinds who have not yet made a reputation are debarred from Great Britain and retaliatory laws were set up in other countries. Wouldn't art be in a pretty mess!

A general rule debarring labor and including in the definition all except high-priced artists may seem good on its face, because it opens a few jobs to home talent, but in the long run it will not work very well. Debarring art and skill from a country damages rather than helps it. The free exchange of art and artists and of skillful brains and hands not only in art but in all sorts of craftsmanship stimulates art and skill, elevates taste and contributes to resources and helps all countries.

AN INVISIBLE BEAM.

Bad news for military aviators. A searchlight with an invisible beam has been invented by John L. Baird, an English scientist. For the device it is claimed that it will "pick up" a night-flying airplane and show its image clearly to the operator of the searchlight.

The important feature of all that, for the flyer, at least, is that he will be seen on night bombing raids without knowing that he is under observation. He will not be able to whip his ship out into darkness, as he can when he is picked up by the ordinary searchlight beam. The first notice he will have that he is under observation—provided always that the device really works—will be the bursts of "Archie" shells around his plane.

Thus it becomes quite probable that the night bombing raid, recently considered the most potent development of the new war trade in subduing the population of a belligerent may be successfully resisted by the Englishman's searchlight and its complement of antiaireraft batteries. All of which illustrates once again that for every new attack in the art of war fighting there is always a defense.

COMPENSATION IN MOTOR ACCIDENTS.

Judge Robert S. Marx of Cincinnati, speaking before our City Club recently, made an impassioned plea for compulsory liability insurance for automobile drivers.

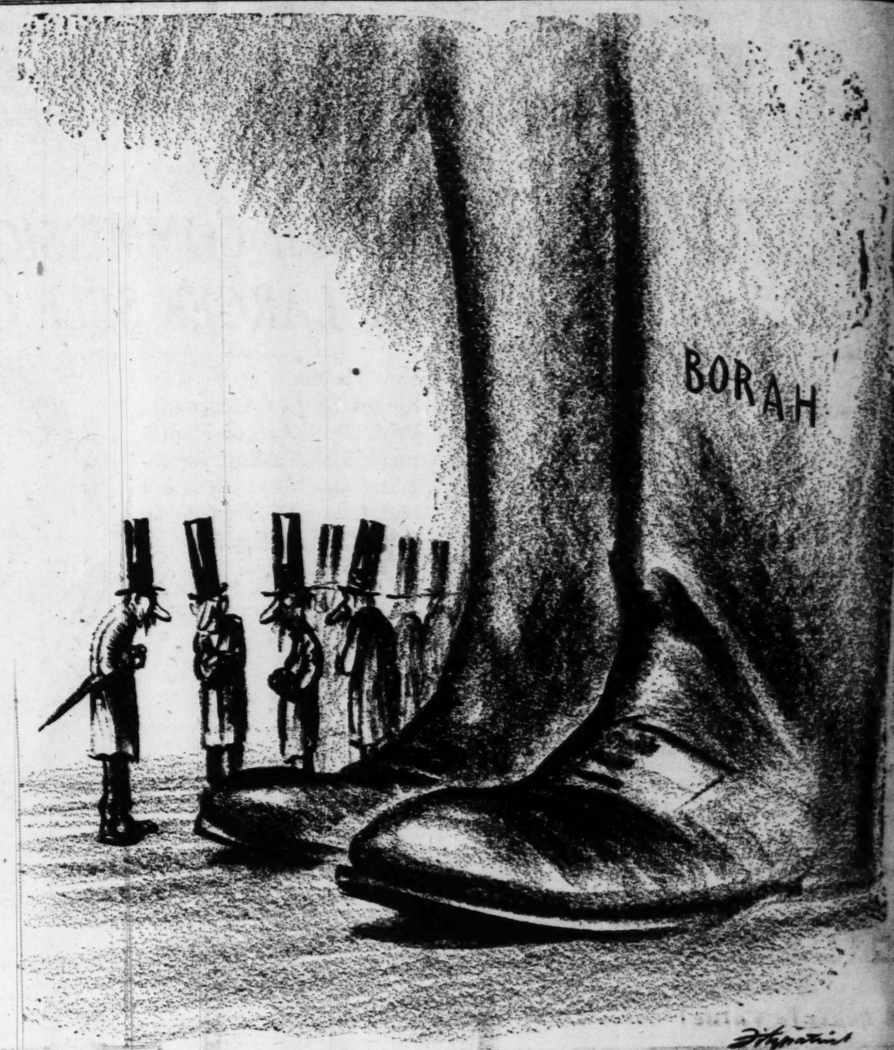
He cited these appalling facts: In 1927 26,000 persons were killed in the United States in motor accidents and 600,000 seriously injured. What compensation the victims or their dependents received was not indicated. An inference may be drawn from the statement that only 16 per cent of our automobiles carry liability insurance.

The personal damage suit as a recourse in such cases is unsatisfactory; in many instances tragically impotent. Industry and society have learned that lesson. In consequence most of our states have workmen's compensation laws.

In this grave situation society is strangely apathetic and the automobile industry, so alert and masterfully progressive in production and salesmanship, has not concerned itself, so far as the public knows, with this pressing problem.

The active opposition to the proposal, as Judge Marx pointed out, comes from the used car dealers and the insurance people. Their attitude is readily understood. The used-car dealer fears, correctly, perhaps, that his market would be restricted. The insurance people's fear that the state would take over their business is not well founded. Judge Marx cited the fact that, in Missouri, the workmen's compensation act has not introduced State insurance or put the private insurance companies out of business. As a lawyer, he believes that a similar law for automobile liability could be enacted.

Another adversary to this proposal is the automobile clubs. How organizations of such high character, commissioned, so to speak, as public counsel, have aligned themselves with the opposition, distresses and mystifies Judge Marx. It also distresses and mystifies the Post-Dispatch.



GULLIVER AMONG THE LILLIPUTIANS.

The Enormously Civilized Minority

A Consideration of Mr. George Jean Nathan's Celebrated Distaste for Things Political.

WALTER LIPPMANN in Vanity Fair

POLITICS: I have no interest in politics. I have too humorous a disesteem for the democratic form of government to be guilty of any such low concern.....

THIS passage is taken from the testament of Mr. George Jean Nathan which he recently set down in the American Mercury for the guidance of his biographer. I should like to say a few words about it. For I take an interest in politics, not merely in the high politics of Downing street and the Quai d'Orsay, but in the politics of Queens County and the price of sewer pipe, and so, while I shall never learn to live as beautifully as Mr. Nathan, I should like to reassure myself that I am not a complete barbarian.

I take courage from the fact that Mr. Nathan's opinion is at worst a case of the pot calling the kettle black. Were Mr. Nathan a mathematician, I should be overawed if he declared that in comparison with the austere elegance of mathematical thinking, politics was a sleazy affair. I should be impressed if he were a philosophical poet, or a Buddhist saint, or an Arctic explorer, or the mother of five slim and handsome boys, or a grower of American beauty roses, or a good and not too rapacious dentist. But Mr. Nathan is a theatrical critic. He is a man who devotes most of his life to considering the New York theater, and that, it seems to me, removes him from the circle of those whose taste is too exquisite for ordinary mortal companionship. A man who can endure all that Broadway has to offer, who can make a life work talking about the Broadway theater, is neither so humorous nor so delicately attuned, but that he could endure the grossness and the stupidity of politics under the democratic form of government. For after all popular government is not wholly contemptible if you compare it with popular entertainment.

I do not agree with Mr. Nathan's opinion that his humorous disesteem for politics is due to his superior taste. I think it is due to an inferior education, to a somewhat lazy incomprehension of what politics deal with, and to an imagination which is defective in dealing with realities that are complex, invisible and elusive. Attending a show is much easier than observing the political scene. The whole story is presented at once, and in less than three hours, whereas in politics the show goes on forever, and all that anyone can watch is an episode here and there. That, of course, makes it difficult to discern the plot and to realize the significance of any one episode in the whole story. In the theater, moreover, the idea has become a story, whereas in politics it remains entangled in the rough confusion of reality. To the mass of men politics are therefore almost never interesting until they can be presented as theater. For the ordinary human mind insists upon the dramatization of events. This is the only form which it finds easily interesting, and where, as in the theater, there is not only dramatization but visualization, imagination is aroused with the least possible effort. So most people enjoy the theater and are bored with politics, not because the theater deals with more interesting characters and situations, but because it deals with them through a more perfect medium of popular expression.

THIS is the reason, I think, why in a smart and pleasure loving society like our own men will spend evening after evening working themselves up over the tinpan emotions of the commercial theater, solemnly discussing ill-considered problem plays and semiarticulate philosophies, while they remain almost entirely oblivious of those great movements of people and of ideas which shape their destiny. I submit that the present debate in England and in America over naval armaments has more intense significance and engages profounder human meanings than any play which Mr. Nathan has reviewed in his lifetime. Its effects will be felt longer. In a thousand subtle ways it will shape more human lives. There is more mystery and terror in it, more prophecy, more poignant tragic possibility. But by the sophisticated classes of whom Mr. Nathan is such an entertaining spokesman, this high debate between the greatest empire and the most powerful republic in human history, is virtually ignored. It passes them by almost as completely as if they were under an anesthetic. They live like peasants, cultivating their own little gardens, amusing themselves with legends, never comprehending, never sharing, the whole invisible unfolding of reality amidst which they exist.

It takes too much original mental effort to find out what lies beneath the trivial surface of political maneuver and political intrigue. In a play a creative mind has intervened between the audience and what William James used to call the blooming buzzing confusion of reality. In politics you have certain reality in the raw. You have perpetually to be on guard against false arrangements of reality, puncturing rhetoric, deflating legends, destroying ideologies, returning again and again to the raw material. In plays you have reality selected, ordered and explained for you, often by a superior mind. You have reality composed inside a frame with a definite beginning, middle and an end. You have the meaning brought into relief, extricated from its qualifications and its contradictions and simplified to a conflict in which you can vicariously participate. All this is much easier and pleasanter and more satisfactory than reading the papers and the documents, listening to speeches and studying statistics. All the sweat it takes to reduce reality to order and significance has been done before Mr. Nathan enters the theater. It has been done, I have no doubt, by men dealing with material as refractory as the material of politics, by men who, if they were as easily stopped by their capacity for humorous disesteem as Mr. Nathan confesses he is, would never write and produce a play. For the spectator and the reviewer the theater is relatively effortless because the creative effort has been done in advance. But when Mr. Nathan picks up a newspaper, he is driven, if he is to make head or tail of it, to know much that is not apparent, to disentangle the sense from the nonsense, in short, to do his own creative sweating.

THERE is nothing morally reprehensible in being too busy or lazy to go to that much trouble about politics in a democracy. Mr. Nathan is free, white and 21, and if he chooses to live in an ivory tower or at a Broadway hotel, as blandly unconcerned as my dog with the historical process of which he is a part, I salute him and pass on. But when he has the brass to make a virtue out of his unconsciousness, noting it down carefully as one more item in the already rather long list of his superiorities, I suggest to him that this is nothing but Philistinism masquerading as high disdain. The Philistine is a man who comforts himself with the notion that there can't be much in anything which he can't get much out of. He can't read poetry so he laughs at poets. He can't enjoy ideas so he snorts at highbrows. If he can't play golf he calls golf chasing a little white pill around a meadow. Whatever he can't do he does his best to show is not worth doing.

Now the art of governing happens to be one of the most difficult arts which men practice. It is more difficult, I think it is fair to say, than reviewing plays. It may even be more difficult than writing plays. At least there have been more masterpieces produced in the theater than in the chancelleries. The art of governing is often practiced by absurd amateurs. Like all the arts, especially the theater, it attracts a host of second raters and fakers. I do not think Mr. Nathan could surprise me with any new stupidity in politics. But when I am told that this art is a low concern, I set down the man who tells me that as just a trifle dumb.

DELIVERY OF LIQUOR NECESSARY TO SALE

Supreme Court Clears Bootlegger Arrested Before Handing Over Flask.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 18.—A proposed illegal sale of liquor, in which the liquor is seized by officers before the transfer of possession of the liquor is made, is not a valid basis of conviction of a charge of selling liquor, Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court ruled today.

The Court held the sale had to be completed by delivery of the liquor before it was a completed sale, and reversed and remanded for new trial the charge against Mrs. Lexie Crumes and her son, Floyd, Negroes of Lincoln County. The mother had been sentenced to nine and the son to 14 months in jail, on conviction of selling liquor.

The evidence showed that Sheriff H. T. Knight of Lincoln County planned to trap the Crumes in liquor sales, and arranged with a man named Foster to have the Crumes deliver a pint of whisky to Foster in the rear of a store in Winfield, Mo. The Sheriff was in hiding near by.

The Crumes drove up in a car and Floyd got out with a pint of liquor. Foster handed C rumes a dollar and went after a quarter in change to complete the purchase

DELIVERY OF LIQUOR NECESSARY TO SALE

Supreme Court Clears Bootlegger Arrested Before Handing Over Flask.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 18.—A proposed illegal sale of liquor, in which the liquor is seized by officers before the transfer of possession of the liquor is made, is not a valid basis of conviction of a charge of selling liquor, Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court ruled today.

The Court held the sale had to be completed by delivery of the liquor before it was a completed sale, and reversed and remanded for new trial the charge against Mrs. Lexie Crumes and her son, Floyd, Negroes of Lincoln County. The mother had been sentenced to nine and the son to 14 months in jail, on conviction of selling liquor.

The evidence showed that Sheriff H. T. Knight of Lincoln County planned to trap the Crumes in liquor sales, and arranged with a man named Foster to have the Crumes deliver a pint of whisky to Foster in the rear of a store in Winfield, Mo. The Sheriff was in hiding near by.

The Crumes drove up in a car and Floyd got out with a pint of liquor. Foster handed C rumes a dollar and went after a quarter in change to complete the purchase price. As Foster started away the Sheriff ran up and seized the bottle of liquor, still held by Crumes.

Judge J. T. White held that since the sale was illegal neither party could expect the provisions of legal purchase agreements to prevail, and knew that under the circumstances neither could expect to recover if the other party failed to carry out his part of the agreement. Under the circumstances, he held the sale could be binding only by actual delivery. As t liquor never actually was transferred to Foster, he ruled the State had not proved the sale of liquor.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolte Would Be Foster Parents to Leo Pedde, Who Lives With Them.

Leo Pedde, 75 years old, will become the legally adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bolte, 33 and 36 years, respectively, if the Circuit Court at Clayton approves the Boltes' petition, filed yesterday.

The prospective foster parents explained in their petition that Pedde has lived with them many years and they have become attached to him. They offer to assume the same responsibilities required of parents who adopt a minor child.

PUBLIC LIBRARY LENDS 12,000 BOOKS A DAY

January Total 309,783, an Increase Compared With 1927 of 24,006.

In January, 309,783 volumes were borrowed from the St. Louis Public Library, a gain of 24,006 over the circulation from the corresponding month last year. There were 25 days in January on which books were issued, so that the average exceeded 12,000 books a day. Of this total, 148,252 volumes were borrowed by adult readers and 161,531 by children. Fifty-eight per cent of the books were borrowed through the branch libraries.

In addition to the Central Library, at Fourteenth and Olive streets, the St. Louis Library system now comprises 12 branches and four sub-branches besides delivery stations and deposits for special groups. Of these 16 branches and sub-branches, seven are in buildings erected and owned by the Library, three are in school buildings, three in rented quarters, one in a city community center, one in a department store and one in a university building.

A new branch library, to be called the Baden Branch, will be opened in the old police station at Broadway and Hall's Ferry Road, as soon as the books can be purchased and catalogued. The Police Board has offered the use of the building to the Library Board for this purpose.

A total of 4867 library cards were issued by the registration department in January, 2980 of which were to persons who had never registered before. Feb. 1 there were 157,489 readers' cards in force, of which 46,741 belonged to men, 59,914 to women, 50,793 to children and 41 to institutions. Feb. 1 last year the total number of cards was 147,878. A large part of the increase is attributed to the opening of the Carpenter Branch, Grand boulevard and Utah street, last February.

The library's entire collection was increased by 3479 volumes during January, of which 2017 went to the Central Library. The department for the blind received 157 new books. Desk receipts, including fines, lost books paid for and collections for duplicate books, totaled $2716 for the month.

Mussolini In Praise of Washington

Herald" in Rome, went to the Palazzo Chigi to interview Mussolini. She had lived in Rome several years and spoke Italian perfectly. It probably was a rare relief for the dictator to be interviewed in his native tongue. It was easier for him to express himself freely and with precision.

During the conversation, it was borne in on Mussolini that in the interest of Italy's traffic with other nations, it was important for him to be able to deal directly with the English-speaking world. He asked Miss Gibson, who speaks several European languages, to become his English teacher. A routine was established. Miss Gibson has spent a number of hours a day reading and conversing with her distinguished pupil.

Mussolini has learned English by no ordinary formula. There has been none of the phrasemaking, "How do I find a railway train?" "This is a cat." "My grandmother wishes a hot bath." There have not even been those useful sentences, "Get a doctor quickly," nor the apologetic, "I do not speak your language with facility, but I shall try to make myself understood," and to old assurance, "I understand your language very well." None of that for Mussolini.

Learned English by Reading.

The President of Haiti, whose English is admired in many capitals, was asked at the White House how he had learned the language. "Reading Macaulay's 'Trial of Warren Hastings' with a good diction teacher," he explained. So it has been with Mussolini.

He and Miss Gibson have read important books together. They have followed the discussion of the reform of the English prayer book and they have read American history. George Washington's life has fascinated il Duce. He has studied the "Father of the Republic" with intense interest, and he has seen a similarity in the problems which faced the first President of the United States and the present dictator of Rome.

How well he has mastered languages was suddenly revealed to the world when without forewarning he addressed a large congress in Rome two months ago, speaking first in Italian and then in French. He stilled the applause and surprised his audience by repeating his speech in German, and then in excellent English.

So it happened that when he was asked for an article to be published in the United States, Mussolini gave to Miss Gibson this, his first article written in English.

known to him and not too well charted.

Now that he has, for the first time, taken to adventure, it may bring out qualities of head and heart hitherto unsuspected. Upon that depends largely the success or failure of this momentous commission. He has one supreme advantage, that the problem of self-government within the Empire is an ideal to which he has given lifelong and unselfish devotion.

British Indian opinion is naturally not biased in favor of an large extension of self-government. Sir John Simon cannot, therefore, expect to be pushed in that direction by his countrymen in India. He must rely on his own instinctive Liberalism, trained as it has been in the school of Gladstone.

The other two outstanding figures upon this stage—the Viceroy and the Secretary of State for India—will not help him much with suggestion or plan. But both are of the kind that possesses courage and loyalty to see him through if he has a plan of his own.

-:- At Lambert Field -:-

WITH interest in aviation spreading with unforeseen rapidity to all classes as a result of the flying exploits of Lindbergh, pilots at Lambert-St. Louis Field feel they are particularly indebted to the trans-Atlantic airman for the work he did Thursday for aeronautics in St. Louis.

Flying a Ryan brougham of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation and later switching over to a similar model owned by the Von Hoffman Aircraft Corporation, but equipped with larger wheels for mud-running, "Slim" carried 107 prominent St. Louisans on 10-minute flights.

During the afternoon he made 29 flights, spending about five hours in the air. Those, however, are only the cold figures. More important, he took into the air many wealthy St. Louisans who had never been aloft before, and some of them, it is quite likely, would never have taken the first flight had not Lindbergh been the pilot.

The significance of the day, as pilots see it, was thus expressed: "He made them see that flying was just as ordinary as riding an automobile—and not half as bumpy." Most of his passengers, particularly those who had been in the air for the first time, professed themselves as amazed at the comfort of the cabin planes of the new commercial type. Airplane sales firms at the field are hopeful that eventually some of "Slim's" passengers may buy planes for themselves.

In any event, they feel that Lindbergh, by using the drawing power of his singular personality, has "sold" flying to as influential a group of St. Louisans as could be gathered together. That in itself was important enough, regardless of the commercial eventualities that may result.

Incidentally, the occasion served to show in striking fashion the need of the field for good runways. On his first flight as Lindbergh taxied down the field, the Ryan slithered in the mud, hesitated a moment and then, although under full gun, settled in the mire hub-deep. It took a crew of men 15 minutes to get it out to hard ground again, while dozens of visitors stood in front of the hangar door and marveled that flyers could operate under such unfavorable conditions, day in and day out.

During his arduous day Lindbergh again and again showed his magnificent ability at the controls. To save the time that would otherwise be spent in taxying to the far end of the field with each load, the flyer invariably took off downwind, lifting the loaded ship easily from the field on each hop. In the air his turns were gradual and his descents easy. It would never have done to whip the flying neophytes about in the air like old-timers, and no one appreciated the fact better than Lindbergh.

Lindbergh Gets Big Map.

A huge map of the United States encased in glass and hung on the outside of the big hangar at the field, was presented yesterday to Lindbergh by Rand McNally & Co. The map is 10¼ feet wide and 6½ feet long and with its mounting is valued at $2000. Douglas Condie, an architect, supervised its installation. The sheet of glass, 11 by 17 feet, which covers it, was given by the Condie-Bray Glass & Paint Co. Pilots starting out on trips are expected to make wide use of the map, which is the largest size made.

"Bill" Chaudet Buys Plane.

"Bill" Chaudet, president o fthe General Brake Corporation, has joined the ranks of business men who fly. Chaudet bought a new OX-5 Travel-Air Friday from the Parks Air Line and intends to use the ship on business trips. He has been taking flying instruction from Clyde Brayton, who recently ferried Chaudet's ship from Wichita, Kan.

To Kansas City and Back.

Milt Girton of the Von Hoffman Aircraft Corporation made a round trip to Kansas City Wednesday in a Ryan brougham, carrying as passengers four Willys-Knight automobile salesmen. He made the trip west in two hours and 30 minutes and the return hop in two hours and five minutes.

Brought Letter From Cuba.

Maj. Albert Bond Lambert is preparing an elaborate mounting for the only letter ever brought from Cuba to St. Louis by airplane. It was carried by Col. Lindbergh, who presented it to Lambert after he landed. The letter was given to the flyer in Havana by George Lea Lambert, son of the Major, and bore a regular air mail stamp.

Lindbergh visited Maj. Lambert and E. C. Thompson, two of his backers, at their homes Wednesday. At Maj. Lambert's he spent more than an hour talking over the plans for the improvement of Lambert-St. Louis Field and expressed himself as highly pleased with the progress aeronautics was making in his home town.

"Spirit of St. Louis" on Display

A persistent rumor that Lindbergh intends shortly to carry out his promise to place the "Spirit of St. Louis" in the Smithsonion Institution has been heightened by his announcement that the ship is to be on public display at the field for the next few days.

Oscar Weisz, chief mechanic of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Corps, official custodian of the plane, has made an enclosure built outside the National Guard hangar. Weather permitting, the plane will be left in the open today, Tomorrow, Tuesday, and perhaps several other days next week.

New Valves for Whirlwinds.

W. F. Dayton, mechanic for the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, has virtually finished overhauling the Whirlwinds at the field. In all the motors Dayton replaced the old valves with a new type recently developed for the power plant. The replacement, which was without charge, was made even on the new Travel-Air owned by Oscar Johnson and piloted by "Boots" Dempsey. The motor had had less than 10 hours when Dayton tore it down and changed the valves, which sell, incidentally, at $16 each.

Parks Air College to Open.

The Parks Air Line has retained Derek White, formerly head of a large flying field at Marshall, Mo., to take charge of its instruction department. White has been in the flying game since 1912 and at Marshall had what is said to have been the largest civilian air school in the country. The new Parks project will be known as the Park Air College. The plans of Oliver Parks, its head, call for a comprehensive expansion with instruction in motor maintenance, meteorology and affiliated flying subjects, as part of the curriculum. Clyde Brayton will continue as chief instructor.

Sells Douglas Mail Planes.

The Robertson Aircraft last week sold its three remaining Douglas planes to the National Air Transport, to be used on the eastern end of the transcontinental mail route. The planes will make their final appearance here tomorrow on the Lindbergh special mail flight. It is understood the Robertson concern also is preparing to sell its DH's.

The first of the new mail planes, a Travel-Air with Whirlwind motor, has been received. Frank H. Robertson, president, announced Lindbergh would use the plane Monday. Robertson will occupy the passenger cockpit for the trip to Chicago.

Phil Ball Buys Second Plane.

Philip DeC. Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, left St. Louis Friday night with his pilot, Lieut. Frank T. Dunn, for San Diego, Cal., where he will get his second Ryan monoplane. Flying east from San Diego on an extended business trip, Ball and Dunn will make stops at Phoenix, Ariz., Albuquerque, N. M., and Dallas and Amarillo, Tex. Ball sold his first plane recently to the Robertson Aircraft Corporation.

From Chicago "Just for the Ride."

Charles Dickinson, the 52-year-old Chicago air enthusiast, visited the field Friday in his J-4 Laird. The bearded veteran of the air was piloted from Chicago by Ervin Ballough, and after a lunch at Louie's hopped off immediately for the return trip. The flight was made, so he explained, "just for the ride."

Shirley Short, the veteran mail pilot, and C. C. Hamilton, aviation editor of the Chicago Daily News, also were visitors Friday, making the hop from Chicago in a DH in slightly more than two hours.

"Baby Peggy" Flies in Plane.

"Baby Peggy," the child motion picture star, visited the field Friday and made a flight with O. E. Scott, field manager, who also took her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Montgomery, for a short hop. The child had hoped to see Lindbergh, who was on the field at the time, but one of the flyer's backers unceremoniously whisked him away, fearing, apparently, that he was about to be used for a publicity stunt.

Testimonial Dinner to Robert Mantell.

A testimonial dinner is to be given the actor, Robert B. Mantell, tomorrow noon at the Coronado Hotel, under the auspices of the St. Louis Tercentennary Shakspeare Society. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. John S. Payne, Gatesworth Hotel, or Mrs. Harry E. Wagonner, the president, at Forest Park Hotel. Tickets also may be obtained at the hotel on Monday.

FINE FOR AUTO DEATH UPHELD ON APPEAL

Supreme Court Also Affirms Prison Sentences Imposed on Robbers.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFEFRSON CITY, Feb. 18.—Division No. 2 of the Missouri Supreme Court today affirmed the conviction of Horace Ritter of St. Louis County, fined $500 for manslaughter in connection with an automobile collision; Harry Beebe, under seven year prison sentence for robbery of the Bank of Ferguson, St. Louis County; and Alfred Selvaggi, St. Louis, sentenced to 11 years in prison for robbery.

The cases were among 36 opinions delivered by the Court of which 16 were in criminal appeals and the rest in civil cases.

Ritter, was convicted of manslaughter when Mrs. Clara A. Strock of Ferguson, was killed when Ritter's car collided with a machine in which she was riding, Sept. 15, 1926. The collision occurred on the Florissant road between Ferguson and St. Louis. Ritter's car skidded on the wet pavement when he attempted to pass another car ahead of him and crashed into the car in which Mrs. Strock was riding. The opinion, written by Commissioner Walter N. Davis, said the evidence clearly showed Ritter was guilty of culpable negligence.

Holdup's Alibi Fails.

Beebe was convicted as one of two men who held up the Bank of Ferguson, Jan. 5, 1926, and obtained $1900. The second man was never apprehended. The robbers forced Harry A. Binnbutel, the bookkeeper in charge at the time, to open two safes and turn over the money. Beebe's defense was an alibi, that he had spent the entire day attending a birthday party in St. Louis. Commissioner Higbee, who wrote the opinion, pointed out that Beebe was identified by two customers of the bank, and the evidence was such that the verdict should not be disturbed.

Tries to Blame Attorney.

Selvaggi robbed the restaurant of Thomas Grant, 5715 Delmar boulevard, St. Louis, obtaining $4.40. He was arrested a few minutes after the robbery riding in a stolen automobile.

On appeal Selvaggi was not represented by the same attorney who appeared at his trial and the plea was offered that the Supreme Court should reverse and remand the case because Selvaggi was represented in the lower court by an incompetent attorney. She opinion does not disclose the name of the trial attorney.

Commissioner Berryman Henwood, author of the opinion, overruled this contention. "While the defense in this case might have been more artfully presented by a more skillful lawyer," he wrote, "the record does not disclose that the appellant was deprived of any of his substantial rights." All the judges concurred in the decision.

Object to Length of Terms.

Judge David E. Blair affirmed the 25-year sentences of three Kansas City men, Wain C. Sublett, 20 years old, Clifford Hutchings, 21, and Legrand Wicks, 23, who held up the cashier of the Bank of Buckner, Jackson County, and stole $1500. All three signed confessions and pleaded guilty. When the Court sentenced each of them to 25 years in prison, they filed motions to set aside the sentences asserting they had been promised light sentences if they would plead guilty. The lower court overruled their motion and they appealed to the Supreme Court.

A new trial was granted to Marion Jackson of Butler County, who is under life sentence as an accomplice in the murder of his wife on Oct. 7, 1926, near Poplar Bluff. She was killed with an ax by Earl Jackson, 15 years old, Jackson's son by a previous marriage. Jackson wa scharged with influencing the boy to kill his stepmother. Judge J. T. White held that the evidence submitted by the State to establish a plot by Jackson to do away with his wife was insufficient. Damaging testimony by a daughter, 11, was declared inadmissible because cross-examination developed the girl knew neither the meaning of an oath nor the significance of sworn testimony.

Earl Jackson is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary on a plea of guilty. He is the youngest convict in the prison.

Judge Robert F. Walker affirmed the case of Boat R. Hicks of Kansas City, under life sentence for the murder of Martin Errickson in Kansas City, May 21, 1926. Hicks shot and killed Mr. and Mrs. Errickson. The woman had lived with Hicks until she married Errickson.

St. Louis Actions Decided.

Decisions in several St. Louis suits involving claims for personal injuries, and business claims, were handed down by Division No. 2.

Commissioner Higbee affirmed a verdict of $26,167 obtained by John G. Hoyt against Leo R. Buder for commission on the sale of 13,445 acres of tiber land in Dunklin County.

A judgment of $9000 obtained by Katherine Roberts against the Schaper Stores Co., Sixth street and Washington avenue, for injuries suffered from an aleged negligent starting of an elevator on Aug. 29, 1923, was affirmed by Commissioner Davis.

The Court affirmed a $15,000 verdict obtained by Cecile Grott against the Johnson, Stephens & Shinkel Shoe Co. for injuries. Her scalp was torn when her hair was caught in a moving belt on a shoe factory machine on Sept. 21, 1923.

A judgment of $17,000 for Mrs. Henrietta Lewis against the St. Louis Independent Packing Co. for injuries suffered when she was struck by one of the company's trucks at Twelfth boulevard and Olive street on March 20, 1923, was sustained.

A verdict of $15,000 for Mrs. Grace Mitchell Johnson, administratrix of the estate of James E. F. Nexson, against the St. Louis Terminal Railroad Association, was upheld. Nexson, a switchman, was injured in switching cars on Oct. 10, 1922, and died while the suit was pending.

The Court affirmed a $10,000 judgment for Mrs. Hattie Schulz of Perry County against the St. Louis San Francisco Railway Co. for the death of her husband, the Rev. August Schulz, as the result of injuries suffered in the wreck of a Frisco train near Starland, on Sept. 1, 1922. The train went through a wooden trestle. Schulz, a Lutheran minister, died in May, 1923.

33 HOMICIDES IN ST. LOUIS SO FAR THIS YEAR

11 KILLINGS IN LAST 10 DAYS

Two Private Watchmen Shot to Death in Preventing Holdups—Seven Unsolved Cases.

The Coroner and police have been kept busy this year by 33 homicides — an unusually large number for a month and a half. Of tha' number, 17 victims were Negroes, which is a high proportion of the Negro population.

Eleven of the homicides have occurred in the last 10 days. Apparently the local homicide rate is on the rise. Homicides fell from 185 in 1925 to 170 in 1926, and 152 in 1927.

Sub-machine guns, revolvers, automatic pistols, knives and axes have been among the weapons used.

Among the 33 killed were two private watchmen — Ferdinand Stange and Felix Woods, a Negro —who died frustrating holdups.

Police in the line of duty shot and killed two men—Ernest Fields, who had held up a drug store, and Charles Suppiee, accused of felonies in Kansas. Incidentally, the killing of Fields Jan. 5 was the first homicide of the year.

The Italian gang feud accounted for two victims, Tony Ditrapani and Dominic Cataldo, Jan. 19, since when the feud has been dormant.

Jealous husbands or suitors figured in many of the other killings, especially among Negroes. A typical example of the latter occurred Saturday when John Smith and John Brown, friends living at 2822 LaSalle street, each began boasting how much a certain woman cared ro them. Finally they quarreled, and Brown stabbed Smith to death.

Only seven of the 33 cases are listed by police as nusolved. In the other cases the guilty persons are under arrest or dead, or suspects are in custody.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE VOTING ON ITS NEW CONSTITUTION

Ballots Mailed to Members Propose Also Changes in the Bylaws.

A new constitution and revised bylaws, under which the Chamber of Commerce is to be reincorporated, if the members vote approval, were mailed yesterday to each member, along with ballots.

Revision of the methods under which the organization has operated was decided upon prior to a campaign for new members recently, in which $150,000 additional income for the Chamber was raised. With the organization's average income of $100,000 a year for the last several years, it will now have an annual budget of $250,000.

The changes provide that the present office of president shall be changed to chairman of the board, the title of president, with a salary, going to an appointee who will function much as the general secretary operates under the present bylaws. As has been told, Walter B. Weisenburger, a vice president of the National Bank of Commerce, is likely to be appointed president of the Chamber.

Among changes contemplated are the replacing of the Members' Conference, under sponsorship of which luncheons and banquets are given, to some more representative and active committee, and the establishment of a Council of Affiliated Organizations, composed of the heads of various civic, commercial and semicivic organizations. The committee to replace the Members' Conference, it is planned, would give representation to all phases of industry of the city, with the power to make recommendations to the board of directors.

BILL GIVING SOUTH AFRICAN WOMEN THE VOTE IS ADVANCED

Enfranchisement Measure Is Limited to Whites; Opposed by Nationalist Party.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Feb. 18.—A bill providing for the extension of the franchise to women in South Africa, today passed the committee stage in the House of Assembly, despite opposition from the Nationalist Party, led by Premier J. B. M. Hertzog.

The Premier takes the ground that the question as to the rights of the natives should be settled first. The women's enfranchisement bill limits the granting of the vote to white women.

High Postal Official Coming.

Assistant Postmaster-General Glover will be guest of honor at a luncheon meeting of the Traffic Club at the Chamber of Commerce dining room tomorrow. O. B. Higgins, freight traffic manager of the Universal Carloading and Distributing Co., will be the principal speaker of the meeting.

PRODUCTION AT HIGH LEVEL IN DETROIT AREA

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Feb. 18.—Uninterrupted production at high levels continues in the Detroit district. At this season of the year, factories generaly are building reserve production in anticipation of the spring rush, but in virtually all cases present production is being absorbed at once by present demand. As a result, schedules are being stepped up all along the line. Experienced observers report that 1928 has already set some new marks in first-quarter absorption and the question now is, how long the demand is to continde at levels materially above the season average.

If spring buying demands exceed normal by as high a percentage as the present season is doing, the year seems destined to establish an all-time record for sales in the first six months.

Employment Steady.

Employment in the industry is steadily on the increase in this territory and the same holds true in the parts and accessory divisions. Individual reports from manufacturers of these products are unanimous in indicating unprecedented demand for volume. Pay-rolls are heavy in city and state, in those centers devoted to automotive manufacture. Raw materials are reported in good supply and transportation generally satisfactory.

Nearly 100,000 men are at work in the Ford Motor Company's plants, though production on the Model A line is still far from the hoped-for figures. Production, however, has increased to 1000 cars per day and reports from the plants are that by the end of the month Ford will be much more strongly in the picture.

Dealers Being Added.

Additions to dealer personnel are very numerous, among all companies, with numerous transfers from one line to the other. The intensive training of the sales field forces, begun the first of the year, will continue for another six weeks and by the end of March the industry will have a better trained sales army than it has ever had before.

The matter of insuring dealer longevity continues to have close attention. One executive leader puts it this way: "The arch-enemy of distribution today is overhead. A great many men who are excellent salesmen are not so efficient in matters of overhead analysis and other particulars that represent the difference between profitable and unprofitable operation. We know just how much money should be spent on a given volume of business for rent, light, advertising, etc. Every month we go over the statements of our dealers. If they have spent too much or too little on any one item, we show them, and help bring their expenditures into proper alignment with business volume."

There is a growing tendency on the part of the important makers to have dealers' places of business standardized, so that they can be recognized as outlets for a particular line, even without a sign bearing the line's name. Standard designs, adapted to the volume of a dealer's business, are available from many of the principal factories and lay-out and equipment are carefully planned for economical and profitable operation. This policy should have the effect of increasing the dealer's opportunity to do business to advantage, with his banker, employe and customer. The stability of the industry generally will be made much more nearly certain as this policy of dealer protection is expanded.

Two Million Junks.

Figures for the number of automobiles junked in 1927 have been made more or less widely available, by a nation-wide survey. This seems to indicate that 2,315,000 autos were definitely removed from the picture in the year, with a total production of 3,500,000 or thereabouts. This yearly figure should be considerably increased in 1928, as the result of 1922 production, the units in which will largely have been worn out by the end of the present year.

It is a curious fact that there were actually 23,125,000 vehicles registered in 1927, an increase of well over a million units, while in the same year the total output fell a little over 900,000 units below the production figures for 1926.

About Oils.

Oils marketed under different trade names are of different viscosities, and the car owner who keeps this in mind will forestall the possibility of damage to vital engine parts by using too light or too heavy a lubricant.

NASH SEES 1928 AS BIGGEST AUTO YEAR

Executive, in Interview Here, Said 5,000,000 Cars Will Be Sold.

"All indications af the automobile shows held so far this year in various sections and country-wide sales demand which came on the heels of the recent Nash car price reductions, point to another record-breaking year," C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motor Car Co., said here yesterday during an interview.

"Nash is off to a flying start for the 1928 season," he said, "and each day, since the new lower prices were announced, our factory production has been increased."

Arrived Friday.

Nash, who arrived here Friday morning from the Nash factory at Kenosha, Wis., was accompanied by E. A. McCarty, his general sales manager, and was the guest of F. C. McDonald, president of the Southwest Nash Co., Nash distributer for the St. Louis territory.

Friday morning he addressed a dealer and salesmens' meeting at the local distributer's headquarters, and the balance of the day was passed in an inspection of plants of outlying dealers.

Nash believes the predicted sale of 5,000,000 cars in 1928 will actually come to pass. Better highways, more resorts, an increased demand for cars for business purposes all point to this, in his opinion.

"Another thing which would indicate 1928 is to be the greatest year in automotive history is the fact that despite the general lull in the industry in 1927, most every manufacturer greatly increased his production facilities," Nash said.

Referring to Nash sales and output, he said: Orders from dealers throughout the county are mounting higher and higher, and rearrangements of production plans has been put into effect to take care of the additional business. Our manufacturing facilities, enlarged during the past few months in anticipation of heavier business during 1928, will be taxed to capacity during the next few months.

Action Immediate.

"Announcement of the Nash price reductions came during the week of the Chicago Automobile Show, and action was immediate. Orders for "spot delivery" from Wednesday of that week to Saturday night rolled up for the week the biggest total for immediate deliveries ever recorded in Chicago during a show period.

"Action throughout the rest of the country was almost identical with that in Chicago and the momentum since attained is regarded as a barometer of what may be expected during the coming spring season. That the public is again entering on a buying period following the general lull in business during the fall months of last year was made plain at the very outset of the year when the Nash booth at the New York Automobile Show was crowded daily with buyers and prospects. Heavy sales were recorded there during the show and the demand has increased steadily each week since the show.

"This same situation holds true in practically all sections of the country. Nash dealers reporting that the buying public is not only frank in its indorsement of the body styles represented in the 24 models of the line but that there is also enthusiastic approval of the six wire and disc wheel optional equipment, with optional trunk racks, and the many and varied body colors from which to choose."

ST. LOUIS CALLED HUB OF NATIONAL HIGHWAY SYSTEMS

All-Year Roads Now Extend Across U. S. From Canada to Mexico and From Atlantic to Pacific.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF.

St. Louis recently has become the hub of a system of all-weather, all-year motor highways stretching over the United States in every direction, to the Canadian and Mexican borders and to the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. In a large measure this one-time dream of automobile enthusiasts has been consummated within the last two or three years, and the community has hardly become aware to the fullest extent of its important position in this respect and the attendant economic, commertial and recreational implications.

Within the lifetime of some cars still traveling the streets of St. Louis, it has been a precarious undertaking to venture beyond surrounding counties. It has been possible to drive in comfort to Kansas City for less than two years; six years ago there was still dirt on the route to Chicago; the East has been readily accessible for about five years; the South until lately was to be entered only by rail.

Thousands to Visit Here.

In 1928, however, between spring and autumn, it is predicted by an authority, nearly 100,000 tourists will drive through St. Louis, headed for every point of the compass. Thousands of St. Louisans will follow this example on their own vacations.

No small advantage of the road development has been seized by traveling salesmen in numerous lines. They are able to cover their territory in many instances faster, more efficiently and more comfortably by motor than by rail; they carry their samples with them, and make their own schedules instead of cooling their heels for trains.

An untold volume of freight is passing over the highways out of St. Louis, to and from nearby and distant points. Much furniture is transported by this method in family and commercial moving.

The intrastate motor bus traffic centering here has increased greatly in the last year or two, but much remains to be done in systematizing this business as a whole and in extending it in some directions. Principal routes now run to Chicago and beyond, Kansas City and beyond, Southern Illinois, Southeastern Missouri, Joplin, Mo., and California. Short interurban lines spread out in all directions.

Intangible value of the highways from the standpoint of pleasure, health and extension of knowledge about the country is tremendous.

Road Analysis.

As a beginning of analysis of the roads leading from St. Louis, it is well to consider the Missouri State highway system. The air line to Columbia and Kansas City, passable for tyo years, has been completed pavement for a number of months, except for a minor relocation to be made west of Boonville this year. On the opposite, or southern, side of the Missouri River another fine road to Jefferson City and Kansas City is completed to all practical intents. Three of the connecting links between these routes are in excellent shape and private toll bridges are projected on either the way, though parts remain to be improved. It demonstrates what has happened in motordom. A few years ago this was considered a route of minor importance and much of it was to be graveled. Now it is part of the "Main street of America," connecting Chicago and Los Angeles, and its heavy traffic demands broad concrete.

Roads south from St. Louis, to Cape Girardeau, the rice counties, Poplar Bluff and Ste. Genevieve, are in good condition. Between them and the Springfield-Joplin sector run highways in acceptable state through rugged Ozark Mountain timber country and fine fruit lands.

The whole Ozark section is penetrated by a number of routes, and this charming, primitive region seems destined to become one of the great national playgrounds. Its claims for that distinction are numerous.

In the triangle between the Kansas City and Joplin highways a large part of the State system is available. North of the Kansas City air line, in level farming country, road development has been retarded and the soil often interferes with travel. One route, from Hannibal to St. Joseph, however, is generally passable, as is that from St. Louis to Hannibal and Keokuk, Ia. Two other main highways traversable; one runs from Lannorth and south are generally caster, through Kirksville, Columbia, Jefferson City and West Plains to Mammoth Spring, Ark.; the other follows the western boundary from Iowa to Arkansas by way of St. Joseph, Kansas City and Joplin.

Turning to Illinois in the analysis, one finds that concrete roads lead "everywhere" in the neighboring commonwealth. Many motorists think the Illinois State highway system is the best in the nation. It recognizes only concrete, in a network crossing all counties. The system is virtually completed, and to it the State is preparing to add an even more comprehensive layout for which $100,000,000 in bonds was voted.

From the foregoing Missouri and Illinois routes, the thoroughfares to the edges of the nation extend. Of these, the chief ones open for all-weather, all-year service (with countless long stretches approaching perfection), are:

Kansas City and Lawrence, Topeka and Abilene, Kan.; beyond this point the motorist is dependent on the elements.

St. Joseph, Omaha, Neb.; Sioux City, Ia., and Salem, S. D., with a branch to Lincoln, Neb.

ROAD BUILDING BEING RESUMED ALL OVER STATE

Little Slab Is to Be Laid in Missouri in 1928, but Maintenance Will Be More Active.

By ROBERT HENRY HALL, Automobile Editor.

Highway construction in Missouri has been resumed. Except in a few localities in the central and north-central part of the State where roads still are fairly muddy, highway crews can any day be seen grading, scarifying or graveling roads.

This is especially so in the Ozarks, where extensive preparations are being made to accommodate more tourists and vacationists during the coming summer than ever before.

Little Construction in 1928.

Little concrete construction is scheduled in Missouri this year. Most highway divisions exhausted their appropriations for this purpose in 1927, and, so the Highway Department at Jefferson City states, a greater activity of maintenance work will be had. In Division No. 6, for instance, the only slab to be laid this year will be the eight miles on U. S. 66 from Cuba north to the end of the present concrete three miles beyond Bourbon. This division, with headquarters at Webster Groves, operates in twelve counties surrounding St. Louis. Like conditions exist in other divisions.

All main highways south out of St. Louis are open to through traffic. Concrete, as is known, is now laid on U. S. 61 between Flat River and Farmington, and beyond the gravel stretches are virtually as smooth as slab, having been made so by constant scarifying during the winter. U. S. 67, beyond Fredericktown—the jumping-off place of U. S. 61 for Cape Girardeau—is open and in good

R. E. LEE SPEAKS AT OLDS BANQUET HERE

Metropolitan Dealers Attend Affair Tendered by R. L. Samuel.

Metropolitan dealers of Oldsmobile cars, their sales staffs and the executive staff of the factory branch here were guests of R. L. Samuel, branch manager of the Olds Motor Works, at a banquet at the Chase Hotel, Wednesday evening, Feb. 15. In all 115 persons were present. Samuel presided and R. E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, was the principal speaker.

Announcement was made at the banquet that during the Auto Show here last week 149 of the new Oldsmobile cars were sold, evidencing, according to Samuel, the extreme popularity of the new line.

Olds Motor Works here during Auto Show week offered prizes to the salesmen selling the most cars and these prizes were distributed at the banquet. First prize winner was E. B. Jones of the Kingchester Motor Car Co. The second prize was taken by Robert Helfrich of DeVoy & DeLargy Motor Car Co., and third prize was split between M. Kusewith of the Tucker-Rohrback Motor Co. and Paul Jones of the Lambert-Graves Motor Co.

The dealers were entertained by performers attached to radio station KWK of the Hotel Chase.

CHEVROLET DEALERS MEET HERE TOMORROW

President Knudson and R. H. Grant, Vice President, to Make Principal Talks.

William Knudson, president of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co.; R. H. Grant, vice president in charge of sales, and a party of 20 assistants arrived in St. Louis this morning to conduct here tomorrow the annual sales convention of dealers in the St. Louis Chevrolet territory. Another Chevrolet official, David E. Ralston, assistant general sales manager, formerly regional director here, accompanied the party.

Six hundred Chevrolet dealers, associate dealers and rural bankers will be present at the sales meeting, which is to be held at the Empress Theater here, beginning at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Chevrolet executives will be introduced to the convention by O. E. Nonn, zone sales manager at the factory here.

Tomorrow evening, beginning at 6:30 o'clock, the dealers will hold a banquet at the Statler Hotel. Nonn is to preside. Speakers will include A. W. L. Gilpin, regional manager here; Ralston, Klingler and Grant.

MARMON PLANS FOR HEAVY 1928 OUTPUT

45,000 Cars to Come Off Production Lines in Next 12 Months.

G. M. Williams, president of the Marmon Motor Car Co., has revealed a production program, ratified by the Marmon board of directors, of 45,000 automobiles for 1928. This is by far the largest production in the history of the Marmon company.

Output at the Marmon factory is rapidly approaching the peak required to meet this anticipated schedule. The Marmon plant, according to President Williams, is already turning out from 200 to 216 cars a d .

After the most exhaustive tests of the new Marmon "68" and "78," both on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and in gruelling transcontinental runs, the executives of the Marmon company felt confident that in these two cars they had evolved something of unusual importance both to automobile dealers and consumers. It was not until they had found enthusiastic ratification of their judgment on the part of the public itself at both the New York and Chicago shows, as well as at St. Louis, Cleveland, San Francisco, Detroit and elsewhere, that the decision was definitely arrived at to proceed on a 45,000 cars a year basis, and orders for full speed ahead given.

"Reception of the new Marmon straight eights, one of which sells in the low-price field and the other in the medium price class, is evidence of the growth in popularity of the straight eight, of which there were more sold in 1927 than in any other year. In fact, the Marmon company enjoyed the greatest percentage of increase in sales in 1927 of any company in the industry, and this year's program will mean tripling Marmon's former record," say officials of the More Automobile Co., Marmon distributer here.

"Features of the two Marmons that have won attention at all shows are the straight eight engines, the extraordinary performance of the cars under every variety of test, the exceptional attention to detail structurally and in finishing, and the recognition that in the prices—$1295 for the "68" and $1895 for the '78,' at the factory—the company is giving unusual value."

Hard Steering.

When the car suddenly begins to steer hard, lack of lubrication is the first thing to suggest itself.

Emil Gregor, Waterville, Conn., banker, started buying Oakland cars in 1915. Here is his thirteenth.

AUBURN PLANT PROTECTS BUYERS' INVESTMENT

"Protection of the Auburn buyer's investment is a main factor in designing our new cars," E. L. Cord, president of the Auburn Automobile Co., told dealers and distributers at Chicago recently.

"The man who buys an Auburn car in July or December of any one year has the assurance that in August or January following he will not have to junk it because our new models have been changed so radically that the old cars are back numbers.

"To be sure," McCord points out, "every new Auburn model is different. Changes are made, but only when it is believed by our engineers that such changes will be of benefit to the future car owner. Our policy does not permit of changes merely for the purpose of antequating previous models in order to stimulate sales.

Slow Leaks.

When the tire develops a slow leak, the remedy very often lies in a new valve core.

PUBLIC APPROVING NEW OLDSMOBILE SIX

Local Sales Show Increase Since Initial Display of Car at Auto Show.

"Living up to reports of what it would be, the new Oldsmobile six is attracting a great deal of attention," says R. L. Samuel, general manager of the St. Louis factory branch of the Old Motor Works.

Oldsmobile sales here in the week following the St. Louis Automobile Show were relatively greater than in any one week since the beginning of the year, according to Samuel.

As Samuel explains this, the new Oldsmobile represents two years' work by factory engineers and more than 1,000,000 miles of testing, and the result is a new and original car which interests the public.

New features are found in the Oldsmobile. Its high compression engine develops 55-horse power and will accelerate from five to 25 miles an hour in 5½ seconds. It has registered 74 miles an hour at the General Motors proving grounds.

Wide doors of flush construction, broad plate glass windows and narrow posts provide wide vision. Form-fitting seats add one more point in the endeavor to provide greater comfort. The space provided by the longer wheel base gives more "leg room" and increases comfort. Considerable width has been added to the rear and front seats.

Full crown fenders, larger parabole lights and a high radiator form an ensemble that catches the eye. The unusual height of the radiator permits the high hood and cowl to be brought back to the body in a straight line.

A broad belt panel of convex contour, borderer by two moldings, forms the center line of the body. This panel starts at the cowl and extends to the back of the rear windows, where it converges into a distinctive V. This line is continued around the back of the car in a molding. This band and the window reveals are finished in a tone harmonizing with the body color.

The Fisher body is of composite steel and wood construction.

The new Oldsmobile has an overall length of 171 inches. It weighs approximately 120 pounds more than last year's model.

The new engine is high compression, six-cylinder L-head type, with a three and three-sixteenths bore and a four and one-eighth stroke. It has a piston displacement of 197.5 cubic inches. The compression ratio is 5 to 1, or 95 to 98 pounds, and due to special combustion chamber design, does not require a special fuel despite this high compression.

This combustion chamber is shaped so that, following ignition of the mixture, the "pressure rise" within the chambers and cylinders is progressive and the pressure peak more continuous.

A full pressure lubricating system is used. Crankcase ventilation is provided by a constant air stream being drawn through the crankcase, which sweeps with it water formed in internal combustion engines by condensation and unburned gasoline vapors. After the initial "breaking-in" of the Oldsmobile, oil changes are required but every 1500 miles in summer and 1000 miles in winter.

In the fuel supply system the motor-driven pump replaces the vacuum tank. The pump is mounted on the right side of the crankshaft. A gasoline filter eliminates dirt and water from gasoline.

A manual engagement starter is used. At the beginning of pressure on the starter pedal the drive gear engages with the geared flywheel, making a positive engagement before the electric starting motor comes into action as pressure on the starter pedal progresses.

Four-wheel brakes are used, the rear ones being external contracting on a 14-inch drum. The front wheel brakes are internal of self-energizing type. The total braking area is 244 square inches. Easy steering is insured by using split bronze nuts.

Front and rear springs are semi-elliptic and two inches wide. The front springs are 35 inches long and the rear 54½.

Checking Hydrometer.

condition all the way through Poplar Bluff to the Arkansas border. And the other southerly Ozarks route out of St. Louis—U. S. 66—is likewise travelable in its entirety through the State.

Motorists who this year go to Arcadia Mountain Resort at Lake Killarney will have three perfectly good roads to travel, whereas last summer there were two and later, in fall when the concrete between Farmington and Flat River was being laid, only one.

Reconstructed No. 70.

This year it will be possible to continue south on U. S. 61 beyond Farmington to Fredericktown and thence travel ten miles via State No. 70 to Lake Killarney. The miserable road along the lake, part of No. 70, soon will be a smooth 30-foot highway. Already the road has been reconstructed for a few miles west of Fredericktown to a point near the bridge over the St. Francis River, and, according to William Schroeder, proprietor of the Arcadia Mountain Resort, the highway department plans to have the stretch along the lake completed by April 1.

A crew is now working east from Stout's Creek, three miles beyond Arcadia, toward the entrance to the resort. It is planned for this crew to carry its operations east to meet the completed construction out of Fredericktown.

The necessity of fording Stout's Creek also is to be eliminated this year, according to the Highway Department. Beginning about May 1, construction will be started on a concrete arch bridge over the creek. At first it was planned to build it out of native Ozark granite, but the cost was prohibitive.

Arcadia Bridge Completed.

Another available route to Lake Killarney is over U. S. 61 to Flat River, thence via State No. 32 to Bismarck, over the county road through Iron Mountain to No. 21 and on into Ironton. A point of interest there: The concrete bridge over Stout's Creek between Ironton and Arcadia is completed and eliminates the rough detour around Ironton to No. 70. The Highway Department is now constructing a short approach to the bridge from the far end, which necessitates a fifth mile earth detour that might become rough in inclement weather.

The third available route is via U. S. 61 to Farmington, thence over the county road to Bismarck and over the same route from this point as suggested in the second available route.

Both State No. 21 and 32 are now in better condition than at any time last year. Both roads have been regraveled and potholes have been eliminated, so, in the writer's way of thinking, they are preferable to concrete roads, since they are as smooth and a deal more picturesque.

Fickle Motorists.

Despite the fact that motorists are prone to prejudices in this way or that, thousands are fickle in regard to the gasoline they use.

Graphite a Conductor.

Graphite is a conductor of electricity, and if used in excess will cause misfiring of the plug upon which it is used.

Local Sales Show Increase Since Initial Display of Car at Auto Show.

"Living up to reports of what it would be, the new Oldsmobile six is attracting a great deal of attention," says R. L. Samuel, general manager of the St. Louis factory branch of the Old Motor Works.

Oldsmobile sales here in the week following the St. Louis Automobile Show were relatively greater than in any one week since the beginning of the year, according to Samuel.

As Samuel explains this, the new Oldsmobile represents two years' work by factory engineers and more than 1,000,000 miles of testing, and the result is a new and original car which interests the public.

New features are found in the Oldsmobile. Its high compression engine develops 55-horse power and will accelerate from five ot 25 miles an hour in 8½ seconds. It has registered 74 miles an hour at the General Motors proving grounds.

Wide doors of flush construction, broad plate glass windows and narrow posts provide wide vision. Form-fitting seats add one more point in the endeavor to provide greater comfort. The space provided by the longer wheel base gives more "leg room" and increases comfort. Considerable width has been added to the rear and front seats.

Full crown fenders, larger parabole lights and a high radiator form an ensemble that catches the eye. The unusual height of the radiator permits the high hood and cowl to be brought back to the body in a straight line.

A broad belt panel of convex contour, borderer by two moldings, forms the center line of the body. This panel starts at the cowl and extends to the back of the rear windows, where it converges into a distinctive V. This line is continued around the back of the car in a molding. This band and the window reveals are finished in a tone harmonizing with the body color.

The Fisher body is of composite steel and wood construction.

The new Oldsmobile has an overall length of 171 inches. It weighs approximately 120 pounds more than last year's model.

The new engine is high compression, six-cylinder L-head type, with a three and three-sixteenths bore and a four and one-eighth stroke. It has a piston displacement of 197.5 cubic inches. The compression ratio is 5 to 1, or 96 to 98 pounds, and due to special combustion chamber design, does not require a special fuel despite this high compression.

This combustion chamber is shaped so that, following ignition of the mixture, the "pressure rise" within the chambers and cylinders is progressive and the pressure peak more continuous.

A full pressure lubricating system is used. Crankcase ventilation is provided by a constant air stream being drawn through the crankcase, which sweeps with it water formed in internal combustion engines by condensation and unburned gasoline vapors. After the initial "breaking-in" of the Oldsmobile, oil changes are required but every 1500 miles in summer and 1000 miles in winter.

In the fuel supply system the motor-driven pump replaces the vacuum tank. The pump is mounted on the right side of the crankshaft. A gasoline filter eliminates dirt and water from gasoline.

A manual engagement starter is used. At the beginning of pressure on the starter pedal the drive gear engages with the geared flywheel, making a positive engagement before the electric starting motor comes into action as pressure on the starter pedal progresses.

Four-wheel brakes are used, the rear ones being external contracting on a 14-inch drum. The front wheel brakes are internal of self-energising type. The total braking area is 244 square inches. Easy steering is insured by using split bronze nuts.

Front and rear springs are semi-elliptic and two inches wide. The front springs are 35 inches long and the rear 54½.

Checking Hydrometer.

The car owner who doubts the accuracy of the hydrometer test of the battery may satisfy his doubt by putting a voltmeter on the device.

TRAFFIC RULES FOR PARIS MAY RESTRICT HORNS

PARIS, France, Feb. 18.

A NEW set of traffic rules is to be formed to regulate traffic in Paris. The possibility of restricting the use of motor horns is being considered. Drivers habitually use their horns to excess; for instance, it is not uncommon for a whole row of drivers who are being held up by a policeman for what they consider an unreasonable time, to blow their horns steadily in unison by way of protest.

The question of inadequate lighting on vehicles is also being considered.

Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., via Peoria, Ill., and Madison and La Crosse, Wis.

Superior Lake Regions.

Milwaukee and Oshkosh, Wis., with extensions into the iron and timber region along Lake Superior, from Duluth, Minn., to Escanaba, Mich.

The entire Pacific Coast, by way of Joplin, Mo.; Muskogee and Oklahoma City, Ok.; Roswell and Tularosa, N. M.; Springerville, Phoenix and Yuma, Ariz.; San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal., to Portland, Ore.; Seattle, Wash., and British Columbia. An alternate route between Tularosa, N. M., and Phoenix, Ariz., runs via El Paso, Tex.

Muskogee, Ok.; Dallas, San Antonio and Laredo, Tex., with branches to Houston and Galveston, Tex., and to El Paso, Tex.

Memphis, Tenn., by choice of routes on both side of the Mississippi River, with a connection to Little Rock, Ark., and Dallas, Tex.

New Orleans and the whole gulf coast, by way of Memphis and Jackson, Miss.

Birmingham, Ala., and the gulf coast, including Mobile, Ala., by way of Memphis. A branch runs to Atlanta, Ga.

Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn. (via Evansville, Ind.); Atlanta and Macon, Ga., to Florida, where fine highways extend to the southern tip along both east and west coasts.

Louisville and Lexington, Ky., to Knoxville and Chattanooga, Tenn., and to Asheville, N. C., and the whole of the two Carolinas.

At this point, detailing becomes burdensome, and to carry it out in the highly developed northeastern quadrant of the United States well nigh impossible. It is sufficient and all-inclusive to say that in this territory, besides Missouri and Illinois, the motorist can drive to all towns and cities on excellent or passable highways—in Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, New York and all but the wilder parts of New England. This great area, including the oldest portions of the country, is criss-crossed by good roads.

Main Routes Out of City.

The main routes radiating from St. Louis, here described, by no means constitute all the highways which can be traveled at will, as usable branches run from all of them, and some states—Texas for one example—have many miles of good roads giving local service where a few years ago there was mud. A great wave of highway construction has swept over the country since the World War and most states have adopted progressive programs. Kansas is a nearby instance, on the other hand, of backwardness in this respect.

Missouri is anticipating greater progress under the large bond issue it is proposed to lay before the people next November, supplementing the $60,000,000 voted about seven years ago.

From about May 1 to Oct. 31 annually th whole United States is open to motor travel, and in 1928, more than ever before, this is likely to be a nation on wheels. In the summer period the entire West, between Missouri and California, becomes accessible; even the dirt prairies of Kansas and Nebraska can be crossed except during and for a day or more after hard rain. Tourists used to say "except for Missouri" in their calculations, but it will be observed the doubtful sector has shifted nearer the sunset. There are, to be sure, many pieces of excellent road in the Western states—in the Colorado mountains, for instance—but they are not directly connected with St. Louis.

No attempt can be made within the scope of this review to depict the numerous scenic beauties of the regions traversed by the highways leading from St. Louis, nor to describe the growing American cities which they reach. It is a liberal education to drive these routes.

Cars of All Nations.

No great effort is required of a St. Louisan to observe the motor licenses of every state in the Union, and occasionally of the outlying territories and of foreign countries on the streets. Within the last year, licenses from England, China, Hawaii and Canada have been among those noticed here.

On Lindell boulevard, or Chouteau avenue, or St. Charles road, are to be seen the eight-cylinder limousine from Massachusetts, the sport roadster from New York, the caravan of new cars from a Michigan factory, the ancient flivver of an Oklahoma "tin can tourist," the moving van from Ohio, the phaeton of Indiana folks going West and the sedan of California people coming East. A bus from Texas, a truck from Arkansas and a collegiate "what is it" from Illinois mingle with them, in the ever-enlarging flow of Missouri traffic.

Is this the peak of the cross-country travel now? Hardly. Like a snowball gains impetus, highway construction progresses throughout the nation. Canada, too, is increasing its road facilities, which are very easy of access for American cars. Mexico is working for the realization of a national route from the Rio Grande to Central America. President Coolidge has called attention to the desirability of a motor road to link all the countries of the Western Hemisphere, tying two continents together. This does not seem to be an idle dream. What's more, it is a simple matter to ship one's own car to Europe, just like a trunk. The field is the world.

DODGE VICTORY "6" EASILY CONSTRUCTED

No Welding, Nor Riveting, in Operations Which Make Body and Frame One.

Eight minutes after the Victory Six body is let down from the floor above to the final assembly line at Dodge Brothers, Inc., factory, it has become one with the chassis.

There is no welding, nor riveting, in the operations which make the body and frame one. Reversing the operations, the body can be removed from the chassis through the removal of the bolts and the lifting of the body. Any service station equipped with a small chain hoist can easily lift the body from the chassis.

In these eight minutes, consumed in fastening the body to the chassis, 23 bolts, 12 horizontal and 11 vertical, have been placed and securely tightened by a crew of 18 men. The car then passes on to other stages of final assembly. While the bolts are being fastened the Victory is having fenders, steering column, steady bracket and other parts put on it.

Through the elimination of the conventional body sills, the Victory's center of gravity is lowered with normal road clearance and head room maintained. The overall height of the car has been reduced two inches by bolting the steel double-wall body to the sides of the chassis frame.

Deadening felt and anti-squeak padding is placed throughout, assuring a silent body. All body and door panels are also padded. In the illustrations the three stages of the body bolting operations on the final assembly lines are shown.

The Victory's revolutionary design and construction are laid on principles so simple, say the engineers, that one often wonders why this type of car had never been built before.

In this new type of construction, the frame channels are built to follow the body contour, there being no body overhang. Besides front and rear motor supports, four major cross members are employed, and further strength is added by the steel floor plates. The body of the car is fitted directly to the frame side channels, the sides of the body extending downward over the side channels so that frame and body are virtually a single unit.

This design gives the Victory Six long, sweeping lines and, engineers say, has many advantageous effects on the performance of the car, reducing side sway and adding greatly to riding comfort.

The Tate Motor Car Co., is Dodge distributor here.

When An Auto Man Goes Fishing

STAR FOUR-CYLINDER CAR ON MARKET FIVE YEARS

"W. C. Durant's new Star Four, which is attracting so much attention since its recent price reduction, is not a new and experimental model put out merely to create a sensation," says W. S. Cook, manager of the Star Motor Car Co. of St. Louis. "The Star is five years old and more than 600,000 are in use. We know how now to build it at the price or we would not do it.

M'DONALD GETS LARGE CATCH OF FLORIDA FISH

REAR BRAKE TENSION SHOULD BE GREATER THAN AT FRONT

"Tension of brakes on the front wheels never should be greater than on the rear wheels," is a warning given by Sam Green, service manager for the Berry Motor Co., Packard distributer here, in discussing four-wheel brakes. "The heavier the pull on the front wheels," he said, "the more severe will the brakes prove. A great number of drivers who like a soft brake action will prefer to have most of the braking effort exerted on the rear wheels.

New Packard Sedan on Display

The newest addition to the Packard eight-cylinder line is a convertible sedan for five passengers, with body by Dietrich. Innovations are all-metal window channels and side opening window between front and rear door to provide ventilation when the car is enclosed.

For summer driving, the khaki top can be folded back compactly, leaving the windows in position, thereby giving an open car with the virtues of an enclosed job. A glass partition between rear and front seat can be raised or lowered at will.

The color combination is sea green and a darker green. The body is done in the lighter shade, with dark fenders, beading and window belting. Wire wheels are standard, with spares carried in front fender wells.

The car is priced at $7290, delivered here completely equipped. It is on display by the Berry Motor Car Co., Packard distributer here.

Whippet Fitments Of High Quality

As furnished at the new prices which were announced early in January, the Whippet maintains the features of construction which established it on a high quality basis when it was first announced 19 months ago at prices ranging up to $300 above the present prices.

The original long semi-elliptic springs are still features of construction, as is the chain driven timing gear, the full force feed lubrication and the gasoline tank at the rear.

In the light car field, the Whippet is the only car which is equipped with a full pressure lubrication system having direct leads to all main bearings through a drilled crankshaft.

Whippet four-wheel brakes are of the type which has been accepted as standard by high quality cars since four-wheel brakes were adopted. They are mechanical in type, the front wheel brake bands being of the internal expanding type and the rear wheel bands being of the external contracting type.

The emergency brake operates the rear wheel bands only.

New Hup-Six Cabriolet for Two

A cabriolet for two, designed for the less conservative motor car owner, is announced by the Weber Implement and Motor Car Co., as an addition to the line of body styles for the new Hupmobile "Six of the Century." It comes with or without rumble seat.

The new car is fitted with factory-installed custom equipment such as cowl lights, trunk rack, wire or disc wheels in front fenders. It has one-piece, full-crowned fenders, radiator shell design and cap, military visor and forward-tilting windshield.

Main body color is Hawthorne green with Zanzibar green for the window reveals and wheels, black windshield frame and militar visor, combined with stripings in old ivory. The rear curtain may, of course be removed. Custom equipment matches that of the car's colorings in every detail, including wheels—whether wood, disc or wire. Even the bumpers and tire covers are designed to match the remainder of the car's ensemble.

Interior trimming is a special mohair or leather. All exterior bright work is chromium plated.

About Auburn Connecting Rods

Connecting rods in Auburn engines are of Duraluminum, an aluminum alloy stronger than steel and weighing about one-third less. Life of motor bearings is affected by the heat generated by pressure on them and the forced heat of the cylinder explosion, engineers point out.

"Not only does the Duraluminum connecting rod lighten the load on the bearing, but it provides a high heat conductivity for the cooling and protection of the bearings. Heat accumulating at the bearing is transmitted up this rod to the piston where it is dissipated through the cylinder walls that are completely surrounded by water and through the exhaust," say Auburn engineers.

INTEREST IN AIR COOLING SHOWS IN FRANKLIN SALES

"Interest in 'air-cooled motors for aviation has had a pronounced effect on the sale of Franklin motor cars," says A. E. Spielberg, president of the Franklin Motor Co. of St. Louis.

"This interest is especially keen in St. Louis, which is the home of Col. Lindberg, whose flights in the famous other half of the internationally known 'We' have brought the air-cooled motor into public attention for its efficiency and dependability.

"Other famous pilots using air-cooled motors include Bernt Balchen, pilot for Commander Byrd on his trans-Atlantic flight, who will also pilot Commander Byrd's ship in the proposed Antarctic flight, and Capt. Beery of Chicago, who is a leader in the development of commercial airplane service.

"Capt. Beery recently said that the aviation industry had much to thank Mr. Franklin for because of his development of air-cooling, and cited the fact that all modern developments in aviation motors were directed toward air-cooled power plants.

"Since the presentation of the Airman series, sales of the Franklin in all parts of the country have shown a marked increase.

GRAHAM - PAIGE PRICES IN REACH OF MAJORITY

"Prices recently announced on the new line of Graham-Paige motor cars include a range well within reach of the majority of purchasers," according to Edward Weber, president of the Weber Motor Car Co., local distributer.

"A two-passenger coupe on the six-cylinder model 610 chassis lists at only $860. The five-passenger sedan, on the same chassis, is quoted at $875," says Weber.

"The beautful four-passenger coupe on the six-cylinder model 619 chassis, which has attracted so much favorable comment wherever shown, sells for only $1575. The five-passenger sedan on the same chassis is priced at $1595.

"Three cars on the model 629, the largest six-cylinder chassis in the line, are priced as follows: Five-passenger sedan, $1985; five-passenger town sedan, $2035; and seven-passenger sedan, $2110. All prices, of course, are f. o. b. Detroit.

"These prices include only three of the five of the Graham-Paige models to be built. Price announcements are expected shortly on the six-cylinder model 614 and the eight-cylinder model 835.

40 M. P. H. FIRST DAY WITH STUDEBAKER CAR

Immediate High Speeds Possible Because of New Engineering Methods.

All Studebaker and Erskine cars, including the Dictator, the world champion Commander, and the new President straight eight, may be driven 40 miles an hour the day they are delivered to their owners, according to Alfred Lurie, president of the Lurie Motor Co., Studebaker distributers here.

"That owners may immediately experience the zest of a fast pick-up in traffic or a sudden spurt on the road is due to the fact that before leaving the Studebaker factories all cars are put through a chassis dynamometer test which gives motors, transmissions, and rear axles a thorough preliminary breaking-in before the cars are delivered," says Lurie.

"It has customarily been considered necessary to keep a new car under 20 miles an hour for the first 200 or 300 miles to accomplish the breaking-in that Studebaker now accomplishes with its dynamometer tests. Studebaker's research and proving ground engineers, however, found that the highly skilled workmanship and the precision standards maintained by innumerable inspections of Studebaker cars during manufacture, plus the dynamometer runs in the final inspection, made this tiresome procedure unnecessary.

"As in the case of all Studebaker engineering policies, the decision to raise the old ban against speed was not reached until proving ground engineers had proved conclusively that all Studebaker models could be driven 40 miles an hour on delivery without endangering the long life and endurance for which Studebaker cars are noted.

BASIS OF AUTO FEE ASSESSMENTS VARIES GREATLY

THERE are 11 bases on which the 48 states assess registration fees on private passenger automobiles, according to the American Automobile Association.

The A. A. A. outlines the following summary of the bases used:

"Seventeen states base the rates on horsepower; 14 states on weight; seven states on horsepower plus weight; one state on a flat rate per car; one state on the cost of a motor vehicle; one state on a cubic inch displacement; one state on value plus weight; three states on a flat rate plus weight; one state on value; one state on selling price plus weight and horsepower, and one state on the manufacturer's list price."

HUDSON LINE GOING OVER BIG WITH DEALERS HERE

The enthusiasm of Hudson-Essex dealers in the local distributing territory over the new lines for 1928, first displayed at the auto show last week, rivals even the public interest in the new line, says R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson-Essex distributer here.

"The dealers now feel," says Frampton, "that inthe cars offered by the Hudson Motor Car Co. for 1928 they have a line of merchandise which will compete strongly with any upon the market. Hudson and Essex cars always have been at a price within keeping with public demands in the various classes and they now have the assurance that they also have a car which for style is the equal of any offered this year.

"The slogan for the coming year, 'The Vogue of Tomorrow,' typifies the product and has captured the fancy of dealers and salesmen alike. All express confidence that the year 1928 will be one of the big years in the industry and that the Hudson-Essex dealers would realize an exceptional share of the goor fortune which seems to be the lot of automobile merchandisers the country over.

"We are greatly impressed with the unanimous response which the people are giving in answer to our newspaper announcements. While we expected an unusual interest owing to the great changes which have been announced by so many manufacturers, we were not prepared for the influx of visitors who crowded our floors the past week.

"That this interest is not local is evidenced by a telegram which I received from the Hudson Motor Car Co., which states that reports are coming in from distributers and dealers in typical localities which indicate a reception beyond our fondest hopes."

BRIGGS NASH CO. OPENS DOWNTOWN SERVICE BRANCH

Oldest Nash Dealer Takes Over Part of Eighteenth Street Garage.

Briggs Nash Co., Inc., Nash dealer at Gravois avenue and Frisco Railroad tracks, this week announced the opening of a downtown sales and service branch on the first floor of the Eighteenth Street Garage, at the southwest corner of Eighteenth and Pine streets. Earl F. Arnold, formerly sales manager at the firm's headquarters, will be service manager. Wallace Taylor, formerly a salesman, has been promoted to be sales manager.

Briggs Nash Co., Inc., is the oldest Nash dealer in St. Louis territory, according to H. C. Briggs, president, who stated that his firm's increased business in the central part of St. Louis made opening of the downtown branch imperative.

PEERLESS SET FOR RECORD OUTPUT AND SALES YEAR

Word received by P. H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Motor Co., from the Peerless factory in Cleveland indicates that the company has started on another record-breaking year. Actual shipments of cars for the last month are greater than those of any January in the experience of the Peerless Motor Car Corp., with a single exception. The exception was in 1926, the peak in Peerless history, when production on all models was in full swing.

This year, the new Six-91 was first introduced at the New York Automobile Show, and production was started early in January, taking some time to gather momentum, and the resultant slight decrease in shipments places January, 1928, just slightly below January, 1926.

Price reductions ranging from $50 to $750 on the Six-60, Six-80, and Eight-69, as announced Jan. 10 this year, were also partly responsible for the flood of orders which poured in during the month.

The Peerless distributing organization, larger now than ever before, is displaying great enthusiasm on the year's outlook, and in many cases dealers are sending new high sales records for themselves.

If the cartridge in the oil filter has seen 10,000 miles of service its efficiency has been reduced almost to the vanishing point.

TOUR BUREAU ADDS TO ITS FACILITIES

Post-Dispatch Resort Department Informs on All Travel Subjects.

By OLIVER L. NIEHOUSE, MANAGER, Tour Bureau, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

With the predicted sale of at least 5,000,000 automobiles in the United States in 1928, a general impetus to touring and travel by motor vehicles is foreseen for the coming spring and summer months.

Preparations are being made by tourist bureaus and resort agencies to adequately handle the increasing demand for information. Added facilities will increase the dispatch with which such information is distributed. Closer contact with highway departments in quickly ascertaining road conditions, files which accurately record such conditions, more complete data on resorts and vacation rendezvous, and efficient bureau managers, are among the things which will increase the effectiveness of tour bureaus.

The Post-Dispatch Resort and Tour Bureau, which for the past several years has successfully functioned as a source of information not only to motorist-tourists but to those who travel by rail, water or air, will in 1928 operate on a plan broader in scope than at any time since it has been in existence. And undoubtedly this year it will serve more travelers than in 1927—when it aided many thousands more than in any previous year.

In 1927 the Post-Dispatch Resort and Travel Bureau served over 25,000 people and distributed over 15,000 pieces of resort and tour literature, and as many maps. Of this number over 9000 motorists were routed to recreation points in the Missouri Ozarks, and half as many to vacation points in the lake regions of the North. Approximately 1500 inquiries were received and answered for information to Glacier and Yellowstone National Parks. These parks are open but three months each year.

Aside from automotive touring information, the bureau distributed much information incident to travel by air, water and rail. Over 1500 people telephoned, wrote or visited the bureau for railroad information on all parts of the United States and Canada and often surprise was expressed at the completeness of the bureau's file in this respect.

The coming touring season the bureau will have completely filed information on over 5000 hotels, resorts, dude ranches, fishing resorts, river and lake trips, railroad excursions and the latest available highway reports information. Aside from this it will reply to all queries received by telephone and letter and each Sunday—in the Automobile Section of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch—it will publicly reply to queries on roads and resorts addressed to "How To Go" at the bureau.

NEW PIERCE-ARROW SPEED TRUCK TO BE INTRODUCED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Preparatory to the real introduction early in March of Pierce-Arrow's new commercial speed unit, the first model from the production line departed today on a demonstration tour of the East. In charge of the trip was Harry Ward, who, 17 years ago, drove the first Pierce-Arrow truck over a similar route and upon a similar mission.

The factory now is engaged in actual production of the new vehicle, which will be known as the Fleet Arrow Wagon, and deliveries to distributers will begin within a few days. Exhibitions will be held during March in principal cities throughout the United States.

"Since submitting our program to distributers and dealers at the time of the New York and Chicago National Auto Shows, we have received a volume of orders which indicate that our commercial car division will record a tremendous business expansion during the coming year," said Hal T. Boulden, manager of the division.

"With the steady growth of our heavy duty truck business, the addition of this new speedy delivery unit will enable us to offer a line of commercial cars which will serve every haulage purpose."

The new Fleet Arrow has a payload capacity from 1500 to 4000 pounds, and can maintain road speeds up to 47 miles per hour. It is powered by a Pierce-Arrow six-cylinder engine, which delivers a maximum of more than 70-horse power, and with surprising gasoline economy. Other features are Isotta-Fraschini type of four-wheel safety brakes, short turning radius, high carbon steel frame, radius rods, pneuamtic tires with option of rear duals. It will be built in three lengths of wheelbase, 140-inch, 160-inch and 180-inch. The Western Auto Co., Pierce-Arrow distributer here, will handle the line.

WARNS MOTORISTS TO DESTROY LICENSE TAGS

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Due to the fact that police records here disclosed that some serious crimes are committed by criminals using cars disguised with last year's license plates, J. H. Braun, counsel for the Chicago Motor Club, has issued a warning to all motorists to destroy their old license plates or place them under lock and key.

DRIVE OVER COBBLESTONES AT FORTY MILES AN HOUR

Dodge Victory Six Can Do It, Says F. R. Tate, Distributer Here.

This challenge is made by Frank R. Tate, president of the Tate Motor Car Co., Dodge distributer here, who recently placed on display for the first time the new Dodge Victory Six line.

"It is possible to drive that fast over rough streets with our new car," says Tate, "because of the originality displayed in its construction.

"Two radically new principles are employed. These are particularly interesting in that they put into practice the theoretical opinions recently propounded by the leading engineers and physicists of the country who responded to the questions of Percival White, leading engineer, who has just completed a symposium of automotive needs and trends.

"The first new principle to be found in the Victory Six is the single unit construction of body and chassis. This eliminates body sills and brings the car two inches nearer the ground, with corresponding lowered center of gravity.

"The second principle is a body construction. Double steel walls, battleship type, are used throughout. This insures complete rigidity and double protection. There are only eight major parts in the entire body. And these are so welded together that there is not a chance for even a single squeak.

"The car, owing to simplification is lightened 175 pounds. It will make 21 miles to the gallon and 65 miles per hour.

WORLDWIDE MARKET FOR STEELCOTE ENAMEL

Pride in the appearance of their automobiles is a trait car owners seem to have in common the world over. Even in most remote parts of the globe, they take delight in driving glossy, neat-appearing automobiles.

According to A. E. Niedt of the Steelcote Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, car owners in such far-away places as the little town of Papeete on the Island of Tahiti in the South Pacific Ocean; Calcutta, India, Cape Town, South Africa, and Colombo, Ceylon, are using Steelcote rubber auto enamel to make their old cars look new.

This automobile finish has as a basic ingredient pure Para rubber. It is the presence of this rubber content that makes Steelcote the most remarkable auto refinishing material obtainable.

REO HELPS SOLVE PROBLEM FOR HOLLAND TUBE BUILDERS

An interestihg commercial vehicle problem has been solved by the engineers of the Holland Tubes, world's greatest vehicular tunnel which connects New York and New Jersey and which was opened to traffic the middle of November.

To patrol the four miles of runway, 180 men are used in two-hour shifts. These patrols have to be relieved from underground and under-water duty and transported to open air every two hours. In order to distribute them at their posts and to relieve men on duty with as little loss of time as possible, three Reo speed wagons with special bodies have been purchased for this important work, after exhaustive tests with many makes of motor trucks.

The engineers in charge chose 1½-ton Reo speed wagons equipped with 6-cylinder engines and 4-wheel hydraulic brakes. These brakes are an important factor as quick stops are necessary, not only from the standpoint of safety, but as far as distributing patrols quickly is concerned. The special speed wagon body has doors on the left side, fore and aft, so that the relieving guard steps out of the front door to the runway ledge and the relieved man enters the rear. The doors open inwardly, and permit this instantaneous change without danger.

SCOUTS PLAN SUMMER OF TRAVEL IN TRUCKS

Four Trips Outlined by St. Louis Council as Innovation.

An innovation in Boy Scout activities will be undertaken this summer by the St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts, by the conducting for scouts in this area of four tours covering together a large part of the United States. Three of the trips will be to the East, and one, the longest, to Yellowstone Park. As far as known, no other council has attempted anything similar.

The tours are an outgrowth of the Tepee Campers' bus trip to the East last year, as a climax to a summer at Irondale, the official camp of the local organization. The trip, made in a small bus be-

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

Eagle Scouts Greet National Treasurer

An innovation in Boy Scout activities will be undertaken this summer by the St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts, by the conducting for scouts in this area of four tours covering together a large part of the United States. Three of the trips will be to the East, and one, the longest, to Yellowstone Park. As far as known, no other council has attempted anything similar.

The tours are an outgrowth of the Tepee Campers' bus trip to the East last year, as a climax to a summer at Irondale, the official camp of the local organization. The trip, made in a small bus belonging to the council, occupied a week, but so numerous were the requests for a repetition this year that the present much more comprehensive program was adopted. To fulfill it, two new and larger busses and two light baggage trucks have been bought, and will be used on all tours.

Room for 50 or 60 Boys.

On all four trips between 50 and 60 scouts can be accommodated, in addition to the executive in charge, his assistant, a doctor, and men for bus and truck drivers, cooks and helpers. The boys will pitch their own camps and spend all nights under canvas, except on two of the Eastern trips, when two nights each will be spent at a hotel at Atlantic City. All food and baggage, both general and personal, will be conveyed on the trucks, one of which will also carry a traveling field-kitchen, making the entire outfit completely independent of cities or towns. All tours will be conducted along the same lines, the only difference being in the route and the number of days spent traveling.

The three Eastern trips will be in charge of Field Executive S. C. Reaves of the West District, assisted by C. P. Melton Jr., of the headquarters staff. The Yellowstone tour of the Tepee Campers will be headed by L. L. Hotchkiss, the new assistant scout executive of the local council. Melton will assist him also. Dr. C. E. Colgate, official first aid merit badge examiner, will go on all trips as the physician.

The first camp, the Gypsy Hike, will be the shortest, leaving St. Louis June 9 and returning June 23. The exact itinerary has not been worked out, but the Gypsies probably will visit Washington. While they are away, the first Roving Camp will start, members of this going to Irondale, June 16, camping there and getting in condition for the trip until the Gypsies return. They will then swing in a circle through Gettysburg, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Baltimore and Washington, from there cutting straight across the Alleghenies to the main highway to St. Louis. They will arrive at Irondale July 12, in time for the long Yellowstone tour of the Tepee Campers to begin.

Trip to Last a Month.

The Tepee Campers represent the acme of camping in St. Louis scouting, spending their entire summer either at Irondale or on the road. They must be first-class merit badge scouts, and must have had previous camping experience, as woodcraft and outdoor subjects are their specialties. To prepare for their long ride, they will arrive at Irondale June 30, remaining there until the return of the Rovers July 12. One month will be spent on the busses, following the route shown on the accompanying map. Yellowstone Park, the Garden of the Gods, Pike's Peak, Denver and Big Springs Park will be visited before they return for two weeks more at Irondale, where they will remain until the close of the camp, Sept. 2.

These two weeks also will be occupied by the second Roving Camp tour, which will follow approximately the same route as the first. It will, however, be four days shorter than the first, as it will begin August 11 and end at the close of camp, Sept. 2.

The cost of the trips will be approximately $3.72 a day, this fee including everything—transportation, food, lodging and incidental expenses. The Tepee Camp will cost $238; the Gypsy, $90; the first Roving Camp, $120, and the second, $115.

CINDERELLA'S GOLDEN COACH NOW AT KANSAS CITY SHOW

Solid Gold Chandler Originally Was Displayed at St. Louis Exhibit.

Cinderella's Golden Coach, which was exhibited at the St. Louis Automobile Show, by the Midstates Motors Co., territorial distributor, and the Wilson Motor Car Co., distributer in St. Louis and county of Chandler cars, made its debut at the Kansas City Automobile Show the past week, attracting wide attention, according to R. O. Gresham, factory branch manager at Kansas City.

Owing to the unusual make-up of the car, it is creating even a greater interest at Kansas City than it did at the St. Louis Show which seems to be due to the publicity it received during the St. Louis Show.

Cinderella's olden Coach is a Chandler Royal Eight De Luxe sedan, upholstered in a golden brown broadcloth with tapestry panels descriptive of the story of Cinderella. The entire body of the car is covered with three layers of 24 carat gold, and the belt line around the car is inlaid with genuine mother-of-pearl. The radiator shell, lamps, door handles and bumpers are gold plated. The rest of the car, including the hood, fenders and splashers are copper plated and finished with a gold lacquer.

Visiting officials from the Chandler factory at the St. Louis Show, Sid Black, vice president, and Ralph Nettleton, district territory supervisor, after a personal inspection of the car, decided to display it at the Kansas City Show, and the car was trucked to Kansas City.

It will be remembered that at a previous show, the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., exhibited the Honeymoon Special, which like this car, was shipped out immediately after the St. Louis Show of 1925, by express to Boston, Mass., to be exhibited at that show, and later, was displayed at all the shows which took place after the Boston show.

CADILLAC OUTPUT DOUBLED DURING LAST THREE YEARS

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 18.—Figures showing the doubling of output by the Cadillac Motor Car Co. during the past three years, a phenomenal increase in exports and plans for a further 40 per cent increase in production in 1928 over 1927, were released yesterday by Lynn McNaughton, vice president, before his departure on a tour of Southern and Western states. McNaughton is visiting Cadillac-LaSalle distributers in Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas and California to develop with them the 1928 program.

GARDNER SHOWS INCREASE

Actual shipments of cars by Gardner Motor Co. for January show an increase of 170 per cent over the same month of 1927, Russell E. Gardner Jr., president, announced yesterday.

Gardner's production program for the first quarter of 1928 shows an increase of approximately 60 per cent over the first quarter of last year.

YOUNG OPERATIC TENOR SINGS ON KSD TONIGHT

Frederick Jagel in Atwater Kent Hour With Cellist From England.

Frederick Jagel, young American tenor, who made his Metropolitan Opera debut last November in "Aida," and, Felix Salmond, English cellist, will give the Atwater Kent Hour concert over KSD tonight.

At the age of 4, Jagel began to study music with his father, a church organist, in 1913, at the age of 16, he became a clerk in a wholesale house but sang in a church choir on Sunday. One day he was heard by a silk merchant, Samuel Eisemann, who was so captivated by the beauty of his voice that he offered him assistance in continuing his studies. Soon young Jagel, after engagements at the Capitol and Rivoli theaters, sailed for Europe to study in Milan. After an operatic career in Europe he was engaged for the Metropolitan season of 1927-1928.

Felix Salmond is no stranger to Atwater Kent Hour audiences. He had his first cello lesson at the age of 12, and at the end of three years won a scholarship. His London debut took place in October, 1919. His success in America has been marked.

WLW SEEKING RIGHT TO USE 50,000 WATTS POWER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 18.—Permission to construct and operate a 50,000-watt transmitter for station WLW has been asked of the Federal Radio Commission. It is announced by Powel Crosley Jr., president of the Crosley Radio Corporation, which owns and operates the station.

"Work on the new station will begin as soon as the commission grants the license to operate with the increased power," Crosley said.

"With a 50,000-watt transmitter, WLW hopes to accomplish two purposes. It will give better and more satisfactory service to listeners because the augmented power will eliminate fading and will do away to a great extent with the problem of static. Of course, our second purpose is to increase our effective range and to add to the number of our listeners.

Says It Won't Mean Interference.

"Increase in power will not mean increase in interference, even for set owners living within a few miles of our transmitting station at Harrison, O. Our newly installed crystal control is keeping us absolutely on our exclusive frequency. Set owners living almost in the shadow of the WLW antenna now find that they can tune out the station completely only two points on either side of the 700-kilocycle readings on their radio dials.

"WLW was the first station in the United States to move its transmitter away from its studio and outside of the metropolitan districts where high power might cause interference. In 1924, when the station power was increased to 5000 watts, the new transmitter was located 26 miles from Cincinnati.

Site Carefully Chosen.

"We were looking forward then to increasing the WLW power to 5,000 watts and even to 200,000 watts. So we selected a place far enough from Cincinnati and the other thickly populated districts of Ohio to build our new transmitter."

YOUNG OPERATIC TENOR SINGS ON KSD TONIGHT

Frederick Jagel in Atwater Kent Hour With Cellist From England.

Frederick Jagel, young American tenor, who made his Metropolitan Opera debut last November in "Aida," and, Felix Salmond, English cellist, will give the Atwater Kent Hour concert over KSD tonight.

At the age of 4, Jagel began to study music with his father, a church organist, in 1913, at the age of 16, he became a clerk in a wholesale house but sang in a church choir on Sunday. One day he was heard by a silk merchant, Samuel Eisemann, who was so captivated by the beauty of his voice that he offered him assistance in continuing his studies. Soon young Jagel, after engagements at the Capitol and Rivoli theaters, sailed for Europe to study in Milan. After an operatic career in Europe he was engaged for the Metropolitan season of 1927-1928.

Felix Salmond is no stranger to Atwater Kent Hour audiences. He had his first cello lesson at the age of 12, and at the end of three years won a scholarship. His London debut took place in October, 1919. His success in America has been marked.

WLW SEEKING RIGHT TO USE 50,000 WATTS POWER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 18.—Permission to construct and operate a 50,000-watt transmitter for station WLW has been asked of the Federal Radio Commission, it is announced by Powel Crosley Jr., president of the Crosley Radio Corporation, which owns and operates the station.

"Work on the new station will begin as soon as the commission grants the license to operate with the increased power," Crosley said.

"With a 50,000-watt transmitter, WLW hopes to accomplish two purposes. It will give better and more satisfactory service to listeners because the augmented power will eliminate fading and will do away to a great extent with the problem of static. Of course, our second purpose is to increase our effective range and to add to the number of our listeners.

Says It Won't Mean Interference.

"Increase in power will not mean increase in interference, even for set owners living within a few miles of our transmitting station at Harrison, O. Our newly installed crystal control is keeping us absolutely on our exclusive frequency. Set owners living almost in the shadow of the WLW antenna now find that they can tune out the station completely only two points on either side of the 700-kilocycle readings on their radio dials.

"WLW was the first station in the United States to move its transmitter away from its studio and outside of the metropolitan districts where high power might cause interference. In 1924, when the station power was increased to 5000 watts, the new transmitter was located 26 miles from Cincinnati.

Site Carefully Chosen.

"We were looking forward then to increasing the WLW power to 5,000 watts and even to 200,000 watts. So we selected a place far enough from Cincinnati and the other thickly populated districts of Ohio to build our new transmitter."

NOTED NEGRO SINGER STARRED IN BROADCAST

Harry Burleigh to Be Feature of General Motors Hour Tomorrow Night.

An hour of folk songs and spirituals of the Negro race, with Harry Burleigh, foremost colored musician of the world, singing them with orchestral, band and choral accompaniment, will feature General Motors Family party on KSD tomorrow night.

For 35 years Burleigh has been the principal soloist at St. George's Episcopal Church in New York City, retained over that long period by a white congregation because of the beautiful quality of his baritone voice and his devotion to religious music.

Has Saved Songs of His Race.

He is given full credit in the world of music for having saved the Negro folk songs and spirituals from oblivion. Years of research and study of the music of his people have resulted in the composition and arrangement by him of 135 of these songs, whose beginnings go back to antiquity in Africa. His best known composition of this nature is "Deep River."

Burleigh was born in Erie, Pa., 61 years ago, the grandson of a slave. His success in music has been coincident with a long struggle for livelihood in a restricted field of endeavor, varying from deck hand to bookkeeper. In spite of these limitations, he managed to work his way through school and to graduate from Howard University in Washington, D. C. During later years his path has been smoother, as his great voice and his compositions have brought him substantial remuneration.

The spirituals of the American Negro to be sung Monday evening, are said to constitute the most extensive and varied body of folk song that is still alive and growing in any civilized country.

Unique Songs.

The type itself is a hybrid with almost infinite variety. As a basis, the Negro used the hymns of white people, more or less unconsciously, taking them apart and rebuilding them with additions from many sources. He incorporated a little of everything from the Bible down to popular stage songs in his day, and unified all by instilling into it his own psychology, pathos and humor.

Unique in their imagery, style and creative effort, these songs defy imitation.

Will Sing Popular Ballads.

A recital of popular ballads, sung by Mortimer Chadbourne, tenor, and Taylor Buckley, baritone, will be broadcast by WJZ and KYW at 6:30 tonight.

RADIO SERVICE MEN WILL BE FORMALLY REGISTERED

Action to organize and train the radio service men of St. Louis has been formally taken by the members of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association. The association has voted to register service men in the office of its secretary-manager, W. B. Mackie, and to campaign to enroll all dealers in the metropolitan area as members. Dealers who now are members are enrolling their service men and dealers who join will be expected to do so on signing the rolls.

It is planned to hold an examination and to issue cards to service men who pass. They, and those who fail to pass the examination, will be able to attend weekly free classes in which they will be instructed in installation, service and repair of receivers and accessories.

SCHEDULE FOR TODAY OVER COLUMBIA CHAIN

Haydn "Surprise" Symphony and Smetana Tone Poem to Be Played at 2 O'Clock.

The overture on French Noels of Philip James will be played for the first time in the Columbia Chain Symphonic Hour at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The second work to be played is the Symphony No. 6 of Haydn, known as the "Surprise" Symphony. It is so called because at the end of each movement, or part, there is a crash on the kettledrums or tympani. All four movements of this Symphony are to be played.

Another work to be heard at this time is Smetana's symphonic poem, "Die Moldau," a musical picture of the river that flows through Prague.

The Cathedral Hour.

"Ave Maria," by Arthur Bergh, seldom broadcast, is to be a feature of the Cathedral Hour at 3 o'clock this afternoon. It will be sung as a tenor solo.

Among other solos in this period will be "O Rest in the Lord," from "Elijah," contralto, and "Ein Ton" (The Monotone), of Cornelius, baritone, with string orchestral accompaniment.

Tonight's Columbia Features.

The Stillman-Kelley "Lady Picking Mulberries," which is Chinese in theme and written to imitate the tempo of Chinese music, is to be featured in the Emerson Hour at 8 o'clock tonight.

Hawley's "Bugle Song," in which bugle calls are imitated by voices, is to be sung by the quartet in the American Singers' program at 8:30 tonight. Another Hawley song, "When Love Is Gone," will be sung by Frank Croxton, basso of the quartet. Redfern Hollinshead, the second tenor, will sing Lady Nairn's "The Rowan Tree." An old Neapolitan air, "Santa Lucia," Sir Edward Elgar's "It's Oh, to Be a Wildwind," and "Bliss' "The Last Fly of Summer," a parody on "The Last Rose of Summer," also are to be sung in this period.

The four American Indian songs of Charles Wakefield Cadman will be the fifth of the song cycles in the Sunday night concerts of Don Voorhees and his concert band.

Songs in the Cadman cycle are such favorites as "From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water," "The White Dawn Is Stealing," "Far Off I Hear a Lover's Flute" and "The Moon Drops Low." Charles Harrison, tenor, will sing these songs.

Cadman has spent years in close association with various Indian tribes learning their tribal melodies.

WRAPE AGAIN HEADS NATIONAL TRADE BODY

St. Louisan Elected to Third Term as President of Federated Association.

Harold Wrape of St. Louis was re-elected president for a third term of the Federated Radio Trades Association, a national organization of factory representatives, jobbers and dealers, at its meeting the past week in Milwaukee, Wis. Three other St. Louisans —Fred Wiebe, Sam Singer and Julian Sampson—were elected directors.

Wrape, who has served also as president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, is generally recognized as the man most responsible for the organization and growth of the Federated body. Recognition by the radio factories, as evidenced at the Milwaukee meeting, and steps taken at the meeting, are expected to result in the Federated Association playing a leading part in the industry.

At the meeting, the Federation was divided into three groups—factory representatives, wholesalers and dealers. Each division is to have its own officers, elected from the directors of the Federation. Hereafter, the jobbers, or the dealers, will be able to take up their problems direct with the factories through their division officers. Fred Wiebe is expected to have an active part in the jobbers' division.

Another important step taken at the meeting was recommendation that a radio "blue book" be prepared and adopted by the retailers in the various cities. The purpose is to establish fixed valuations for used receivers.

Vibrant Melodies on WJZ.

A Vibrant Melodies program on WJZ and KDKA at 8:30 tonight will bring "Gypsy Love Song," "Dawn of Tomorrow," "End of a Perfect Day" and "Up in the Clouds."

Robert B. Mantell, who comes to the American Theater for a week of the classics, in one of his best-known roles.

Tragedy and Things Like That

Mantell Comes With Six Classical Plays in as Many Nights, While Blanche Yurka Offers "The Squall" —Lucille La Verne Recalls the Old Days When She Played Here With the Giffin Stock Company.

By H. H. NIEMEYER

HEAVY drama is the bill of fare for the theatergoers this week. The Shubert, starting tonight, has Blanche Yurka in "The Squall" a play of a triangle in Spain. At the American tomorrow night Mr. Mantell and Genevieve Hamper begin an engagement of six nights in which they will present as many different classical dramas and even the Orpheum has a near tragedy for its feature act with a 45-minute play in which Lucille La Verne, an old-timer of the legitimate stage, appears as the star. Only the Empress theater, with its stock company, will furnish the comedy with "The Champion," a story of a prize fighter who drags his family up to social prominence through his ring successes.

Mr. Mantell and Miss Hamper have decided that the classical drama shall not disappear from the stage if they can help it. Accordingly comes the announcement that the highest price for seats during their St. Louis engagement will be $1.50, with the upper sections of the house scaled at $1 and 50 cents. The Wednesday matinee, taking place on Washington's Birthday, a holiday when most theaters charge top prices, will be a bargain affair, the best seats selling at $1, with others available at 75 cents and 50 cents. It is believed that these prices will bring out capacity audiences, and if this happens everybody will be satisfied that prices are a most important factor in what is happening to the legitimate theater.

A number of requests were received for the modern version of "Hamlet," but those desirous of seeing the play presented with its three hundred years' traditions preserved far outnumbered the former, and in consequence the version with which most people are familiar will be presented.

The plays and the order in which they will be offered are: "The Merchant of Venice," Monday evening: "Hamlet," Tuesday evening; "As You Like It," Wednesday matinee; "Julius Caesar," Wednesday evening; "Richelieu," Thursday evening; "Macbeth," Friday evening; "Julius Caesar," Saturday matinee, and "The Merchant of Venice" on Saturday evening.

BLANCHE YURKA, who brings "The Squall" to the Shubert tonight is little known to St. Louis theatergoers except by reputation—a reputation considerably enhanced by the long run of her present drama in New York. In it the actress plays the role of an harassed Spanish mother. Strange to say Miss Yurka has been playing foreign women almost exclusively. Some seasons ago she appeared in New York in the title role of "The Wife With A Smile," a French comedy presented by the Theater Guild. Later she was seen as Gina, the Norwegian peasant wife, in the Actors' Theater production of Ibsen's "The Wild Duck." Another Norwegian part fell to her lot when she was cast as Molla Hansen, the lighthouse keeper in "The Sea Woman" at the Little Theater, New York, two seasons ago. Then came the part of the Serbian mother in "The Goat Song," and after that her present engagement as Senora Mendez in "The Squall."

Miss Yurka was born in Bohemia but most of her childhood years were spent in St. Paul, where she began voice culture in preparation for an operatic career. Her first stage engagement came as an understudy to Charlotte Walker, in "The Warrens of Virginia," and with this engagement she definitely put behind her all thoughts of the opera.

ON the other hand St. Louisans—those who can go back a few years in the theater, will remember Lucille La Verne very well. Miss La Verne, who is playing a condensed version of "Sun Up" at the Orpheum this week, was with the Giffen Stock Company here and played everything from Camille to Hazel Kirke. During the past week she has been here "resting" while her playlet was taking a week off. The other night she was recalling some of the old days of the theater. "I was thrown into character parts when I was very young, and advised to stay there," she said. The late Mrs. Fernande said to me, after my performance of "Corin" in an all-women cast of "As You Like It:" "The shoes left vacant by Charlotte Cushman may be filled by Lucille LaVerne, if you aren't a fool." However, I rebelled against character parts when an offer was made to play leads in a stock company in San Francisco. After my success there I was all primed to remain a "leading woman."

A Half Century of Shakspeare—and Mantell

FATE herself set a tragic stage for the voyage which brought to America a young man who was later to be one of the few stage tragedians of our day. Young Robert B. Mantell with a contract in his pocket to tour America with the great Madame Modjeska, unable to sleep and thinking of the homeland which he was leaving and of the new land to which he brought his talents, walked upon the deck of the ocean liner the Helvetia. In the early hours of the morning, suddenly, without warning the Helvetia crashed into the little revenue cutter "The Fanny" cutting her squarely in two as with a knife. When the sailors and passengers rushed on deck Mantell was throwing a rope overboard. Seven men were rescued but the rest of the crew went down. Two weeks later Robert Mantell made his professional debut on the American stage at Albany N. Y., as Tybalt in "Romeo and Juliet." The date was Nov. 18, 1878.

This story with a great many others has been written by C. J. Bulliet into a biography which he called "Robert Mantell's Romance." Although Mantell has been associated with the name of Shakspeare for many years it must be remembered that his first great successes were in the old fashioned melodramas "Monbars," "The Corsican Brothers," "The Face in the Moonlight," and many others. Bulliet tells this story of the opening in New York of "Fedora."

Fanny Davenport had secured from Sardou the American rights to his new play, "Fedora," by the payment down of a cool $35,000 in cash. She had pawned everything she possessed to raise the money, including a necklace of 25 magnificent diamonds valued at $1000 each.

THE names of Sardou and Davenport filled the theater with the elite of New York. It looked like a millionaire night at the opera. The audience expected great things—great sensations—great thrills.

The swish of the curtain as it went down on the first act was distinctly audible. There was scarcely a ripple of even polite applause. Decidedly the audience was disappointed. Miss Davenport was gloomy and downcast. Mantell cheered her up the best he could.

The curtain fell on the second act. Again there was no applause. Fanny Davenport was in tears. Her little fortune had been thrown away.

But Mantell became angry. His Scotch blood rose up.

"We'll hit 'em next time, the icebergs!" he said to Miss Davenport, with something near a savage growl in his voice.

The spirit was contagious. The star dried her eyes. "All right," she replied, and set her teeth.

The curtain went up. Loris Ipanoff, the outlaw, and Fedora, the tigress, buckled down to work like grim death.

Fedora's lover had been assassinated. Loris, the suspect, had been tracked down, and was now confronted by the woman. She was cross-questioning him.

Yes, he had seen the slain man. He had caught him and his own fiancee together, she sitting on his knee.

THE spell of the story was beginning to work. The spirit of the players was crossing the footlights. The audience became tense. How, now, was Loris Ipanoff going to establish his innocence, after this damning admission?

"I killed him!"

The confession was tremendously startling. It had been wholly unexpected. The audience forgot itself. Scores sprang to their feet and yelled.

"Kill them both! Kill them both!" shrieked Fedora.

Again there was an answering yell from the other side of the footlights.

The play was made!

A few weeks later, Fanny Davenport, one night before the curtain went up, dangled a magnificent diamond necklace in front of Mantell's eyes.

"I got it back," she said, happily.

There is no treason to the memory of Fanny Davenport in asserting that Loris Ipanoff was the making of "Fedora." That is the report of the press of the period and the opinion expressed after all these years by the theatergoers who saw the play in its prime. Miss Davenport herself acknowledged it, and instead of becoming jealous and ridding herself of so "dangerous" a leading man, she raised his salary to a handsome figure.

AT the close of the engagement of "Fedora," Mantell was besieged with offers and accepted from Daniel Frohman what was then a fabulous salary, $10,000 a year.

His triumph in Fedora many years later was duplicated in the classic play "Richard III." Stage history contains no stranger parallel. In 1883 Mantell as "Loris Ipanoff" flashed upon New York as one of the most brilliant actors of his time. For 10 years he was a star of magnitude, and then suddenly he disappeared from the theatrical heavens of the metropolis. One misfortune had followed close on the heels of another, family troubles, financial reverses and worst of all legal proceedings kept him from New York. When he returned he was a stranger. New York fickle then, as now, had forgotten; but one night he electrified Broadway in his transcendent performance of Richard III just as he had captured that blase thoroughfare years before in Fedora.

On the night before his scheduled appearance at the Princess, Mantell slept at the Lamb's Club. Earlier in the evening he had been discussing his proposed venture with friends.

"Have you gone crazy, Bob?" one had asked. "Richard' for an opening! Whoever heard of such a thing!"

"Are you in your second childhood, Mantell?" had observed another.

"Do you think New York wants 'Richard'—especially at Christmas time?" a third had asked. "Why don't you do 'Monbars' or 'The Corsican Brothers,' or something like that? I tell you, Shakspeare's a dead one in this town."

"IF you've got to give us Shakespeare," advised a fourth, 'why don't you do something that's got a chance? 'Hamlet' or 'The Merchant' or something? You'll never get a nickel with 'Richard.' You can't draw a critic to the Princess even for the luxury of roasting you."

Mantell strained every nerve to project across the footlights everything that was in him but never in stage history in a moment so critical had a great actor been so handicapped.

It had come about in this way. The stage crew at the Princess that afternoon had demanded a scenic rehearsal. It would have meant a little money for them but Mantell had no money to spend for anything not absolutely essential. Mantell's refusal to order a scenic rehearsal rankled in the breasts of the Princess house crew. They concocted a scheme that would "break up the show."

One of the stage hands in crossing behind the drop lunged heavily against the actor through the canvas, almost knocking him down. He had hardly done so when another tripped over a stage brace and saved himself from falling only by throwing out his arms and striking Mantel a heavy blow through the drop.

So admirably impassive did Mantell seem to the insolence that even the most experienced playgoer in the audience did not notice there was anything seriously wrong. Mantell finished his lines and went off for a few moments, inwardly boiling but outwardly calm.

"HERE, Hammy," said the actor, turning to his valet. "Run like a good boy to my dressing room and get the glove I use in the last act."

The excited valet was away, and back in a moment.

"Now take a good look at this gauntlet," said Mantell to the crew. "It is studded with iron. I'm a strong man, and with a blow of this glove I can fell an ox. I'm going to wear this through the rest of the play. If there's the least disturbance back here when I'm on the stage, I'll walk off instantly and I'll brain the man that's making it."

Never in his career did Mantell act on a quieter stage than after that little speech. Nor even did he play with more fire. The wrath engendered by his fight with the crew was converted into dramatic fury and he literally electrified his little audience.

Mantell quickly followed up his success as Richard with a performance of "Othello," in which he scored another triumph. Mantell had "come back."

St. Louis has always played an important part in the life of Robbert Mantell and Bulliet's book contains many references and stories of Mantell's experiences here. The first mention of St. Louis is from Mantell's diary when 50 years ago on his tour with Modjeska he speaks of St. Louis "as a very important city; some folks say larger than Chicago." An amusing story is told of the opening of the "Louisianian" in St. Louis.

ON THIS night, Mantell took the "longest chance" he has ever taken in his entire career, and the thrills back on the stage were much more electric than any he

Shock for Movie Magnates

Jolson Failed to Come Up to Expectations as an Attraction for the Picture House Fans by Many Thousands of Dollars—How the Cinema Stars Look Upon Personal Appearances and The Value of Their Names in Advertising.

AL JOLSON simply astounded the wise men of the theatrical world by taking something which might almost be called a flop at Loew's here last week. Al, the king pin of entertainers who was looked upon as a sure fire attraction and who was expected to draw at least $60,000 into the theater probably fell $20,000 short of that figure and while the theater is not making public the exact amount of the pickings the total intake was probably under $40,000. What Jolson got out of it is not known but his check was in the neighborhood of $17,000. The theater's books will likely show a loss on the week.

Not until Thursday did the crowds begin to realize that Jolson was in town and on Friday, the wind up of the engagement, Loew's did its best business of the week with the exception of Sunday.

Of course $40,000 is a good deal of money for a single actor to pull into a theater. And almost all of it was due to Jolson alone, for the feature picture on the same bill was a terrible affair. But $40,000, if the house did that much, is little more than a good picture will draw. "The Student Prince" got about that much a week or so ago in the same theater with no featured side show and other pictures have done as well. Up to the last two days of the Jolson engagement there was never a time when there was a real line at the box office. The reason was probably due to the fact that the vast motion picture audiences of the country have never heard of Jolson and have very little interest in anyone who is not in pictures. They would rather see Mae Murray or some other old timer of the films making a personal appearance.

One might imagine that Jolson's regular following of $4.40 patrons would have flocked to Loew's to be entertained by their favorite, but when you consider that the total number of persons who pay the big prices at the legitimate houses to see his shows is only about 17,000 in a week they cut very little figure in a picture house. At the cinemas 17,000 is little more than a good Sunday crowd.

Jolson lacked nothing as an entertainer. He is as good today as he ever was but the picture fans simply did not want him overly much. His experience here will make the movie house managers around the country think twice before they engage another big star for his name alone.

SPEAKING of personal appearances of Mae Murray and others of the films one can recall that 20 years ago the only way a motion picture actress could get her name hooked up with widely advertised merchandise was to write a testimonial letter to a patent medicine company. Today the makers of everything from toothpicks to talcum powder clamor for "tie-ups" with featured film players, and everyone who has anything at all to sell, promote or popularize wants to hitch his wagon to a star.

Already so many of these wagons have been hitched that Hollywood's celebrities are pulling considerable freight for the big national advertisers. Billboards have blurted out the name of the breakfast food that keeps Reginald Denny in trim. It is no longer a secret that James Cruze, the director, smokes cigarettes to improve his voice. Anyone who reads the magazine advertisements knows Jack Mulhall, Lloyd Hughes and George Lewis wear bow ties that were tied at the factory, and it has leaked out through similar channels that Charlie Murray likes a trick shaving cream and Billie Dove believes in the health-giving qualities of orange juice.

SOME of these nation-wide "tie-ups" are as welcome to the star as to the manufacturer, but the stars are becoming more and more particular, and even featured players not yet securely established as stars do not hesitate to say "No," The makers of a widely advertised corn-plaster got a quick refusal from Pola Negri when they suggested giving her some free space on their billboards. And Louise Brooks, who prides herself on her perfect feet, coldly passed up an opportunity to share the popularity of a well-known brand of arch-supporter shoes.

Even the makers of a toilet soap which probably will be recommended by several duchesses before the advertising campaign is over received a frigid rebuff recently from several stars who resented any one taking it for granted they would recommend anything that could bring them additional publicity.

What drives the stars and their representatives frantic, however, is the vast flood of "tie-up" requests from merchants, manufac-

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.

IN a restaurant the other evening there came a beautiful lady, clad imperiously in cool black. She had the flushed cheeks and enchanted expression of youth, but her hair was snow white. It seemed as though every diner paused in the meal to stare as she swept through the room. The head waiter told me the story. She is the daughter of a rich man. Three summers ago she was visiting a country estate near New York. One evening, when others retired, she sat on a veranda alone drinking in the beauty of the night. Suddenly the entire household was aroused by a ghastly scream. They found her unconscious on the veranda floor and a bat trying to untangle itself from her golden hair. That night her hair turned white.

THERE is something stimulating about Harlem's "main stem," which is 125th street. It is different and in many ways more New Yorkish than other bustling thoroughfares. There are the pool hall and barber shop characters that might have stepped from one of Tad's cartoons. Radios buzz to attract trade. Movies are gaudily bannered and the sporting clubs appeal to youths in fancy sweaters instead of raccoon coats. It is a street where derbies cocked to one side and high buttoned shoes with colored uppers are common. Yet with all its slightly blatant manner 125th street has a certain dignity It has a large hotel that attracts a steady trade among many it would be suspected would prefer the downtown location and environment.

IT has been my observation that the longer a man lives in New York the less inclined he is to mix with the herd. The infinite variety stales. What once seemed high spots of gaiety become the lowlands of monotony. A seasoned old dramatic critic once told me the theater had the same depressing effect as a cemetery. He went to it night after night as one might go to a temporary inquisition. He got so he despised all actors. The people who love New York most are rarely seen in pleasure markets. They see the beauty in its magnificent progress and the stirring of its ambition. Their life outside their business affairs becomes almost as cloistered as the farmer. And Broadway, the night clubs, the opera, the cafes and such become as alien to them as to the North Dakota plainsman. With only New York to support them, most of the gay places would perish in a few months, as you have probably heard.

DESPITE all the fascination of the leaping, zig-zaggy electric signs on Broadway, I have yet to find one as fascinating as the trick tin signs of 25 years ago. I can remember one especially heralding the wonders of a pill. It seemed to be a background of wood bristling with horizonial and vertical strips of tin. Facing it squarely you read one sentence and walking away from either the left or right you read a different sentence. What a thrill!

THE moods of New York are volatile and no other city seems so affected by weather. On one of those sullen zinc gray days with a low-hanging mist, in three shops I noticed clerks showing no interest in making a sale. Pedestrians seemed to slouch along the streets and at a luncheon place everybody seemed to be sulking. To add to the gloom, there came those depressing blasts of fog horns from the river. But on a bright sunny morning New York seems to awaken and stretch like a playful kitten. There is a lightness to the pedestrian's step. Truckmen whistle and policemen indulge in pleasant banter. Weather is a fine thing. A columnist can always stir up a paragraph about it.

Tschaikowsky's Symphony Heads Orchestra Program

Max Steindel Will Be Soloist at Pair of Concerts at Odeon, Friday Afternoon and Saturday Night With Carl Schuricht Again Acting as Conductor.

TSCHAIKOWSKY'S Symphony will be the major work on the program which Carl Schuricht will present as guest conductor and with H. Max Steindel as soloist, at the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's regular concerts at the Odeon, Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week.

That work, with the possible exception of Dvorak's "From the New World" symphony, stands out as the most popular of symphonies with American audiences. It was Tschaikowsky's last musical utterance before his curiously coincidental death.

Dvorak, too, is represented on the program with his concerto in B minor for violoncello, which Max Steindel presents. The opening number, the overture to "Manfred" is by Robert Schumann, who incidently was a friend of Musikdirektor Albin Steindel, the grandfather of the soloist.

Like Dvorak's symphony the violoncello concerto is an utterance "from the New World," in that it was written in America. However, since it was not given a programmatic name there has been little endeavor to trace out any affiliations with characteristic American folk-melodies.

"Pathetic" was written in Europe.

Steindel is widely known for his service as 'cellist with the orchestra and as a soloist. He has also conducted the St. Louis Symphony orchestra, and several smaller concert orchestras and ensemble groups. A member of a distinguished musical family—his uncle, Bruno Steindel of Chicago, ranks among the masters of the instrument—Max made his first professional appearance as a musician when a child. At the age of nine he had appeared with his father and brothers as the Steindel quartet in the musical centers of Europe and which played before many royal personages, including Queen Victoria of England. The father and his son, Ferdinand Steindel, who has been heard as piano soloist with the orchestra; Max and Albin, formerly second concertmaster of the St. Louis orchestra, composed the quartet.

Facing the Music

STRONG blending of classic and popular works appears in the program for the free popular organ recital by O. Wade Fallert this afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard. A group of attractive vocal numbers will be interpreted by Miss Beulah Slocumb, contralto.

The Concordia Seminary Students Chorus, under the direction of Mr. William B. Heyne, will give its twenty-sixth annual concert at the Odeon Tuesday evening. It will give a program of sacred choral music, with the assistance of the Glee Club and members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Charles Galloway gives his regular monthly organ recital at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. He will be assisted by Miss Edna Wagner, soprano soloist of First Church of Christ Scientist, who will sing "Hear Ye, Israel" from "Elijah" and "Consider the Lilies."

The organ numbers will be "Prelude and Fugue in C Major," J. S. Bach; "Scherzo in E Major," Charles Marie Widor, played entirely in staccato; "Sonata in G Minor," Gustav Merkel; "Toccata in E Major," Homer N. Bartlett; "Le Badinage," Alphonse Mailly; "Prayer and Cradle Song," Lily Wadhaus Moline, and "Grand Choeur in E Flat," Alexander Guilmant. The public is invited to attend.

EUGENE GOOSENS at the piano, and Sylvain Noack, violinist, will give a sonata evening at Sheldon Auditorium, 3646 Washington boulevard, tonight under the auspices of the St. Louis Chamber Music Society. Mr. Goosens' presence in the city as guest conductor for the last pair of orchestral concerts made it possible for the society to enter into an arrangement with Mr. Goosens and Mr. Noack for the sonata evening.

The program meeting of the Morning Etude Music Club at the Missouri Hotel auditorium Wednesday at 10:15, will include a talk on modern music by Nathan Sachs.

The hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. A. Fellhauer and Mrs. J. C. Fritz.

The third annual concert of the Maple Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Maple and Belt avenues, will be given at the church Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock by the Church Music Committee, under the direction of Henry Arthur, musical director. Ellis Levy, well-known violinist of St. Louis, will be the feature soloist of the evening.

A "popular" program, including favored selections from light operas, Negro spirituals and folk-songs, will be presented by the church quartet, consisting of Mrs. Robert Roloff, soprano; Mrs. Emma Hart, contralto; Carl Latowsky, tenor, and Arthur Joseffy, baritone. The concert is complimentary.

"The Chimes of Normandy," a light opera, will be presented by the music clubs of the Y. M. H. A.—Y. W. H. A. on Feb. 25 and 26. Singing the principal parts will be Miss Annette Schudmak, Miss Lillian Wohl, Lawrence Finkel, Fred Superior, and Lester Levin. A chorus of 40 and an orchestra of 30, all members of the "Y" are being trained for this production.

The Progressive Series Teachers' College will present Ernest R. Kroeger and Miss Louise Kroeger in a recital Thursday evening at the Recital Hall, 4525 Olive street.

JOLSON ENGAGEMENT A SHOCK TO MOVIE THEATER MAGNATES

turers, clubs, theaters and religious organizations in or near the studio area.

Because he knows hundreds of film celebrities are just around the corner, so to speak, every other delicatessen proprietor in Los Angeles opening a new shop thinks it would be great publicity for Lillian Gish if she officiated as hostess at the opening and had her picture taken sampling the smoked herring. And hardly anyone thinks of breaking ground for a new building without asking Mary Pickford to turn the first spadeful of earth. No railroad puts a new crack passenger train on the tracks without a movie actress to break a bottle of sparkling cider on the locomotive.

WHEN stars beg to be excused, youthful contract players usually are acceptable, and since the studios like to keep everyone happy the newly-signed beauty from Oklahoma is often far busier filling "tie-up" engagements in and near Hollywood than she is acting in pictures.

It still is difficult for many advertisers to realize, but the fact remains that picture players who once eagerly sought publicity have it forced on them now in annoying plentitude. So far, no star has adopted the practice of kings and restricted commercial "tie-ups" to such formal acknowledgments as "Perfumer by Appointment to Gloria Swanson," "Haberdasher by Appointment to Douglas Fairbanks," "Tobacconist by Appointment to John Barrymore," and the like. But maybe that will come.

EIGHTY-FIVE per cent of the world's motion pictures are made in Hollywood, according to Clifford B. Hawley, president of First National, who represented the motion picture industry in a radio address, broadcast from New York as a part of the "Home-Made Science University" series.

"People of the entire world like stories as told by Americans," says Hawley. "America has something that is alluring to all nationalities. American life and manners and customs and history always have been of absorbing interest in every clime. Travel where you will throughout the world and you find that from peasant to King the most romantic country to them, the land they are most eager to visit, the land of promise, is America.

"This country, of course, is a blending of the ideas and ideals of all countries. If any nation is cosmopolitan, it is the United States.

"Foreign Governments credit the motion picture for the remarkable increase in the sale of American goods abroad. France is buying American office equipment because the office employes have seen modern American offices in the movies and have demanded better desks and files and paste pots.

"In America, the movies are selling American goods, too. Several years ago you may have laughed at the way some of the motion picture producers in lavish scenes hid their telephones in fantastic covers. The idea originated in the minds of the producers. Now you can buy these in any department store.

"No producer knowingly makes a picture that will offend any foreign Power. To do so would eliminate the people of that country from his list of buyers. It is absurd to state that any American producer has at any time deliberately ridiculed any race or creed. He is no more likely to so alienate a group than the proprietor of a great New York department store would announce that he didn't like the people who live in Westchester County and hoped that they wouldn't come into his store."

Students in "Twelfth Night."

The Morse School of Expression will present Skakspeare's "Twelfth Night" at the Toy Theater, Musical Art Building, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Those taking part will be: Alice Kelahan, Mary Gifford, Florence Schreiber, Julia G. Klauber, Dorothy Burg, Kathryn Wade, Maudean Jones-Crane, Edwina Harbison, Ruth Boismenue, Catherine Tait, Grace Theodoropolous, Adele Baer, Charlene Davis, Ann Lewis, Mary James, Nanetta Hancocks, Eileen Parmenter, Julia Boehmer, Alice Still and Ella Bondurant.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18.

THE picture colony is mourning the passing of another player in the films whose rise as an entertainer had been rapid and deserving. On Friday, Feb. 3, Ted McNamara, whose mobile Irish face figured so prominently in the part of Private Kiper in "What Price Glory," died in Ventura, Cal., in a mountain cottage to which he had been taken after contracting a cold which resulted in pneumonia.

It was Kiper, you recall, who made his way all through the war deeming each day a failure in which he did not, at least once, enrage Capt. Flagg by delivering to that harassed officer a booming expression of wholly good-natured contempt. Kiper undoubtedly would have told you that he was giving Flagg the raspberry. The performance was superbly funny.

His next pictures for the Fox company, bringing him out in featured positions, were "Mother Machree" (not yet released), "Colleen," "Chain Lighting," "The Gay Retreat" and "Gateway of the Moon." In each of these he was a most attractive figure, and he was well along toward the estate of star. He was from vaudeville. His career was brief but it was one of distinction.

There is something inherently dramatic about a fire engine. Perhaps that is why so many of them have drifted into the movies after outliving their usefulness as fire-fighting machines.

Some of these ancient horse-drawn engines really lead a busier life, now that they've retired, than they led when they were the pride of some city fire department. For now they not only dash to make-believe fires in pictures of the pre-automobile age, they do any number of odd jobs around the studios.

One old relic on the Hal Roach lot heats the water for the bathing girls when the script of a comedy calls for a few splash-me scenes in the tank. At First National several of them are busy just now making steam-heated rainstorms, the idea being to keep Richard Barthelmess and his fellow-players as comfortable as possible when they emote under a pouring rain at night. The old engines heat the rain-drops in wholesale quantities and deliver them as called for.

Antique fire engines also have been used to heat the "ocean" in which a movie ship wallows in a make-believe storm. Sometimes it happens that a fire engine provides water under pressure for the hydraulic rocker that rocks the boat, another fire engine pumps water to the elevated tanks from which waves suddenly dash against and over the ship, and still another furnishes the warm rain that goes with the hurricane.

When a gag-man was struck with the idea of having Billy Dooley fall out of the sky into a Turkish bath it was an old fire engine that supplied the steam for the steam-cabinet scene, and when the private affairs of Helen of Troy were made public in celluloid it was an old fire engine that kept the ancient Greek incense-burners looking business-like by feeding them steam which resembled the smoke of incense.

Many of these old machines could, and occasionally do, go to a real fire. The only reason most of them were discarded by fire departments was that they could not get to a fire quickly enough in this motor-driven age. But if a fire comes to them, on the studio lot, they can still fight back.

Tea at Mary Pickford's. It is a rare event for the newly chosen Baby Stars of 1928 who are her guests, for most of them never before have been inside the gates of Pickfair, nor met the famous actress face to face. Strange as it may seem to those who think all film folks see a great deal of one another, that is the way things happen here.

An exception is Lupe Velez, who played opposite Douglas Fairbanks in his latest picture and appears to be already an old friend of the hostess. Her greeting is not at all formal:

"Allo, Mees Mary. You look fine. Do I look fat?"

Servants rush a tea table out upon the lawn; Miss Pickford poses passing the cake. Sight-seers who have climbed the hill to look at the home of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks peek timidly through the lower gate. Several enter. They are shooed away, but two depart smiling blissfully because they recognized America's Sweetheart before the bouncer recognized them.

Inside the house no pictures are taken. The awed starlets have little to say. Flobelle Fairbanks, Douglas' niece, pours the tea.

Tea is over. The Baby Stars motor away. Most of them still flutter with excitement. They have had tea with Mary Pickford.

Fox has declared a new deal in Western pictures. With the forthcoming departure of Tom Mix from the American screen, Fox executives have decided it was time for new blood to appear in cowboy romances. With that in view, they not only have placed Rex King under contract to bring a novel thrill to film fans, but they also have unearthed another newcomer of talent in Lillian Gilmore, who will play the feminine lead in his first film, "Wildest Romance." She is described as having grace, poise and vivacity. Like King, she is unknown to picture audiences.

Adolphe Menjou's next starring film play has two leading ladies and two and a half villains.

Evelyn Brent, Emil Jennings' lead in "The Last Command," which Paramount has just released, plays the part of the "other woman" in the Menjou production, "The Code of Honor." She is the wife of a Judge, and, despite her marriage, loves the dashing Capt. Ferreol, which role Menjou portrays.

Nora Lane, who played opposite Fred Thomson in "Jesse James" and "The Pioneer Scout," is the second leading woman. She is the girl Menjou really loves.

Raoul Paoli, who had a big part in "Beau Sabreur," is the first villain and William Collier Jr. calls himself just half a villain, because his part shows his good side as well as his wayward characteristics.

Lillian Gish, who has been the guest of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks during her three-week stay here, has returned to New York, to be gone until the first of March. The star announced that she will make "The Miracle Woman," her first picture for United Artists, some time in April. Joseph M. Schenck is bringing Max Reinhardt to Hollywood to direct "The Miracle Woman." During her stay at Pickfair in Beverly Hills, Lillian learned to play golf under the tutelage of Douglas Fairbanks. Much of the star's time was spent riding horseback and playing tennis, sports in which Miss Gish had not indulged for many years.

With Chester Conklin back from his vacation in Honolulu and the cast virtually completed, work is all ready to start on the comedy, "Quick Lunch," featuring Conklin and W. C. Fields. Fields and Conklin were seen on the screen recently in "Two Flaming Youths," and they are to appear again together soon in the new production of "Tillie's Punctured Romance." Richard Arlen will play the juvenile lead in "Quick Lunch," with Sally Blaine opposite him in the romantic story. Mary Allen, who was Ma Potter in the Fields picturization of "The Potters," will play the role of Conklin's wife. Guy Oliver and Arthur Housman will be in the cast.

A Half Century With Mantell

could communicate to the audience.

The opening was scheduled for a Friday night. On the preceding Tuesday, the two leading feminine members of this company, which was presenting repertoire, fell ill simultaneously. The ingenue Jessie Busley, though then inexperienced, undertook Desdemona and Ophelia, and came off with very creditable performances. But for "The Louisianian" the full strength of the company was needed. On Wednesday it became appareent that neither of the actresses who had become ill so inopportunely would be able to appear. Miss Busley began the study of one of the roles. Mantell wired to New York for a Miss Landor who had played the other pa in a try-out. He had difficulty in locating her, but finally succeeded, and on Thursday morning she started for St. Louis.

Miss Landor was scheduled in the time tables to arrive about two hours before time for the curtain to go up. Somewhere along the route she wired that the train had been delayed for three hours. From time to time after that she had the presence of mind to send telegrams telling of her progress, which was satisfactory with the exception of the one delay.

Mantell at eight o'clock decided to take his chance. The house was sold out and he hated to give all that money back, especially as the profits were now all coming to himself. He sent his stage manager to the train with a carriage to meet Miss Landor and rush her to the theater.

He ordered the curtain rung up on a one-act play, "A Lesson in acting." While the playlet was in progress, Mantell kept one ear turned anxiously to the stage door, but the curtain went down without anything unusual happening back there.

But, just as Mantell had responded to his last curtain call, the door flew open, and in rushed Miss Landor, all dressed and made up for the part. She had converted a stateroom in the train into a dressing room.

ONE of the references to St. Louis is contained in the story of the Tercentenary Shakspearen when Mantell appeared at a huge benefit performance with Margaret Anglin in "As You Like It" at Forest Park in 1916.

Miss Anglin was the Rosalind, and Mr. Mantell gave his first performance of the role of the melancholy Jacques. Frederick Lewis played Orlando and Miss Hamper, Phoebe. The engagement extended throughout two weeks in May, and, in spite of being partially marred by rain, attracted huge crowds. A feature was a community prologue preceding the play, in which some twelve or fifteen hundred young people of St. Louis engaged in old English folk dances on the enormous rustic stage representing the Forest of Arden.

SERIOUS DRAMAS MAKE UP OFFERINGS OF THE SHOW WEEK

an," but on returning to New York I met dear old Frank Mayo, and he told me he had seen my performance of the old shepherd under contract to bring a novel in 'As You Like It' and had written a part for me in his new play, 'Pudd'n Head Wilson.' It was the part of Roxie, and I was crazy to play it, but the managers insisted on a star with a Broadway name and so I was cast for Patsy instead.

"The tremendous success of 'Pudd'n Head Wilson' still lives in the memory of theater-goers of those days, of the 90s. This engagement was destined to mark the first tragic experience of my life. We had played St. Louis on our way to the Coast, and were returning for a return date at Omaha. Nearing Grand Island, Fanny (Frank Mayo's daughter-in-law), Will Block, the manager, and I, were standing on the platform between our car and Roland Reed's, when little Frank Mayo (the grandson, who is in films now) came to his mother and said, 'Grandpa must have had a bad night, 'cause he's sleeping awful sound.' His mother hushed him—and Mr. Block and I went to the door of the smoking room to look at 'Poppa Mayo.' He was purple, his face was in his left hand, and I stood there while Will Block asked one of the men to move up and let him sit next to Mr. Mayo. They said 'Hush, Old Man, don't wake the governor, because he had a bad night—a terrible night.' Mr. Block sat down by him and pressed his knee first, and then reached for his hand, then said, 'No one will ever wake him again, boys. He's gone.'

"We took him to Omaha, where funeral services were conducted, and there his very intimate friend, Roland Reed, must have had a premonition, for, deliberately, he scratched with his diamond ring on the glass of the casket 'I'll be next, Frank'—and he was.

"Later I went to Richmond, Va., where a theater was built for me and called 'La Verne's Empire,' and for years I conducted that theater and brought there many of the best known stars of the American stage for limited engagements.

"I was here in St. Louis with the Giffen Stock Company and lived at the old Southern, whose spacious dining room is now a garage, I am told. It doesn't seem like St. Louis to me, with the Planters, Tony Faust's and the other old landmarks gone."

Will Rogers Here Thursday Evening

Will Rogers comes to the Odeon next Thursday night for a single performance, when he will talk about "Great Men I Have Met at the Stage Door," with comments on various news events of the day.

The most formidable claimant for the distinction of having recognized Rogers' latent talents is Col. Zack Mulhall, who saw Rogers first some 20 years ago, when he was brushing up for his first trip to New York.

According to Mulhall, Rogers, then a cow puncher, had attracted considerable attention locally in Oklahoma. He had put on amateur performances occasionally and was considerable of a hit.

Mulhall, who had outgrown his cowboy days and had ambitions to outrival his old side partner, Pawnee Bill as a showman, decided to organize a rodeo and stage its first performance in the effete East at Madison Square Garden in New York. Will was engaged as one of the performers at a salary a month which does not approximate what he now makes in 15 minutes. The Mulhall rodeo at Madison Square Garden was a success and so was Rogers. Even then New York found the gum-chewing comedian from the West to its liking and Rogers in turn liked the big city so well that he determined to return. He did and he has been successful ever since.

Club to Hear Father Schwitalla.

The Rev. Father Alphonse M. Schwitalla, president of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association, will address the Tuesday Literary Club of St. Louis on "Current Science" Thursday.

Sarg's Marionettes Coming This Week

Tony Sarg, the illustrator and marionette impresario will present his little wooden-headed actors in a dramatization of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" under the auspices of the Town Club at Sheldon Auditorium, 3646 Washington avenue, next Friday and Saturday nights. In the afternoon of both days he will present as a new offering, "The Three Wishes" and scenes from his production of "Rip Van Winkle," "Treasure Island" and "Don Quixote."

All the characters recorded for these stories have been faithfully reproduced on the little marionette stage and all the settings, as well as the "props" for the different scenes, are constructed to scale with amazing artistry.

Novelist Turns Playwright at 60.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—E. F. Benson has turned playwright at 60. The author of "Dodo," who is one of the three well-known literary sons of a former Archbishop of Canterbury has written a play called "The Luck of the Vails" which will be produced soon.

Schuricht Will Lead Orchestra At Today's 'Pop'

Symphony's New Guest Conductor Will Offer One Number in the Program New to St. Louis.

SUNDAY concert audiences will have their first opportunity at the Odeon at 3:15 p. m. today to hear St. Louis' new guest conductor, Carl Schuricht, as he leads the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its regular "Pop" concert.

Schuricht has provided a program well within the accepted masters of melody, but which presents for the first time in St. Louis one number, the "Festival," from Sibelius' "Three Historic Scenes."

The other composers of the purely orchestral portion of the program are Mendelssohn, Wagner and Liszt.

The concert presents as it soloist Miss Lois Putlitz, a 17-year-old violinist, whose home is in California, but who for the past three years has been a pupil of Carl Flesch. She has played with success with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and with the Philadelphia Orchestra. Her offerings will be the "Poeme," for violin and orchestra, by the French composer, Ernest Chausson, and the "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" of Camille Saint-Saens. The former, despite its beauty, is rarely heard in the concert hall, while the Saint-Saens work, because of its opportunity for technical display, is one of the battlehorses of the platform. In detail the program is:

Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" ..... Mendelssohn
Wedding March from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" ..... Mendelssohn
"Poeme" for violin and orchestra ..... Chausson
Miss Putlitz.
"Festival" from "Three Historic Scenes" ..... Sibelius
(First time in St. Louis).
Siegfried's Death and Funeral March from "Gotterdammerung" ..... Wagner
Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso for violin and orchestra ..... Saint-Saens
Miss Putlitz.
Hungarian Rhapsody No. 1 in F ..... Liszt

Holmes to Tell of The Glories of Paris

Burton Holmes will take his audience on a luminous screen journey showing "The Glories of Paris" at the Odeon tomorrow evening.

Mr. Holmes promises to lead his auditor-spectators step by step about Paris so that they will be made to feel at home with the things they have read or heard about. The Place Vendome with its bronze Napoleon; the Rue de Rivoli, with the Tuileries Gardens, built for a Queen but now everybody's property; the Avenue des Acacias, the world's most distinguished rendezvous; the grave of the Unknown Soldier; the Invalides where the commandant of the great fortress of Paris has his headquarters; the vast markets where Paris buys her food and wine; the famous salons and shops, restaurants, cafes and cabarets—everything that one must see and do on a visit to Paris. The illustrations will consist of color views and motion pictures, many of the latter made by Mr. Holmes during the time Col. Lindbergh was in Paris.

Toy Theater Players To Give "The Truth"

The next offering by the Toy Theater Players will be "The Truth" by Clyde Fitch, on next Friday and Saturday nights at the Toy Theater at Boyle and Olive streets. This is a play dealing with the everlasting matrimonial triangle, but in no way resembles plays of this type by the present day, as Clyde Fitch did not find it necessary to commit a murder or two during the evening's entertainment, but rather presented his plot in a charming and effective manner.

The following members of the company will be seen in the cast: Marjorie Halliburton, Myra Strauahan, Rose Hobelman, Hazel Baare, Robert East, Milton Carpenter, Bee M. Smith, Joseph McKenna.

I wish to mention a discomforting condition which is likely to attack every person at some time in life. Generally it is certain to trouble those past forty. It is a mild inflammation and especially prone to the bladder, through the day, it seems to give little annoyance but at night it causes much distress through disturbed sleep. This is unnatural and tends to weaken the whole body. It is often due to weak acting kidneys.

Correcting the trouble is a simple matter in nine cases out of ten. I recommend the non-secret remedy, Balmwort tablets to be taken as per directions. Relief follows quickly, much to the delight of those who have thus suffered.

Answer to Miss McL.: Muddy rough skin, the dandruff covered scalp, the odorous armpits or feet, all are equally served by Chex as a cleanser and de-odorant. Blackheads and other skin faults are quickly banished by using this finest of soaps. Testimonial endorsements come in scores from doctors, nurses, hospitals, colleges and the public, and I am sure that my many readers will likewise proclaim Chex as being a real blessing to humanity. It has a delicate fragrance but no medical odor.

R. B. J. writes: "I have a trembling of the nerves and a 'shaky' sensation in arms and legs which annoys me greatly. I am in a nervous, run-down state, with poor appetite, don't sleep well and am both weak and easily irritated all the time."

Answer: If constipation is one source of your trouble, take Sulpherb tablets as a liver and bowel tonic, while taking Cadomena tablets as a tonic for the blood and nerves. They may be taken at the same time.

O. M. writes: "I have been taking salts to purify my blood and cure my skin of itching and pimples, but don't get much benefit. Please prescribe for this."

Ans.: I advise 3-grain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets) composed of sulphur, cream of tartar and vegetable extracts that remove constipation and purify the system. Take this treatment for several weeks for best results.

Mrs. A. G. writes: "I suffer much with indigestion, heavy feeling in stomach, bloating, belching, etc."

Answer: For indigestion, dyspepsia and such symptoms as you mention, I advise the use of tablets Tripepsine, packed in sealed cartons with full directions. They should prove very effective.

Mrs. A. C. writes: "My two children have been out of school for two weeks because of sore throat and cough. Nothing we have used has seemed to help them and I write for advice."

Schuricht Will Lead Orchestra At Today's 'Pop'

Symphony's New Guest Conductor Will Offer One Number in the Program New to St. Louis.

SUNDAY concert audiences will have their first opportunity at the Odeon at 3:15 p. m. today to hear St. Louis' new guest conductor, Carl Schuricht, as he leads the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its regular "Pop" concert.

Schuricht has provided a program well within the accepted masters of melody, but which presents for the first time in St. Louis one number, the "Festival," from Sibelius' "Three Historic Scenes."

The other composers of the purely orchestral portion of the program are Mendelssohn, Wagner and Liszt.

The concert presents as it soloist Miss Lois Putlitz, a 17-year-old violinist, whose home is in California, but who for the past three years has been a pupil of Carl Flesch. She has played with success with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and with the Philadelphia Orchestra. Her offerings will be the "Poeme," for violin and orchestra, by the French composer, Ernest Chausson, and the "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" of Camille Saint-Saens. The former, despite its beauty, is rarely heard in the concert hall, while the Saint-Saens work, because of its opportunity for technical display, is one of the battlehorses of the platform. In detail the program is:

Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" ..... Mendelssohn
Wedding March from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" ..... Mendelssohn
"Poeme" for violin and orchestra ..... Chausson
Miss Putlitz.
"Festival" from "Three Historic Scenes" ..... Sibelius
(First time in St. Louis)
Siegfried's Death and Funeral March from "Gotterdammerung" ..... Wagner
Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso for violin and orchestra ..... Saint-Saens
Miss Putlitz.

COMMUNITY FUND BUDGETS INCREASED $55,800 FOR 1928

Deficit of $30,000 Expected in Total Raised Due to Failure of Some Pledges.

Fifty charitable and welfare agencies participating in the Community Fund have been allotted budgets for 1928 totaling $1,715,627, it was announced yesterday by A. E. Brooker, chairman of the Budget Committee. This is $55,896 more than was appropriated for 1927.

On the basis of these figures, Brooker said, the Community Fund probably will have a deficit of $30,604 at the end of the year. In the last campaign $1,740,023 was subscribed, but $55,000 is figured as normal shrinkage from deaths and other causes. Twenty-six organizations received increases, 14 received the same and 10 received less.

They might well be termed flower portraits.

From St. Louis the exhibit will go to Houston, Tex., to be shown during March.

TIPPED OVER VENDOME COLUMN

Painter Courbet's Admirers Want New Trial for Their Hero of '71.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Admirers of the painter Gustave Courbet want to absolve him from guilt of tipping over the Vendome Column, 150 feet high and weighing 100 tons. They would reopen his trial, held in 1871, and get a verdict of "not guilty."

Many think there is no stain on Courbet's name as revolutionist in the Commune. They admire him for causing the pedestal whereon stood a bronze image of the great Napoleon, all dressed up in a sheet like Caesar, to be wrecked. They even wish Courbet could come back and tip over the thing again. The painter, guilty or not, was sentenced to six months in jail and fined 323,091.98 francs. Courbet, without paying a sou, fled to Switzerland, an old man, where he died six years later.

A Thin Mask Hides Your Beauty

When the skin takes on that worn, sallow, wrinkled or blemished appearance of old age, you will be wise to combat these impediments to your youthful beauty by regularly using pure mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store. The wax gently peels off the outer layer of aged skin and all such blemishes as freckles, wrinkles, pimples, moth patches, etc., disappear almost magically. The underneath skin when revealed is marvelously soft, smooth and velvety with the exquisite loveliness of a schoolgirl. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove finer wrinkles and other age signs, use as face lotion 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

Make Money With Turkeys in California

HERE is the opportunity you have been waiting for if you are one of those aggressive Americans who is anxious to better his condition, who wants to make more money, who wants his family to live more comfortably and to enjoy more of the good things of life.

Every statement in this advertisement is based on actual results—in fact, this Adelanto Turkey Proposition is so good that we don't place your profits as high as we might. Why are they so high? Because our climate is ideal and we have applied the most up-to-date methods of growing and marketing.

Read every word. It is a message that should change your entire plans no matter whether you buy land for later development or whether you move onto one of our 5 Acre Ranches or whether you are able to swing a bigger ranch—either way you can make more money in Adelanto.

READ what the poultry expert says—

W. L. Chaplin, who tells you how to succeed at Adelanto.

"I have been in Adelanto for three seasons and want to say that it is developing into the most satisfactory poultry section of which I have any knowledge, and I have traveled up and down the Coast and in other parts of the country.

Last year one flock of 2,400 turkeys was raised with a loss of less than 10% as against losses that I have often seen up to 40% or more. I explain this by the absence of damp ground and fog and because of the continuous sunshine. I have seen the accounts and the total cost of getting this flock ready for the market was $3.20 each and they were sold on the Los Angeles market at prices ranging up to $8.00 each. A good many were also sold as breeding stock at much higher prices.

I myself have a flock of 2,000 White Leghorn hens and during the month of January just passed I sold eggs to the amount of $1,089.34 with a total outlay, including help, feed, etc., of $581.22 which shows me a net of $508.12 for the month of January. Everyone in Adelanto who is adopting the up-to-date methods which we advocate is making money on his turkeys and chickens. I will be glad to visit the different ranches with any Eastern visitor and show just how we work it to make such big money."

—W. L. Chaplin,
Adelanto Poultry Advisor

Small Down Payment

The small down payment makes it very easy for you to move onto a fully equipped Turkey Ranch. The house has electric lights and running water. The turkey yards and houses are built, the turkeys are on it—everything is ready to start you on your way to independence. The balance is paid off from your earnings at the rate of about a dollar a day.

Wealth Plus Health

And you will not only be making more money but you and your family will enjoy life—listen to this—

—the Turkey Town (Adelanto) is 3000 feet high. Therefore the climate is ideal, with clean, crisp air.

—there is never any fog; there are very few rainy days, the sun shines brightly almost every day in the year; good for folks and good for turkeys.

—splendid school, several clubs for men and women, electric lights, domestic water under pressure, irrigation water for alfalfa and other crops. In fact a thriving little town in Southern California.

Los Angeles and the Beaches

Adelanto is just off one of the main paved boulevards known as "The Old Trails Highway," which is the most popular auto route from the East. It is a little more than an hour's drive to a city of more than 40,000. And from there it is another easy drive to Los Angeles where the Adelanto turkeys are sold. A few miles farther and you are at one of the famous Southern California beaches where bathers are in the surf every day in the year.

Los Angeles wholesalers bought thousands of Adelanto turkeys last fall at several cents more per pound than the regular price, because they were bigger and better than the average. No, there is no chance of catching up with the market as more than half of the turkeys used in Southern California are now imported from other states.

Big Profits — Ideal Set-Up

If you want to start with a small investment you can move right onto one of our 5 Acre Turkey Ranches and have five or six hundred turkeys ready for sale this Fall. You can count definitely on a profit of $2.00 per turkey or more (see Chaplin's statement). The next year you can increase your flock to a thousand or more.

However, if you want to operate on a bigger scale the opportunity is here—one project, The Turkey Farms, Inc., is operating an 80 acre ranch with an ultimate capacity of 12,000 turkeys which means a net profit to the owners of $25,000.00 per year or more. And if neither of these plans suits you there is unimproved land, near town at most interesting prices.

We Make it Easy for Good Men

A good family is a real asset to Adelanto and we go the limit to induce the right kind of people to join us in building up The Turkey Town, where turkey raising has been put on a more business-like basis than anywhere else. Whatever you are doing, you can be a successful turkey raiser if you are industrious and earnest because Mr. W. L. Chaplin acts as Poultry Advisor for the whole community and will show you just how to make a success of your flock. Prior to locating in Adelanto Mr. Chaplin was employed by the government as poultry advisor to ex-service men in Southern California. Read what he says, just above.

We Want You to Investigate

Adelanto is not a new proposition; it was started 10 years ago and has been developed step by step with bearing pear and apple orchards, grape vineyards and numerous profit-making chicken and turkey ranches.

The First National Bank at Victorville or any of the banks at Ontario—in fact any bank or business house in Southern California will assure you of our financial responsibility. The success of the project is well shown by this brief statement from Mr. C. S. Crain, Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors:

"I have been watching the Adelanto development with a great deal of interest for several years and you have certainly accomplished wonders. I have never known of a community where turkeys were raised so successfully and can see an unlimited opportunity. The Supervisors have been happy to develop your roads and schools and to cooperate in other ways with your section of the county."

To increase the net profits for Adelanto Ranchers we have a Cooperative Poultry Assn. for buying supplies; we have a cold storage plant at Adelanto; we operate a fleet of three trucks to Los Angeles and we are closely affiliated with the Adelanto Market which features cider, turkeys and other Adelanto products.

First Come—First Served

There is no present shortage of land at Adelanto. But, the men who join us first will be able to get closer to the heart of town. You ought to get going this Spring if you possibly can; otherwise you lose a whole year of development and profit. For late comers we will have several thousand young turkeys ready to turn over so that you could successfully start an Adelanto turkey farm as late as June. But don't wait—write today and get complete details of our plan which includes small down payment, balance about a dollar a day, free railway fare—in fact you can step right into a going business if you have the money for the first payment, but we don't want drones—even if they have the money. We want earnest men who will help us build up The Turkey Town.

FREE TRIP to California

No man buys "a pig in a poke" and we certainly don't want you to invest in a Turkey Ranch on that basis.

We want you to come out and look things over; we want you to talk with the different chicken and turkey raisers; we want you to drive over our wonderful highways; we want you folks who have children to visit our school; we want any of you who suffer from fogs or from damp, muggy weather to see what clear, dry air we have at Adelanto.

So we urge you to write today for complete details about our plan for a free trip to Adelanto. Yes, we actually will refund your railway fare, or, if you decide to drive out we will allow you an equal amount to apply on the expenses of your trip, if you decide to locate at Adelanto Farms.

Drop "Freezone" on that old, bothersome corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you lift that sore, touchy corn right off with your fingers.

You'll laugh, really! It is so easy, and doesn't hurt one bit! It works like a charm, every time.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store, and is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and calluses.—Try it!

BLOOD PRESSURE 200

Watch your blood pressure! If it's 180 or 200 instead of 120, it's a sign to be careful. High blood pressure cuts years off one's life. Heart palpitation, dizziness and difficulty are symptoms of high blood pressure, the result of our modern abnormal habits of life which put too great a strain upon the liver.

The liver becoming sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste, which then permeate the whole system, affecting heart, blood pressure and blood vessels. The liver needs a little help occasionally. Nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to real health.

Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few soon tell.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have best cough medicine you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this famous home-made cough syrup. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. It tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, which has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

AUCTION OF UNDELIVERED MAIL TUESDAY AT POSTOFFICE ANNEX

More Than 300 Lots of Articles Will Be Placed on Display Tomorrow.

If the electric hair clipper, or the combination anvil and vise, or 30 boxes of face powder or the two-volume set "Child's Home Educator" or some similar article was mailed to you by parcel post but not received, it might be well to attend the public auction of the dead parcel post branch of the Postoffice, to be held at the Parcel Post Annex, Seventeenth and Walnut streets, Tuesday.

More than 300 lots of lost mail will be sold to highest bidders. At irregular intervals packages that fail to reach their destination and do not bear return addresses, are opened and advertised for sale, unless they are claimed and identified before the day of the auction.

The goods to be sold will be displayed for inspection from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. tomorrow.

ENGLAND'S EMPTY CRADLES MAKE LONDON PRESS GLOOMY

Low Birth Rate in 1927 Brings Suggestion of Early Marriage From T. P. O'Connor.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—England's empty cradles rank with the prayer book controversy as a subject for discussion in the British press. Announcement that the British birth rate for 1927 was the lowest in its history provokes gloom in conservative circles.

The Daily Express states the common view in upper and middle-class circles, that the Empire markets are Britain's only hope, and that the empty Dominions must be peopled by a preponderance of the British race.

Alongside appeals for more babies articles appear deploring the refusal of England's surplus population to go to the colonies and suggestions that many of its 2,000,000 surplus women could find husbands, work and happiness in Canada, Australia and South Africa.

The venerable T. P. O'Connor has suggested that all boys be compelled to marry at 21 and all girls at 18.

WATER GUARDS FRANCE'S GOLD

Moat 65 Feet Deep Around Treasure Stored Deep in Cellars.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—A fortress with a moat guards the gold of the Bank of France. "Even American bankers admire it," say officials of the bank.

Deep in the cellars of the last-built branch of the bank, in an old aristocratic palace, there is always an armed sentinel with orders to let no one but the chief director enter. The entrance to the strong-room is a metal safe-door seven feet thick. Inside the gold is stored in other supposedly burglar-proof boxes. The moat, 65 feet deep, has a swift 10-foot flow of water in it, diverted from an underground river. Should some master cracksman reach the big steel door he would be in a smooth steel corridor, the floor of which would disappear from under him once he began operations. Below him would be the swift stream and all about him polished steel surfaces offering no grip. What devices there are to cause the floor to vanish are secret. Officials are so certain of the safety of their treasure that they are willing that burglars should know where France keeps her billions.

SNOW PROLONGED HOUSE PARTY

Lady Peel's Request That Rural Council Reimburse Her Denied.

By the Associated Press.

PETERSFIELD, England, Feb. 18.—Lady Peel asked the Petersfield Rural District Council to reimburse her for expense through having a house party prolonged four days by England's great blizzard. But the Council held that the great snow was an "act of God."

Lady Peel contended that failure to keep the roads clear forced her guests to stay longer than was intended. She had to hire men to shovel the snow out of roads and rented cars to get her guests to their homes. Her bill to the Council was 7 pounds 10 shillings (about $37.50). Snow drifted 10 feet deep in some sections of the Petersfield district.

Party of Altenheim Auxiliary.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the St. Louis Altenheim, 7408 South Broadway, will give a Washington's birthday party Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home. There will be an entertainment program.

WE'RE TALKING TO A HALF MILLION ST. LOUISANS

Yes, we mean the half million who have not seen it. We wonder why! Surely some friend has told you that "The Jazz Singer" is the most extraordinary thing the theater has ever known.

Surely they've urged you to see it. They've told you Jolson sings his great hits. They've told you of the overwhelming story of mother love in this chronicle of the Mammy Singer's life!

Yet, for one reason or another, you're still delaying. Please do not do so longer. "The Jazz Singer" will not remain forever and we do want you to see it because it will make us friends; you'll want to see other Vitaphone pictures; you'll realize the amazing entertainment possibilities of this sight-sound marvel!

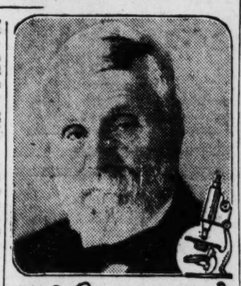
Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his 'calls' were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.



Dr. W. B. Caldwell, M. D. AT AGE 83

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Where is the lady going?

She is stepping into the shoppe where she will pay $5, and maybe $10 to have her gray or faded hair touched up. That's sensible, because gray hair is intolerable to any woman who resolves to remain youthful in appearance. But what an expense! Every new hair growth costs money. Enough to distract any woman who has to stretch a dollar many ways.

Doesn't she know?

Let's tell her how she can go to any good drug or toilet counter and get a large bottle of Brownatone.

And how in five short minutes before her mirror she can apply it herself, easily and quickly and with amazing results.

Her hair will come out soft, fluffy, lustrous and beautiful, restored to its original color so perfectly that even her closest friends will be amazed at the transformation.

Gray or gray streaked hair does not give a distinguished appearance. It is a sign of advancing age.

Of course she'll be happy

Especially when she finds Brownatone so entirely harmless, and so simple and easy to use. And what a difference! From the aged, passe look that gray hair gives to the youthful appearance of girlhood days.

Brownatone comes in all shades, - blonde to medium brown, dark brown to black. While the $1.50 size, enough for 5 new hair growths, is the most economical, you can also obtain a 50c size. But you can economize right away, as Brownatone is guaranteed to be absolutely satisfactory or money refunded.

LETTERS TO COL. LINDBERGH IN 25 LANGUAGES TRANSLATED

Chamber of Commerce Reports Pan-American Tour Increased Trade Inquiries.

Translation of letters written to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in 25 languages was among the tasks performed by the Chamber of Commerce last year. As a result of the young flyer's recent Pan-American tour, trade communications from countries he visited, particularly Cuba, have shown a noticeable increase, it was announced yesterday.

At the rate of about 100 a day, the chamber during the last year answered 30,000 requests for information about St. Louis, its development, trade possibilities and so forth. This total did not include the thousands of requests for pictures and information about Col. Lindbergh after his New York-to-Paris flight.

The Chamber of Commerce was asked to establish contact between the correspondent and a dealer in rattlesnake skins and oils, with a concern that dealt in bones in carload lots, with the manufacturer of a sanitary ice cream cone carrier and so on. Hundreds of school children were curious about St. Louis. Tourists were another prolific source of queries.

'COPPERITIS' IN CHURCH PLATE

Too Many Half-Pennies, Vicar Tells His Flock.

By the Associated Press.

TAUNTON, England, Feb. 18.—Caustic comments on growing "copperitis" of church collections in his church are made by the Rev. R. Lowman Lang, vicar of Holy Trinity in a letter to parishioners accompanying the accounts for 1927.

He says under cover of secrecy of a hat people contribute a copper andon Jan. 1 there were no less than 240 half-pennies in the collection. "I am not writing," he says, "in a bad temper but am trying to kindle some glimmer of conscience in those who are fairly well-to-do people but who give half-pennies instead of sixpenny bits. This 'copperitis' seems to be infectious for it is certainly spreading."

Encouragement for Weak, Pale Women

—Roberts Studio

Mrs. H. Boomgarden

"I was in very poor health for more than two years. I became weak and pale, and the doctor failed completely to benefit me. I tried all the remedies I could get, and they, too, failed. Then I heard of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and decided to try that. I had not taken it long when I noticed quite an improvement so I continued and improved in health until I was perfectly sound and well. I never have experienced any of the aches and pains since."—Mrs. H. Boomgarden, Lade Mills, Iowa.

Tragedies Traced to Goitre

Diseased Thyroid Gland Cause of Many Unhappy Lives

That the freedom from goitre, often unsuspected, restores wrecked homes to happiness, and altered characters to normal, is the startling discovery of a noted Battle Creek goitre specialist.

Histories of thousands of cases treated by him show not only the disappearance of goitre and its symptoms but a corresponding and resultant return of the patient to normal disposition and happy home life once more.

And why not? Science tells us that long before the goitre becomes visible, before its presence is even suspected, its poisons are irritating the nerves, interfering with right mental processes.

Nerves become hypersensitive. Restlessness and a craving for excitement follow. The patient not realizing her condition, begins a restless search for new thrills, keener emotional stimulation. This may end anywhere in tragedy all too often.

Pretty Marie Young, whose goitre reduced 3½ inches in 6 weeks —and her disposition changed accordingly.

Too Much Jazz.

"For several years," wrote a distracted mother to this specialist, "I worried over my daughter's growing wildness. Remonstrances only led to scenes. Hours became later. Parties more questionable."

What a common picture of loyable, high-strung modern youth! In how many anxious homes is it duplicated today?

"Then came your remarkable book on goitre," continues Mrs. Young's letter, "and Marie's subsequent case as you know. Today our girl is her natural, sweet, happy self, content with the normal pleasures of a girl's life. Saved from, we know not what sorrows."

Happy Homes Restored

Advanced stages of thyroid gland poisoning still often unsuspected, cause abnormal irritability, frequent mental disturbances, hysteria-like unreasonableness. What love or home is proof for long against such attacks?

"Not mine," said Jack Howard. When charming little Mrs. Howard gradually changed from companionable to nagging, Jack packed up and left. Happening upon the goitre book written by this same specialist he recognized the symptoms and induced his wife to take this treatment.

"Today," says young Howard, "with the goitre gone and Molly herself again, there isn't a happier home in the world. And just to think where we might have been—"

These cases are typical of literally dozens traced to this most successful physician.

Young Girls Victims

A glance at almost any group of school girls and young women shows an alarming proportion of them with gently swollen throats, indicative of goitre. In some localities as high as 80% are affected.

Contrary to popular belief the size of the goitre has very little to do with its seriousness. Often it is invisible. Often it results in mental slowness rather than mental stimulation, in physical undevelopment, dullness, headaches, choking sensations.

What to Do?

An understanding of the causes of this all-too-prevalent disease would serve to prevent countless cases. An understanding of the symptoms would discover its presence in the early stages when it is most easily checked. An understanding of its proper treatment would bring blessed relief to sufferers, and in most cases even where the disease is already advanced.

This knowledge is found in a recent book on goitre, referred to above, and which the Doctor expressed himself as glad to send, without charge or obligation of any kind, to anyone interested.

New Book Tells How

"Goitre, its causes, its dangers, its treatment," as this authoritative book is called, is perhaps the most complete and informative non-technical book ever published on this subject. It is written by the one man best qualified to write such a book. He has specialized in this one disease for over 20 years, and has, without doubt, more cases to his credit than any other one person.

This book, to anyone touched by this tragic disease, or with loved ones who may be affected, is invaluable. It should be in every household. Every mother, every girl and woman should read it. Before the supply is exhausted, take advantage of this extraordinary offer. Send for a copy of the book. It is free. It is given to our readers without obligation of any kind.

ALL BUT FOUR STATES LIMIT WOMEN'S WORK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—There are only four states in the Union at present that have no laws of any sort regulating the hours of work for women industrially employed, according to a new bulletin just issued by the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. These states are Alabama, Florida, Iowa and West Virginia. Indiana prohibits women's work at night in manufacturing industries; and Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina limit the hours in textile mills. All the other states with regulatory laws have definitely forbidden the employment of women for more than a certain number of hours a day or week, or have put a penalty on overtime in the form of increased wages.

This new bulletin called "State Laws Affecting Working Women, Aug. 1, 1927," includes a classified index of all existing laws and charts of their principal provisions under such groups as minimum wage, length of the working day and week, night work, and home work.

Only 10 states provide for an eight-hour day: Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, Utah and Washington. The same limit is maintained in the District of Columbia and Porto Rico. Sixteen states and Porto Rico prohibit night work in some occupations, usually between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m.

No state has regulated each industry or occupation by the passage of all types of hour laws found in the United States as a whole. Some states that regulate daily hours fail to limit the length of the working week, or to provide one days rest in seven, lunch periods, or to prohibit night work. The states that have industrial commissions seem to be establishing regulations that cover all these points more rapidly than are the ones that depend on separate acts of their Legislatures for each step.

About one-fourth of the states either prohibit or regulate home work. Ten states have prohibited for all except the immediate members of a family certain manufactures, such as the making of clothing, trimmings and tobacco products. In general, the requirements are for cleanliness, adequate lighting and ventilation, and freedom from infectious and contagious disease. Most of these laws were passed some time ago, when the agitation against the sweat shops was at its height, and the only states that have made changes within the last five years are California, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

In spite of the declaration by the United States Supreme Court of the unconstitutionality of certain of the minimum wage laws, nine of the states have been able to establish such laws that have not been successfully questioned. In two of these a minimum has been set for specified industries or occupations, and in the other seven boards or commissions have been created with power to study the various occupations or industries and establish minimum wage rates for each or all of them. As a result, rates have been set for one or more groups of workers in all the nine states except Colorado, which has been handicaped by an insufficient appropriation. The highest rate is that of California, which established $16 a week for all industries in the State. Where the rates have been set by law, they are usually inelastic and have not responded to the great rise in the cost of living since 1914. Utah, for example, has a rate of $7.50 a week for experienced women workers.

War Mystery Ship for Sale.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, England, Feb. 18.—Behind the bare announcement in the advertisement of the sale of a tramp steamer Holly Park is a romantic war story. The Holly Park was one of the mystery ships in which Capt. Gordon Campbell earned his Victoria Cross award. Christened by the Admiralty "Q5," this 23-year-old boat accounted for 22 German U boats and was sunk herself no less than three times. On one occasion she remained under water for nine months but was raised and fought victoriously again.

PART EIGHT.

$975,000 PAID FOR TRANSFER OF WOOLWORTH SITE

$175,000 Bonus for Lease Added to $800,000 for Fee in Deal of Turner Estate and Catlin Heirs.

$12,000 A FOOT MARKS NEW PEAK

Prospect of Skyscraper Project on Federal Building Block Among Factors Enhancing District.

By Berry Moore.

Records show that the Turner heirs have realized $975,000 in cash considerations through the sale of the southeast corner of Eighth and Olive streets to the Catlin estate, composed of Dan C. and Theron Catlin and their sister, Mrs. Irene C. Allen of New York, and the 99-year lease of the property to the F. W. Woolworth Company, executed in 1926. This sale was first announced Wednesday exclusively in the Post-Dispatch.

The transactions include $800,000 as the price paid by the Catlin heirs, who acquired the fee to the property Wednesday, and $175,000 as the bonus paid for the 99-year lease. Negotiations for the fee were handled by Cornet & Zeibig.

Obviously, the purchase price of the fee was predicated on the rental yield under the 99-year lease, which is at the rate of $40,000 a year, or 5 per cent on $800,000, or 4 per cent on $1,000,000 valuation. The lessee also is obligated to pay taxes and other carrying charges incident to the property.

$12,000 a Foot New Peak.

The 99-year lease to the Woolworth Company, also negotiated by Cornet & Zeibig, in connection with the Martin & Breitt, representing Woolworth, made possible the sale of the fee for the aggregate, of nearly $1,000,000, which is at the rate of more than $12,000 a foot for the Olive street frontage, a new peak price for holdings in this category—that is, in instances in which control is surrendered under a 99-year lease.

The site has a frontage on Olive of 76 feet, with a depth on Eighth of 127 feet, and is occupied by a three-story building. Its title was vested in the Turner Real Estate Co., which is a holding company of the Turner estate composed among others, of Mrs. Henry F. Turner, W. H. P. Turner and the children of William H. Lee, former president of the Merchants-Laclede National Bank of St Louis. There are more than 25 other nonresidents who are stockholders or heirs.

The Catlin estate also owns 50 feet on Olive street and 42 feet on Eighth street adjoining their purchase. Several weeks ago it leased part of the adjoining property on Olive street, known as 716-718 Olive street, with a frontage of 50 feet by a depth of 100 feet, to the Thompson Restaurant Co. for 99 years for an aggregate rental of $2,500,000 covering the entire term, through the Mercantile Trust Co.

Woolworth Skyscraper in Prospect.

Through its 99-year lease the Woolworth company has obtained absolute control of the corner property. Woolworth has expended $150,000 in reconstructing the building, which is occupied by its principal downtown store. Negotiations for 99-year leases for adjoining property on Eighth street have been under way, with plans for extending the store through to Pine street. It is the obvious intention of Woolworth eventually to acquire ground enough adjoining Olive and Eighth streets for a skyscraper Woolworth building.

The transactions involving this corner recall a 99-year lease acquired by the Jane Investment Co., a holding corporation of the Mallinckrodt estate, principal owner of the Arcade Building, on the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive street held by the Thomas Wright Investment Co. This parcel, which forms part of the site of the Arcade Building, has 50 feet on Olive and 86 feet on Eighth. An annual net rental of $26,000 is prescribed in this instance.

Other Plans for District.

The fee to this parcel is owned by the Valle Reyburn estate, and is held under a 99-year lease by the Wright Investment Co. at an annual net rental of $13,000 by the Thomas Wright Investment Co. which subleases to the Jane Investment Co. at an advance of $13,000 per annum. Thus the property virtually was doubled in value with the execution of this lease made when the site for the Arcade Building was acquired.

The future of this part of the city is enhanced by the prospect of a skyscraper department store on the site of the Federal Building

The lessee also is obligated to pay taxes and other carrying charges incident to the property.

$12,000 a Foot New Peak.

The 99-year lease to the Woolworth Company, also negotiated by Cornet & Zeibig, in connection with the Martin & Brett, representing Woolworth, made possible the sale of the fee for the aggregate, of nearly $1,000,000, which is at the rate of more than $12,000 a foot for the Olive street frontage, a new peak price for holdings in this category—that is, in instances in which control is surrendered under a 99-year lease.

The site has a frontage on Olive of 76 feet, with a depth on Eighth of 127 feet, and is occupied by a three-story building. Its title was vested in the Turner Real Estate Co., which is a holding company of the Turner estate composed among others, of Mrs. Henry F. Turner, W. H. P. Turner and the children of William H. Lee, former president of the Merchants-Laclede National Bank of St Louis. There are more than 25 other nonresidents who are stockholders or heirs.

The Catlin estate also owns 50 feet on Olive street and 42 feet on Eighth street adjoining their purchase. Several weeks ago it leased part of the adjoining property on Olive street, known as 716-718 Olive street, with a frontage of 50 feet by a depth of 100 feet, to the Thompson Restaurant Co. for 99 years for an aggregate rental of $2,500,000 covering the entire term, through the Mercantile Trust Co.

Woolworth Skyscraper in Prospect.

Through its 99-year lease the Woolworth company has obtained absolute control of the corner property. Woolworth has expended $150,000 in reconstructing the building, which is occupied by its principal downtown store. Negotiations for 99-year leases for adjoining property on Eighth street have been under way, with plans for extending the store through to Pine street. It is the obvious intention of Woolworth eventually to acquire ground enough adjoining Olive and Eighth streets for a skyscraper Woolworth building.

The transactions involving this corner recall a 99-year lease acquired by the Jane Investment Co., a holding corporation of the Mallinckrodt estate, principal owner of the Arcade Building, on the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive street held by the Thomas Wright Investment Co. This parcel, which forms part of the site of the Arcade Building, has 50 feet on Olive and 80 feet on Eighth, an annual net rental of $26,000 is prescribed in this instance.

Other Plans for District.

The fee to this parcel is owned by the Valle Reyburn estate, and is held under a 99-year lease by the Wright Investment Co. at an annual net rental of $13,000 by the Thomas Wright Investment Co., which subleases to the Jane Investment Co. at an advance of $13,000 per annum. Thus the property virtually was doubled in value with the execution of this lease when the site for the Arcade Building was acquired.

The future of this part of the city is enhanced by the prospect of a skyscraper department store on the site of the Federal Building encompassing the block from Olive to Locust and from Eighth to Ninth streets. The block from Pine to Chestnut and from Ninth to Tenth streets is foremost among others under consideration for a new Federal building.

Noteworthy also in this connection were plans announced recently for a 35-story hotel building to replace the Stratford at the southeast corner of Eighth and Pine streets.

Fourth and Olive Fee Sold.

Another sale was that of the fee to the property at the northwest corner of Fourth and Olive streets, fronting 120 feet on Olive and 57 feet on Fourth, through Cornet & Zeibig, to Bert Lang as head of a syndicate. The site is occupied by a four-story building tenanted by the Knight, Dysart & Gamble Investment Co. The fee to the property was also owned by the Turner Real Estate Co., which was represented by Cornet & Zeibig. The property is controlled under a 99-year lease by the owners of the Boatmen's Bank Building.

Several large projects have been disclosed recently for sites on Olive street west of Twelfth boulevard. These, however, are making slow progress owing to the advanced prices of ground in this section of Olive street, which in many instances have anticipated the advance in values for a decade or more, according to real estate men. This is also retarding speculative operations on this thoroughfare, which, doubtless, otherwise would be a feature of the real estate market.

REALTY MARKET FIRM SAYS E. J. ALTHEIMER

Discusses Its Stability From Investment Viewpoint—Industries Seek Sites.

Discussing the stability of real estate from an investment viewpoint, Eugene J. Altheimer says that no decided change has taken place in real estate, because it is firmly held. Altheimer, who is president of Eugene J. Altheimer, Williams & Calmer, Inc., calls particular attention to the fact that St. Louis is fortunate in its healthy and steady development, due primarily to its strategic position.

"The prosperity which has been general in our country for the past few years has created a demand for investments in real estate by large financial interests," said Altheimer. "Insurance companies, as well as others, have sought real estate for investment in lending money. These investors have found that the real estate field is a safe outlet for funds. It gives them a good yield and conservatively they realize the stability of real estate. No other class of investment gives them a better outlet, where they could place to an advantage their funds at a rate of income where their principal was secure.

"Many industries are seeking locations here. The new Industrial Club will aid our realty values, absorbing as it will, ground, buildings and residential quarters. With the easy money and liberal rates it affords, it is an excellent aid in this development.

"Our civic improvements will continue to stimulate realty values, and create a demand for all classes of investments."

NEW SAPPINGTON SCHOOL IN COUNTY NEAR COMPLETION

R. G. Russell, superintendent of St. Louis County Schools, reports that the Sappington school on the Gravois Road, adjacent to the estate of August Busch, will be ready for occupancy shortly.

The Sappington School is fireproof and contains four large classrooms on the first floor, adequate corridors, an office and a library. In the sub-basement is a cafeteria, and a playroom, for use during inclement weather.

The Sappington District School Board, however, went further than merely erecting a school building, but followed the suggestions of their architects, Study and Farrar, who have specialized in schools of this type, and constructed a building with marked architectural qualities. It is designed in the Georgian style. There is an ornamental palladium motif of carved stone forming the entrance, with insert panels with carved ornament and classic detail, laid into the brick work, all of which has given a dignified and beautiful facade to the school and has attracted marked comment. Total cost of the building will approximate $55,000, exclusive of the site.

ST. LOUIS HAS GOOD CHANCE IN OLYMPIC SERIES

Only Three Other Cities Likely to Compete in Western Division of Soccer Play-Off.

A limited entry list, comprising not more than 10 teams, will compete for the right to represent the United States in the Olympic soccer games at Amsterdam, Holland, in May. Because of the stringent regulations regarding eligibility, many strong amateur clubs could not qualify and the chances of success for the All-St. Louis team, made up of Municipal League players is now considered very bright.

Chairman W. R. Cummings of Chicago has notified R. W. Tapperson, director of municipal athletics here, that St. Louis will probably be drawn against Pittsburg in the first round match. At the same time Chicago will oppose Detroit. The winners will then meet in the Western final. No dates have yet been set. A similar elimination series will be conducted in the East, with New York, Philadelphia, Fall River, Brooklyn, and possibly Baltimore represented. The winner of the East and the representative of the West will meet in a grand final.

This Olympic competition through which it is hoped to discover the strongest amateur soccer team in the country, is not connected in any manner with the United States Football Association cup competition, which is an open championship series in which the strong professional clubs usually survive.

According to the present plans of the Olympic Soccer committee, as broadcast by Chairman Cummings of Chicago, the team (consisting of 11 players, six substitutes, a manager and a coach) will embark for Amsterdam via Havre and Paris, on May 10 on the Steamship DeGrasse.

Actual competition in the soccer series opens on May 27 and concludes on June 15.

In order to raise funds necessary to defray the expenses of the team, the committee has requested each State association and all affiliated organizations of the United States Football Association to contribute.

"Ham" Farish to Defend Title in Squash Tourney

Championship Competition to Start at the University Club Tomorrow.

The annual University Club squash racquets and squash tennis championship tournaments for the club and city titles will open tomorrow. All entrants play from scratch.

The present champions will defend their titles in both competitions, "Ham" Farish holds the club and city title in squash tennis and Jack Gordon won similar laurels at squash racquets. Since last year's event, several players have shown marked improvement but both Gordon and Goessling remain favorites. Among the leading contestants for honors are Paul Goessling, who was runner-up in both of the recent handicap tournaments, Jimmy Franciscus, Roland Hoerr and Andy McCreery.

Entries in the Class B are more numerous. Final matches in all tournaments will be held on March 24, the day of the annual "Red and Blue" matches at the club.

Head Noises from Ear Tubal Catarrh—or Nasal Catarrh Only

Startling Free Offer!

This announcement is being published in order to secure the names of 25,000 people who are suffering from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises or ordinary nasal catarrh. To everyone so afflicted, a wonderful trial treatment, originated by Dr. W. O. Coffee, for many years a nationally known specialist, will be sent to try without obligation or expense.

Dr. Coffee, himself, suffered for many years from ear tubal catarrh, deafness and head noises. He tried many different treatments which failed to give permanent relief. Then he began experimenting on himself and finally developed a method which completely healed his ear tubal catarrh, restored his hearing and stopped the distressing head noises.

You can test this remarkable treatment, originated by the doctor and since then used with such astounding success by thousands of people afflicted with these troubles. Coupon brings free trial without the slightest cost. Mail it today. You incur no obligation whatever.

W. O. COFFEE, M. D.

Don't Neglect These Troubles!

Deafness, Ear Tubal Catarrh, Head Noises, and Nasal Catarrh generally grow worse when neglected. Authorities claim that ninety per cent of all deafness is primarily caused by catarrh of the head and air passages. Others state that nasal catarrh often causes indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh of the stomach, and many other diseased conditions. If you suffer from dullness of hearing or nasal catarrh, do not neglect this condition.

There are thousands, who are now practically stone deaf, whose hearing could no doubt have been saved had the right measures been taken in time. Dr. Coffee restored hearing in hundreds of cases, where the patients were so deaf they could hear nothing. Of course, those were cases which, in spite of their severity, fortunately had not advanced to the stage that the actual tissues or nerves had become affected. Just remember this—you can prove the value of this treatment entirely without risk or expense. It will come to you absolutely free. Just fill out and mail the coupon.

This liberal plan should convince you that Dr. Coffee's Original Home Treatment will give you relief from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises and also nasal catarrh. The results are quick and convincing. You feel the difference the first day. Try it. This treatment costs you nothing whatever. Simply send coupon or write and say you are suffering from deafness or head noises or catarrh. You will receive a free treatment which Dr. Coffee always claimed was the best treatment he ever found in his 45 years' practice as a specialist. Every sufferer should take advantage of this offer. Hundreds Praise this Original Method

Deaf Since Childhood; Her Hearing Greatly Benefited This Way

Mona McBride

Here is a recent picture of Mrs. Mona McBride, an Illinois woman whose remarkable case and glowing testimonial letter show what this treatment can accomplish. From childhood, Mrs. McBride's hearing was affected, the result of serious illness. Her story is the most convincing proof of the merits of Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment. Mrs. McBride says, "This is to certify that since having scarlet fever when a little girl, I have been hard of hearing, and for the past four or five years I have been almost entirely deaf. A few months ago my left ear began to discharge. I found it to be abscessed and discharging a foul fluid. Nothing seemed to stop it and finally I tried Dr. Coffee's Treatment. To my surprise and delight the hearing in the ear which was partially deaf for nearly 20 years has returned and the abscess has healed. Now I can hear a conversation six feet away. I didn't believe it possible and I certainly advise anyone suffering with deafness to try this treatment. I obtained relief in a short time."

An Octogenarian's Praise

At eighty years of age, D. B. Simmons, of Maine, ascribed partial deafness with which he was afflicted to his advanced years. Developing severe head noises, however, he determined to seek relief from the Dr. Coffee Treatment, the success of which he had heard in similar cases to his own. "I am glad to be able to tell you," he writes, "that after using your treatment as prescribed, the head noises left me entirely and I am rid of the deafness besides. Can hear well again."

Greatly Benefited at 86

"I had suffered with nasal catarrh for seven or eight years; I had terrible head noises, my hearing was bad. It was necessary for people to talk loud, otherwise I could not hear them. I used Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment for four months, and it restored my hearing to such an extent that I can now take part in an ordinary conversation. The head noises are a thing of the past. I am 86 years old."

J. C. Patterson, Indiana.

Head Noises Disappear

With Mrs. Reed Page, of N. Y., Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment quickly relieved a serious and rapidly developing case of deafness and head noises. From normal hearing, in scarcely four years, Mrs. Page became quite deaf. People had to shout close to her ears for her to understand them. Now she writes, "I am happy to tell you how good I feel and how much improved I am. Can hear everything, and the head noises are gone entirely."

After 10 Years' Suffering

"My hearing is now even better than when I was a boy," writes Peter Storm of Iowa. Gradually but surely growing deaf over a period of nearly ten years, Mr. Storm became afflicted with severe head noises which alarmed him greatly. Much to his amazement and when he had practically given up hope of regaining his hearing, Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment relieved him within two months.

Relieved After 48 Years

"I had been gradually growing deaf for 48 years. I had not been able to hear over a telephone for 17 years. Naturally I was discouraged for I had tried everything and found no relief. Dr. Coffee's treatment restored my hearing so I could hear over a telephone in either ear, quite plainly. I no longer suffer with intense head-noises."

Mrs. M. Sherier, Missouri.

Restored Hearing in Month

George Bishop, a native of Saskatchewan, tells how he suffered for 12 years and spent hundreds of dollars seeking relief to no avail. Read what he says of Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment—how his hearing has improved and the head noises disappeared as a result of this simple method: "My hearing grew so bad that people had to shout into my ear for me to understand. Dr. Coffee's Treatment helped me greatly in one month. It is wonderful."

You are not asked to send one penny for this treatment. It is sent free to you prepaid without cost. This is done to quickly introduce Dr. Coffee's original home treatment to sufferers from deafness, or head noises caused by ear tubal catarrh, or from nasal catarrh itself. Dr. Coffee probably treated more cases of deafness, head noises and catarrh than any physician in the United States. He considered this treatment the best he ever found in over 45 years active practice. The fact that it cleared his own case and restored his hearing to normal, after the condition had grown really acute, gave him absolute confidence in it. Then, too, he witnessed what it has done for hundreds of sufferers. Send your name and address today. State whether you have catarrhal deafness or head noises or just have catarrh. This notice may not appear again so mail the coupon at once.

You will be keenly interested in Dr. Coffee's Book on Deafness. In plain, simple language it describes the symptoms of the many various types of deafness. From reading it, you should be able to determine something of the nature of your own trouble. Bear in mind, Dr. Coffee's treatment is not recommended for those who are totally deaf from disease of any kind, from shock, or, in fact, from any cause whatever. In fact, this book frankly states so. Mail coupon today and get the Free Book and Treatment without obligation or cost. Offer is limited—Act!

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

WEE.—The second wedding anniversary is the paper wedding.

J. G. W.—You may apply at the Information Desk at second floor of Social Service Building, 2221 Locust street, or telephone them to send someone to see you. The intelligent help given by social workers is often all that is needed to adjust such a case, as you say you have children earning enough to assist you. Also, you can apply to the Hospital Commissioner, Dr. Shankland, City Hall, for admission to City Sanitarium.

O.—Gunpowder is a mechanical mixture, the first necessity of making it being perfect incorporation, and in order to do this the materials must be in a very finely divided state. Potassium nitrate, charcoal and sulphur are used. There are usually six mills working in the same building with partitions between. Over the bed of each mill is a horizontal "flash board" connected with a tank of water overhead in such a way that the upsetting of one tank discharges the contents of the other tanks onto the corresponding mill beds below, so that in the event of an accident the charge is drowned in each case. The "mill cake" is broken down between rollers, the "meal" produced being placed in strong oak boxes, and subjected to hydraulic pressure, bringing the ingredients into closer contact. It is not a process which lends itself to brief description.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

R. S. D.—You can be held to your contract if you were 21 when you signed it.

A. B. C.—The person in question can be deported. The date of his entry is immaterial.

FRANK P.—You will not have to pay any inheritance tax on the sum described.

JOE.—You would not be entitled to any share in the property, since your wife died before her sister.

R. S. A. V.—If money is in a joint account, the relatives will not share either in it or in the real estate owned in this way, but on the death of one owner, the survivor becomes the sole owner.

UNCERTAIN.—Use of the name in the way mentioned is permissible if the law is complied with by registering the name with the Secretary of State. Write him at Jefferson City, Mo., for application blank.

MRS. B.—If "B." left no will and no other children, "B.'s" child would get a child's share of the estate. The first wife might also claim dower in it. In any case the money for the child's support is a claim against the estate. You should consult a lawyer.

MRS. GRANT.—Ordinarily it takes four to six months for the issuance of the soldier's policy. Then the policy must be two years old before the holder can borrow on it. Your husband should have applied earlier.

MR. H. L. D.—You can have the tract west of the railroad surveyed and see how many acres it contains. If it has less than 38 acres, consult a lawyer in regard to filing a claim against the estate.

MR. FISHERMAN.—The Missouri law prohibits having fish in possession when taken from the waters of this State consequently you could lawfully bring the fish into Missouri if they were lawfully caught in Illinois. This refers to question about March, April and May.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

L. R.—"Popping" of the joints when one bends or stoops is caused by tendons and other tissues passing over each other in moving the parts.

A READER.—A reliable tonic in case of lowered vitality is Ovoferrin in tablespoonful doses in water or milk three times daily after meals. Also, systematic outdoor exercise and correcting constipation is necessary.

BETTY CARR.—If not suffering from inconvenienced in any way there is no occasion to worry about the condition, nor is any treatment advisable. Perhaps not unusual nor due to any lack of proper treatment.

MANY THANKS.—Hygiene necessary in the case of excessive perspiration is long for publication. Your answer will be held for stamped, addressed envelope if you wish to send this. See miscellaneous answers following this date for answer about a hat cleaner.

WAXAHACHIE.—No poison is caused by eating fish and drinking milk. You may eat baked or fried fish while on milk, as you ask. Advice is not given here about dyeing the hair, believing that for best results such should be done only by one experienced in this work.

J. F. G.—There must be some other symptom, or history of your case, other than a "tight feeling" across the chest. It is essential to know the cause to suggest any line of treatment. If you write again giving more detail, something may be advised.

EVELYN. — (1) Olive oil is sometimes used successfully for the development asked about. (2) It should be applied with gentle massage in a circular direction with upward tendency. (3) A masseur employs different methods, including the circular. (1) Taken internally olive oil if it can be taken in sufficient quantity and long enough doubtless would tend to increase weight.

ALICE.—The trouble you mention is not suggestive of cancer, but more likely is a patch of eczema, and if so should be relieved by yellow oxide of mercury ointment in the strength of 10 per cent. However, the possibility of cancer in any sore which is slow to heal makes it advisable to consult a physician for examination such as the Barnard Skin and Cancer Hospital where free treatment is given.

We desire to add 4 real go-getters to our organization; men whom now are earning an average of $2000 per annum; who will follow instructions to the letter, can find her an earning capacity in excess of $5000 per annum; our method of compensation is strictly commission, payable weekly; no traveling.

The type of men we want are pluggers, no high-pressure men in our organization now, nor do we want any just real salesmen, willing to put in a full week of work for $100 or more.

Our line carries more than ordinary resistance and naturally an order taker will not succeed; if you get a thrill out of selling, here is work where every sale gives you that thrill of a job well done and means a new friend with each sale.

While our work is not pianos, radios, stocks or bonds, service or insurance, still we have men with us who have held the above line and who are making good; if you are between 25 and 45 years of age and really anxious to make real money—tell us what you have done for the past two years and give your phone number.

Our general sales manager will be at the Hotel Roosevelt Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to interview applicants.

MORE MONEY for the BLIND as FOLIES BERGERE REBUILDS

Site Once Occupied by the Garden of a Priest Who Willed It to the "Quinze-Vingt."

Liane de Pougy.

Gaby Deslys.

Anna Held.

By R. S. FENDRICK

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS.

A NEW page has just been written in the strange history of the Folies Bergere, the famous Parisian music hall.

The old tumble-down building in which Mata-Hari, Gaby Deslys, Lina Cavalieri, Anna Held, Loie Fuller, Isadora Duncan, Cleo de Merode, Liane de Pougy, "La Belle Otero," Emilienne d'Alencon, Mistinguett, Spinelly, Polaire and a host of other famous singers and dancers thrilled several generations of American tourists has been completely torn down during the past year and, by an apparent feat of legerdemain, a new structure seating 1740 persons—the old house seated only 920—has been erected without a single performance being interrupted.

It will mean an increased revenue for 300 inmates of the "Quinze-Vingt," a state institution for the blind, although one wonders what Father Quentin Courtin, the kind-hearted old priest who donated this parcel of land several centuries ago, would think of the use to which it is being put?

"I hereby bequeath in perpetuity my garden on the outskirts of Paris, in which I have spent so many quiet hours, to the poor sightless folk of the Quinze-Vingt, who may use it for any worthy purpose they see fit," he wrote in his will on June 3, 1579, but a lot of water has passed over the dam since then and by some ironic turn of fate his quiet garden has become a "temple of beauty," where troupes of more or less nude chorus girls kick up their heels every night.

To start at the beginning of the history of the Folies, one must go back to the Crusades, which makes a good starting point.

WHEN King Louis IX, called Saint Louis, returned from the seventh crusade in 1254 he found that the blind of Paris, including many participants in the earlier crusades who had had their eyes burned out by the Saracens, had formed a kind of brotherhood, in order to be together, and met in a public place just outside his castle every day. In a feeling of compassion he provided a home for 300 of them—at that epoch the French' said Quinze-Vingt, or fifteen-twenty, for 300—and allowed them an annual income. He also appealed to the Popes to accord them special indulgences, and on July 22, 1260, Pope Alexander IV published a bull in their behalf that has been followed by scores of other ones through all the centuries. The object of these bulls was to ask the faithful to help support these blind people, and they not only collected money in various churches, but received many bequests.

Courtyard of the Hospice of "Quinze-Vingt."

The site of the Quinze-Vingt has been changed several times, but for the past 150 years it has been installed in the former barracks of the Black Musketeers, near the Bastille, with which it was connected by a secret passage.

OF ALL the bequests received by the institution, which is now under the control of the state, the plot of land the Folies Bergere now occupies has furnished the largest income. Father Courtin, who donated it, was canon of the Holy Chapel at the suburb of Vincennes, and when he died in 1584 it was of very little value, being so far outside Paris, although today it is in the very heart of the capital. The revenue from it steadily increased, however, and today it is between 300 and 400 times what it was originally. The present annual rent of $20,000, which is high for Paris, will now be increased.

This income is the chief support of the 300 blind persons now in the Quinze-Vingt, and it also provides medical treatment for many others who come to its clinics. A number of farms bequeathed to the institution produce very little more revenue than they did 500 years ago.

The Folies Bergere first opened up in 1869 as a cafe concert, with attractions, and it was an instantaneous success.

"A part of the clientele came to see the operettas, vaudeville, clowns, acrobats, tight-rope performers, phenomenons, animal trainers, human cannonballs and cannibals, sharp-shooters, trained elephants, bearded ladies, double-jointed artists, jugglers and freaks," says an old French theatrical encyclopedia, "but another part was composed of dandies and coquettes, who, wishing to flirt and intrigue, had at their disposition a vast promenade where a mother would certainly not have taken her daughter, and where the conversation, which was as low cut as the corsages, would not have sounded well in a family reunion.

"It was this feature that largely made the fortune of the Folies and attracted a clientele not only of Parisians but of numerous strangers, who thought they didn't know Paris unless they went to see the music hall, just as their grandfathers had gone to the Prado, the Mabille or the Grande Chaumiere."

But the Folies became much more than a famous cafe concert, filled with tables, where one could sit in the happy days before the war and drink one's wine or beer and see a good show all evening long for a few pennies.

At that epoch—notably the nineties and the early hundreds—there was a type of 'grande courtesan' in Paris, which, for some reason or other, has completely disappeared. She had her own town and country house, drove to the Bois every morning in her carriage, held a court at teatime like a real lady, and got almost as much space in the social columns of the "Figaro" and "Gaulois" as the nobility. These ladies, who were bound to be beautiful, also helped to make the reputation of this music hall, without mentioning their own, as there was no better means of advertising. They all pretended to sing a bit, and their physical charms more than offset any lack of artistic talent. And so if the Paris visitor wished to feast his eyes on beautiful ladies, and it was just as true of Kings as of commoners, he simply had to go to the Folies.

The late King Leopold of Belgium.

"La Belle Otero."

The place also played a curious political role in the life of Paris, and, in fact, of all Europe, that was far more important than most people know.

IT WAS at this music hall that the late King Leopold of Belgium, who was a steady visitor, fell so deeply enamored of Cleo de Merode, "the girl without any ears"—she really had ears, but she never showed them—that all the funny papers dubbed him King Cleopold, until he finally broks with Cleo and married the Paris janitor's daughter, to whom he gave the title of Baroness de Vaughan.

If he had married a woman of royal blood instead of playing around with Cleo and the janitor's daughter, and been succeeded by a very young son instead of his sturdy nephew, the present King Albert, one wonders what role Belgium would have played in the World War. His son by Baroness de Vaughan is now a common private in the French army.

The late King Edward VII was another faithful visitor, particularly when he was the Prince of Wales, and a well-known story is told about his first visit there.

"I am opening as a star tonight for the first time, and if you deign to come to see me my fortune will be made." the beautiful Liane de Pougy wrote to him one day in the nineties when he was visiting Paris, although she had never been presented to him.

The Prince of Wales, who was a bon vivant, took a big party to the royal box that night and applauded Liane so heartily that she found herself famous the next morning. He not only became a great admirer of Liane's talent, and paid many a special visit to Paris simply to hear her sing, but these delightful trips completely changed his attitude toward France and paved the way for the entente cordiale, which bound Britain to support France during the war.

And then there was the young King Alfonso of Spain, who was bound more closely to France by his friends of the Folies than any other tie, and Russian Grand Dukes and Princes without number.

It was in the old Folies that Mata-Hari, the "Danseuse Rouge," started her career that led to the execution post in Vincennes fortress one gray dawn in 1917, and that Gaby Deslys, "The Blonde Lily," embarked in a blaze of glory that turned out to be ashes in the end.

BUT the music hall's great days passed with the war, like the Hohenzollerns, Romanoffs, Hapsburgs, Osmans and other fixed institutions. New rivals like the Moulin Rouge, the Casino de Paris and the Palace have sprung up and taken much of its fame and its clientele away. The Kings, Grand Dukes, Princes and the beautiful ladies who sang for them have made way for prosaic American millionaires and prim young performers who go about with chaperones. Even the blithe boulevardiers have disappeared, to be replaced by slick and callow young men. The coquettes still promenade, but what coquettes! Dishwashers, mostly. The only trace of the old times is the heavy pall of stale tobacco smoke that hangs over the place. Awfully pathetic.

In spite of all these changes the revenue from the Folies is still rolling in on the Quinze-Vingt like a golden flood, getting bigger and bigger all the time.

And nine times a year the 300 grateful blind folk of the institution gather in the chapel and say a mass for the repose of the soul of Father Courtin, their benefactor, as he requested when he donated this piece of land in 1579.

If you want to catch the elusive essence of Paris—the magic, golden, romantic thread that runs through the common cloth—there it is.

Ready for a HOP TO VENUS

Hopeful Robert Condit Builds a Projectile in Which He Plans to Make the 50-Million-Mile Voyage in Twenty Hours.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MIAMI BEACH, Florida.

OBERT CONDIT plans to start on a journey toward the last of this month that, he is confident, will end 20 hours and 50,000,000 miles later on the planet Venus. He is a serious and very earnest man, youthful-looking for his 35 years, a research chemist and electrical engineer, and apparently of sound mind.

And he can offer some apparently sound reasons why his attempt will succeed while those of previous experimenters in the past have failed. As evidence of his belief, he has spent $110,000, of which $30,000 was his own money, in constructing the projectile that he hopes will carry him across the almost inconceivable distance at a speed about one-three-hundredth of that at which light travels.

Despite the offers of several persons who want to accompany him, including one woman, Marie Snow of Tampa, he is going alone. Moreover, he expects to come back. But that hinges somewhat on the nature of the reception he is given on Venus.

Condit's hope for success is based mainly on a comparatively new theory of interplanetary travel—the expectation that after leaving the earth's atmosphere the projectile will be carried by a meteor stream to Venus. He has decided upon the last of February, or the early part of March, for departure, since at that time there will be a meteor stream flowing between the earth and Venus.

Eight years ago Condit first began to interest himself in the possibilities of reaching another planet, and he gave up much of his research work in chemistry to carry on a number of experiments and tests at his laboratories in Condit, Ohio, which is his home and which was, incidentally, named for certain of his ancestors. He has spent the last few months in assembling and completing his machine in his fence-inclosed workshop on the ocean front. Politely, he has denied admittance to dozens of curious visitors. "They think I'm crazy," he says, smiling.

He explained his proposed 50,000,000-mile journey to the writer as follows:

"THE experiment which I now have under way here is one of a number under development by various groups of scientists all over the world. There are three machines under construction in Germany. Experiments with these machines have been carried on principally in the Desert of the Sahara.

"The Japanese are understood to have at least one under construction, the Russians are developing one or more and there is another being built in the Western United States. The principal hope for the success of this machine, before the others, is in its small size. The German machines are all designed to carry several passengers and one of the first machines known to have been built was built for six passengers.

"The financial backing for the largest of these machines was withdrawn by a German financier because he believed the passengers would be killed in landing. Following his death, his sons gave their support to a smaller machine which, we have heard, is intended to carry three men. Like every other new invention, it is only a question of who will be the first to make a successful experiment. There will be many others immediately following.

Projectile of the type Condit is constructing for his trip to Venus.

"Interplanetary communication has been the object of many experiments, since man learned that the planets were worlds like his own, but most of these experiments in the past have had for their objective the planet Mars, which is no longer considered inhabitable for any animal which can live upon the surface of the earth.

"Of only one-eighteenth the mass of the earth, Mars' atmosphere and gravitational attraction are not sufficient to permit the existence of any animal capable of withstanding the pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch.

"Even if breathing were possible and their blood vessels did not burst, their limbs, particularly the shoulders and hips, which are held in place by vacuum cups, would fall from their sockets.

"Of all the other planets, Mercury, the nearest in order of distance to the sun, has no atmosphere and no organic life.

"VENUS, the objective of the projectile now under construction here, is a true sister to the earth, of practically the same size, surface and atmospheric conditions; her mountain ranges are higher than those of the earth, some of them being more than 20 miles in height. There is a much larger proportion of land, especially around the equator.

"Next in order of distance from the sun is the earth, and next is Mars. These are the four terrestrial planets, which are the only members of our solar system, with the exception of some of the smaller satellites and planets, which have an outer crust. The other four major planets of the solar system—Jupiter, Uranus, Saturn and Neptune—are of only one-quarter or less the density of the earth and would not support any form of organic life.

"Of the smaller planets, from Ceres, the largest, 480 miles in diameter (Bernard); Pallas, 300 miles in diameter; Vesos, 240, and Juno, 120, to Aros and others, 20 miles in diameter, none are likely to be intimately investigated by man in the near future because of their small size.

"In the past, the rocket has been the instrument favored in the early experiments for use in interplanetary communication, and today we have a machine which will probably be called a rocket by the public, but which is very different from the old rockets.

"All attempts at interplanetary communication with these rockets have been failures, or the results have been unknown. About 1827, in what might be termed the first modern attempt at transporting a passenger from one planet to another, an Englishman was shot from a rocket on the coast of Cornwall, England.

"If a motor boat propeller is started at too high a speed, it merely slips through the water, instead of propelling the boat. The same is true of an airplane propeller. The high explosive used as a motive power for ordinary skyrockets expends most of its energy in such slipping, so that nine-tenths of the weight of a rocket, propelled by the ordinary type of explosive, is required to be explosive to send the rocket to any great height in the air. This makes it impractical, if not impossible, for such means to be used for getting as high as the 35 miles necessary to leave the earth's atmosphere.

"Today, at the height of one of the greatest inventive periods the world has ever known, we have a slow explosive, which, wasting a negligible amount of its energy in slipping, is capable of propelling 10 times its weight 50 miles through the air. This principle we have had working in our internal combustion engines for a long time and the airplane manufacturers have been experimenting for several years, trying to adapt the slow explosive for the propelling of airplanes by means of a direct exhaust.

"The explosive to be used in this experiment was developed ahead of the others only by accident. Most of the other people have been working with tetraethyl of lead, which is poisonous. To avoid the poisoning, zinc and other things were experimented with and the resultant explosive was obtained from zinc, sodium, ethyl iodide and sodium peroxide.

"Most of the previous experiments in interplanetary communication have been made with the hope that, after leaving the earth's atmosphere, the projectile would be transported beyond the attraction of gravitation of the earth by either its initial momentum or the so-called law of inertia. The present experiment is not expected to be carried out with the assistance of either of these principles.

"There are, through our solar system, many meteor streams traveling in somewhat more eccentric orbits than the planets themselves, and at much greater speed. It is planned to use the orbit of one of these meteor streams as a motive power through space at a time when this orbit touches both the envelope of the earth and of Venus.

J. B. S. HALDANE'S PROPHECY.

IN connection with Condit's proposed trip to Venus, it is interesting to recall the prophecy of Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, noted English biologist, published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine last year. Prophesying that the earth would gradually become uninhabitable, he wrote of the year 25,000,000 as follows:

"...the vast majority of mankind contemplated the death of their species with less aversion than their own, and no effective measures were taken to forestall the approaching doom. A minority felt otherwise, and expeditions to Venus became common.

"After 284 consecutive failures a landing was established, and, before its members died they were able to furnish the first really precise reports as to conditions on that planet. Owing to the opaque character of our atmosphere on Venus, the light signals of the earlier expeditions had been difficult to pick up. Infra-red radiation, which can penetrate our clouds, was now employed."

Professor Haldane describes the difficulty that the first settlers on Venus had in adjusting themselves to conditions on that planet. The temperature of Venus is much higher than ours, he believes, and it is also his belief that there is much less oxygen in the atmosphere surrounding Venus. But, he concludes his prophecy, man will adjust himself to these conditions.

BLEW a SAFE for His COUNTRY

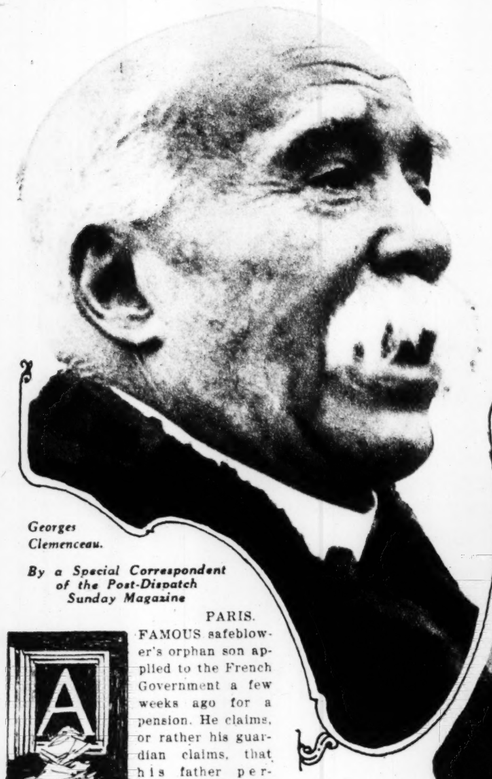
French Government Asked to Give Pension to Son of Baptistin Travail, the Patriotic Yeggman.



Georges Clemenceau.

Baptistin Travail.

PARIS.

A FAMOUS safeblower's orphan son applied to the French Government a few weeks ago for a pension. He claims, or rather his guardian claims, that his father performed "extraordinary professional services" for the country. His request revealed one of the strangest adventures of the World War.

In November, 1917, Paris was tipped off in some mysterious way that there was a fine lot of booty in the safe of the Austro-Hungarian legation at Berne, Switzerland, at that particular moment—a number of important military documents just stolen in Italy, a list of Austrian spies working in France, and some other equally interesting documents.

Clemenceau, Premier and War Minister, immediately called in the chief of the French counter espionage service and said bluntly that he wanted these papers very badly.

"I don't have to tell you what a delicate job it is," the Tiger growled. "You've got to find a man who, in the first place, knows how to crack a safe, and, secondly, who will keep his mouth shut if he is caught and take a long prison sentence without squealing. It would be damned embarrassing for us if he spilled the beans. The Swiss Government would protest, and we can't afford to have bad relations with them. We couldn't possibly intervene in his behalf. I don't know where you'll find such a person, but the mission must be carried out. The tip comes from one of our best agents, and I have special reasons to believe it is a hot one."

The counter espionage chief took the order casually, but he went back to his office wondering where in the world he could find a discreet, patriotic and high-class safecracker.

IN HIS daily routine of watching and thwarting suspected enemy spies in and out of France he had encountered many difficult situations and problems during the preceding two years, but this was a bit out of his line. He was a resourceful man, however, and, after racking his brain for a few minutes, he put in a telephone call to the headquarters of the Surete Generale, the nation-wide detective organization that watches over the security of the French state, and also handles the investigation of all serious crimes committed outside the Paris metropolitan area.

"I am looking for a man to blow a safe in a foreign country," he laughingly explained, "and I need someone at the very top of the profession. It's a hush-hush job. Don't want anyone that ever talks. Whom can you recommend?"

"I've got just the right man for you," the Chef de Surete replied. "Name's Baptistin Travail, called 'The Man With the Forty Alibis.' The best safe man we've ever had in France. At the front now, but I can have him here in Paris in two or three days. He's not only the prince of cracksmen, but he has never been caught on a job or left his fingerprints behind. Expert with the oxy-acetylene blowpipe. Great patriot, too. Was free from military service on account of his health, but came back from Egypt at his own expense when the war broke out, to join up. All right, it's understood? I'll send for him at once."

If there was ever a man entitled to be called the master safeblower of France it was Baptistin Travail.

"The Man With Forty Alibis" was an absolute genius, not only at opening a safe but, what is even more important in this profession, the art of getting away safely and, if possible, proving that he had never been there.

Although he has been dead now for four years—his family believes that he was poisoned in prison because he knew too much—the Marseilles police still speak of him with pride, and he will be the legendary hero of his own special fraternity for decades to come.

As an example of his skill, there was the baffling affair of the Corsican mail boat a few years before the war. When it left Marseilles there was $40,000 in banknotes in the registered mail for the Ajaccio branch of the Bank of France. The registered mail was locked in the ship's strongroom. When it arrived in Corsica there was not the slightest trace of the registered mail being tampered with, but when the bank opened its package they found it stuffed with old newspapers. "The Man With Forty Alibis" happened to be on the boat that trip. The police put the two facts together. They were absolutely certain that he had done it, but they could never prove it. In fact, he was never convicted a single time until 1923, although he cracked several scores of safes in his day.

THE son of an honorable family, Baptistin Travail, born in a suburb of Marseilles in 1879, fell among evil companions as he grew up. At the age of 18 his father forced him to join the army in the hope of reforming him, but he only fell among worse influences. He became an army blacksmith—excellent training for his future career.

As many fortunes are founded on an invention or innovation, so Baptistin's fame was founded on the application of the oxy-acetylene blowpipe to opening strongboxes in banks and jewelry shops.

Returning home from the army in 1907, he was fascinated when he saw this new contrivance, which was just then coming into commercial use, cut through a solid piece of steel as though it were butter. In those good old days for cracksmen the safe manufacturers did not pack the shell of their boxes with asphyxiating products, to poison nocturnal visitors, and so when Travail modestly tried out the new blowpipe in a jewelry shop in Marseilles one night he found it was absurdly simple. The jeweler, who lived over his shop, imagined his goods were well protected unless he heard a terrific explosion downstairs. The other members of the craft were still using dynamite and glycerine, which would wake up a whole town. It marked a new epoch in safecracking, as the electric torch, the "can opener" and other new devices opened new fields for enterprising Jimmy Valentines in later years.

And so, thanks to modern science, Travail discreetly launched into a career in which he proved to be extraordinarily brilliant.

The Marseilles police were puzzled by the new technique at first, and also by the identity of the cracksman. By watching all the supplies of acetylene they finally discovered who was doing all the blowpipe jobs, but that was as far as they ever got.

IT WAS impossible to get enough evidence to convict him. He was not only a skilled mechanic, but as clever as a fox. He would not attempt a job unless he had a perfect alibi, and so they began to call him "The Man With the Forty Alibis." It was absolutely certain that he was the criminal. There was not another man in France using the blowpipe, but when they went to his villa time after time to arrest him he would smile ironically, go with them to the investigating Magistrate and prove that he was somewhere else when the job was pulled. He became a famous local character. He used to sit at a big cafe on the Canneblere every morning reading a racing paper, as he was officially a horse trainer, and the local guides would point him out to tourists.

Eventually he retired from active participation in the "business." He would finance the job, procure the material and draw up all the plans—the master mind—while a gang of clever Italians would carry out the work.

Baptistin himself never carried a weapon, and never shot anyone. In fact, he had a horror of assaults of any kind. The police connected his name with at least 40 jobs between 1907 and 1914, but he was never condemned once. He had his elector's card, like all honest citizens, and subscribed generously to all local charities. He was, naturally, well-to-do.

Travail was in Alexandria, Egypt, when the war broke out—by a curious coincidence the safe in the Rosenfeld jewelry shop there was opened with a blowpipe a few days after he arrived—and, though he was completely free from military service on account of his health, he paid his own way back to France (or perhaps Mr. Rosenfeld paid it, indirectly), signed up as a volunteer, asked to be sent to the front and fought bravely for several years.

He was still at the front in November, 1917, when the War Ministry telegraphed urgent orders for him to report to the Chef de Surete at Paris.

"If you get caught it will probably mean 10 years in prison, and we won't be able to help you," the head of the Military Counter Espionage Service added, after explaining what he wanted.

"And if you succeed you'll never get the Legion of Honor, because it's too delicate an affair, but the French Government will be deeply grateful to you, nevertheless. Good day and good luck."

TRAVAIL found two clever Italian professionals to help him, bought the necessary material and slipped over to Berne with passports made out in false names. He studied the ground for some weeks in advance, as it was a hard nut to crack. The Austro-Hungarian legation stood in the center of a big park, and the building itself was well guarded. The park was full of watch dogs. The diplomatic safe had an electric bell attachment, and also an infernal machine attached to the outside that would blow up the instant any steel tool touched it. Throughout the house was a system for electrocuting anyone who tried to open a door with a key.

In spite of all these traps the three men cut out the back of the safe one night, grabbed the much-wanted papers, jumped into a fast motor car waiting around the corner and crossed the frontier into France before daylight.

Travail's health had broken down in the trenches and he asked that the authorities show their appreciation by transferring him to a munitions factory. Instead of that he was sent to a very dangerous sector of the front—as though he was a man who knew too much to be allowed to live. Perhaps it was only an oversight. No one knows. Anyway, he decided that it was healthy for him to leave the army, and he went over the hill one day in May, 1918. He completely dropped out of sight until the French Government announced, in July, 1921, that it had demanded his extradition from Brazil on a charge of having burglarized several jewelry shops in Paris just after the war.

Travail had fled to Rio de Janeiro, married a Brazilian woman, opened up an export business under an assumed name and had begun to prosper when he was arrested there and placed on the French liner Valdivia. The boat was due at Marseilles on October 10.

THE whole town took a day off to go down to the docks to see him arrive, and many even went to welcome him. It was widely felt that, taking his war service into account, he should be left in peace in Brazil. Besides, a number of persons, including the Marseilles police, were indignant that such an artist should be accused of a crude safe job in Paris that bore none of his earmarks! The boat was late. The evening newspaper became so excited that they announced his arrival, but they went off half-cocked. When the boat finally arrived the captain threw up his hands in helplessness.

"I locked him up in the strongroom at every port," he explained. "The night before we left Las Palmas, Canary Islands, I went to bid him goodnight. The guardian, standing outside the door, was fully awake. 'Anything new?' I asked. 'Nothing new," he replied. 'He's sleeping.' I peeped inside, but he was gone. He had worked his way through a porthole no bigger than a man's head and swam ashore. The police could not locate him."

He turned up in Spain the next year, and, although he knew the police were looking for him, he let himself be captured and taken to Paris, where he was sentenced to 10 years in prison. He was sent to the Ile-de-Re, off La Rochelle, and there he wrote to the Minister of Justice, asking a pardon because of his special war services. The letter was returned because he had not used a certain kind of legal paper with a small revenue stamp on it. He was writing another letter when he suddenly died on February 2, 1924. The cause of death was not reported, but the family say he was poisoned.

Travail left an orphan son, 5 years old, who has no resources whatever, and his brother Cyprien, who is a Marseilles traveling salesman, has just written a letter to Premier Poincare asking that a pension be given the boy because of his father's "extraordinary services" during the war.

The Government has not yet replied to this curious request.

The Bitter Feud of the Brothers Voigt

Mysterious Enmity of Eighteen Years' Standing Breaks Out Again in Fight for Wisconsin Judgeship.

Edward Voigt.

Charles Voigt.

By GUY FORSHEY
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

SHEBOYGAN, Wisconsin.

LET the voters do what they will about the matter on election day, next April 3, it's a ten to one shot right now that the next Circuit Judge of this district will be a Voigt. Figure it out any way you like. No matter which way the tide of battle turns, the Voigt family is virtually sure to be represented on the bench. If it isn't Edward it will be Charles, and if it isn't Charles it will be Edward. That is the lineup forward and backward. For this memorable race for the Judgeship of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Wisconsin is a battle between brothers, Voigt against Voigt. Edward, former Congressman, and Charles, former District Attorney of Sheboygan County, constitute the entire field of candidates and it is a fight to the finish.

Like most struggles between consanguineous contenders, this fight is marked by a bitterness unusual even in political combat. There is a good deal of bad blood to be seen. Old grudges of 18 years' standing are being revived. Old wounds are being opened. Although the citizens of Sheboygan County deplore the unusual situation, they are sharply divided on the issue and neither faction exhibits signs of compromise or conciliation. Neither will give an inch, each declaring its favorite was in the field first and that it will stick to that favorite to the end. All of which indicates there will be plenty of fireworks in these parts before April 3.

SHEBOYGAN normally is a peaceful city. Peaceful and busy. For five miles along Lake Michigan stretch its homes and factories. The Sheboygan River winds down to the lake through an avenue of whirring industrial plants. It is progressive and wealthy. Its three primary interests and claims to fame, as stated to the world in Chamber of Commerce literature, are "Chairs, Cheese and Children." The slogan says nothing about benches, especially judicial ones, and as a general rule the town is not deeply concerned about them.

Indeed, Sheboygan County has gone quietly along for 49 years without trying to elect a candidate of its own to the judgeship and without complaining about it. For the last 30 years, Manitowoc County, Sheboygan's neighbor on the north, has held the honor and Sheboygan has evinced nothing but contentment. Judge Michael Kirwan of Manitowoc was the sort of jurist any district could be proud of, regardless of county rivalry. Sheboygan was always for him to a man and nobody ever thought of running against him. Last summer the Sheboygan County Bar Association unanimously signed a petition asking him to be a candidate again when his term should expire. But a little later Judge Kirwan announced he would not seek or accept another term on the bench. He was getting old, he said, and wished to retire from public life.

HERE, then, was the opportunity for which Sheboygan had waited long and patiently. The field was clear at last for a Sheboygan man. All it had to do was to agree on a candidate and common decency on the part of Manitowoc would forbid competition from that quarter. That was what Sheboygan set about to do—to agree upon a candidate. One candidate. What was its consternation and dismay, then, upon awaking to find it had in the field not one candidate but two. And brothers, who were bitter enemies! More than that, the predicament literally strewed temptation along the path of the rival county. As likely as not, Manitowoc, seeing Sheboygan couldn't agree on a candidate, would abandon its chivalrous stand, come out with a man of its own and beat them both. And who could blame Manitowoc? The Sheboygan situation virtually constituted an invitation for such a move. The Sheboygan Press, which strongly supported Edward Voigt's candidacy, held up its hands in horror, pointing out the folly of such a conflict and questioning the sincerity of Charles in entering the race against his own brother.

The Voigt brothers once were law partners, practicing here in Sheboygan in an office still occupied by Charles.

Both were born in Brennen, Germany, and came to this country with their parents in 1883, taking up residence in Milwaukee. Both attended the University of Wisconsin and were graduated from the Law School of that institution. Edward, who is the elder, came to Sheboygan shortly after his graduation and opened a law office. That was in 1899. Three years later, when Charles was out of school, Edward took him into a partnership which lasted eight years.

The brothers were harmonious in those days. Or at least everybody thought they were. They were closely associated in social as well as business life and traveled in the same club circles. Both were personally popular and still are for that matter. They are well liked even by the rank and file of their political enemies. When this writer came here to inquire into the judgeship dispute recently he found them both likable enough and their present hostility hard to understand. Both are big men of fine stature and appearance and of amiable disposition. What caused the breach between them nobody seems to know now except the brothers themselves and they won't discuss it. Some say it was a trait of Charles described as bull-headedness that led to the break. Anyway, in 1910 they split. Edward moved out, establishing another office for himself.

From that time on the Voigt brothers never spoke. They became utter strangers and so did their families. They traveled separate roads, but both, with a flair for politics, achieved some distinction in that field. Edward's political career, in fact, had begun some years before the break. In 1905 he was elected District Attorney of Sheboygan County and served until 1911. From 1913 until 1917 he served as City Attorney of Sheboygan. And in 1917 he was elected to Congress, where he distinguished himself as a member of the La Follette group. Charles, meanwhile, had gone in for politics, too, and had become District Attorney. He made a good one. He kept the office for 12 years consecutively before he was defeated by Herman A. Runge at the last election.

UNTIL this judgeship campaign came along, however, neither of the brothers got much in the other's way. Edward's long stay in Congress and his consequent residence in Washington most of the time for the last 10 years facilitated the practice of giving each other a wide berth. He and his family came home to Sheboygan only in summer and when they did they lived in their country home, which is on a small island in Crystal Lake, 20 miles west of the city. Charles and his family lived in town.

A year ago, Edward retired from Congress at the expiration of his fifth term and refused to be a candidate again. It is said hereabouts he could easily have had another term or more if he had wanted it, but he wanted a rest. After a trip to Europe with his family, he came back to Sheboygan and announced he expected to keep out of public life in the future and to devote his time to the practice of law. Last summer a move was started to run him for Governor, but he stopped that, declaring he wouldn't accept the nomination if presented with an election certificate. Then, suddenly, Circuit Judge Kirwan announced his forthcoming retirement from the bench and there arose the situation which made it possible for Sheboygan County to muddle its prospects with two candidates instead of one. Here is how it happened.

FOLLOWING Judge Kirwan's announcement, the Sheboygan County Bar Association at once got together at the courthouse to indorse a candidate. The first resolution offered was by Attorney Rudolph Schildhauer, known as a close associate of Charles Voigt. It asked merely that the Bar Association go on record as indorsing "a Sheboygan county candidate," no names being mentioned. It was ignored and a secret ballot was taken in order to sound out sentiment and obtain suggestions. Members could vote for anybody. When those ballots were read, there was heard the first mention of Edward Voigt for the Circuit Judgeship. All but two members of the bar had suggested him. The two dissenting votes were cast by Charles Voigt and Attorney Schildhauer. Edward Voigt was not present.

With such unanimity of opinion prevalent, there was one thing to do. That was to nominate and indorse Edward Voigt. It was done and the former Congressman, after some hesitation and after considerable pressure had been brought by C. E. Broughton, editor of the Sheboygan Press, accepted the invitation. He said it was an honor he could not refuse, though it was not of his seeking. Sheboygan County at once congratulated itself upon having gotten together so speedily upon a candidate.

Political waters flowed on untroubled until early in January. Then suddenly appeared the rapids. With a resounding splash, Charles plunged into the race with an announcement that he would be a candidate to oppose his brother. Sheboygan was amazed, but that didn't stop him. Anybody had a right to run, he declared, and the County Bar Association's endorsement didn't elect judges. All of which was true. He said more than that. Criticized for entering the race at a time when such action would jeopardize the county's hope of bringing the judgeship to Sheboygan, he countered with the argument that he really was in the race long before his brother, for he had told his personal friends months ago that he expected to be a candidate. He could not circulate his campaign literature before January 3, he pointed out, because of a state election law prohibiting such action until around 90 days before the election. Therefore, if a brother had shown bad taste by opposing a brother, it was Edward. Edward had cut in on him.

He amplified these statements when I saw him here a few days ago, declaring he could if necessary produce affidavits of a number of persons asserting he had made known his intention last summer. He also emphasized qualifications and war records.

"I LEAVE it for the voters to decide," he declared, "as to which of us is the better fitted for service on the circuit bench. I have been a practicing lawyer for 25 years and for 12 years of that time have been District Attorney. I have been constantly in touch with the courts and court procedure, whereas my brother, for the last 10 years or more, has been in Congress and entirely away from law practice and court procedure. A man aspiring to be Circuit Judge certainly should be a practicing lawyer and one who has practiced constantly. Many changes have been made in Wisconsin laws in the last 10 years while Ed has been away. Congress is no place to train for a judgeship. But a law office is.

"Another thing I expect to discuss fully in this campaign is our respective war records. I don't see how any man who was a soldier in the World War can vote for Ed. It is well known here that he opposed the war and catered to pro-German sympathies. My record speaks for itself. I served as legal adviser for draft boards, made Liberty Loan speeches, even in the German language, and served as county chairman of the 'Smileage' campaign, the first drive made after the declaration of war. All of which, of course, was small service compared to that given by fighting men, but it was something."

The elder brother—Edward is 54, two years older than Charles — had something to say, too, but he appeared much less inclined to deal with personalities than did Charles. There was about him more of the finished diplomat and less of the belligerent hot head. Though there is marked resemblance between the two, Edward appears to have undergone in the course of his public life a smoothing out that Charles missed. Edward flinches visibly at mention of the feud and the muddle it has caused in Sheboygan's political scheme. He deplores it.

"BUT," he asks, "what can be done about it? More than three months before a word was heard of my brother's candidacy, I was asked by the Bar Association to be a candidate. Although I had not expected such an invitation and had planned to get out of public life, I accepted because I felt it was an honor I could not well refuse. My brother's contention that he was in the race first is obviously ridiculous. Why, at the time he says he told friends of his forthcoming candidacy it was not known that Judge Kirwan would retire, and when Judge Kirwan was petitioned to succeed himself Charles was among the signers. I am not the aggressor in this race, but I expect to stay in it. I will let my record speak for itself and will enter into no mud-throwing contest, for the man who throws mud is sure to get splashed himself. I have gone through three political campaigns without even mentioning the name of my opponent and expect to do that as far as possible in this."

The former Congressman smiles at his brother's "slacker" charges. So do his friends. Ed Voigt, they declare, faithfully represented his district, which was opposed to entry into the war as were most other districts in the State. He was a strong La Follette supporter and stood firmly behind the late Senator's program. He opposed conscription, but at no time after the declaration of war, his supporters declare, did he interfere with the conflict's progress. That fact, they point out, is well known, for after the World War he was elected an honorary member of the Spanish-American War Veterans' organization and at the last Armistice Day celebration here he was the only speaker. Indeed, some of those who criticized him during the war were among the bar members who asked him to come out for the judgeship. His supporters are at ease as to his qualifications, too. His absence from active law practice, they assert, is an advantage. For if he is elected Judge he will be able to go on the bench without hangover cases and entangling alliances.

So the race and the arguments proceed. Industrial Sheboygan is becoming more political minded than it ever was before. It is holding its breath, too, for fear some Manitowoc man will step in and make the fight a three-cornered one.

How the TWO BLACK CROWS Feathered Their Nests With GOLD

Moran and Mack Make a Record and the Talking Machine Industry Breaks a Record by Selling Five Million Copies of It and Two Others.

Mack.

Moran.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THE world-weary, oppressed voice of Charles E. Mack, "the boy who was born tired," has crimped the sides of two continents with laughter and given rise to the biggest sale of phonograph records in the history of the talking machine industry.

Mack is the better half, by far, of the "Two Black Crows," the black-face pair who have lately mounted the throne of the dialogue kings, once occupied by Williams and Walker, Weber and Fields, McIntyre and Heath and, more lately, Gallagher and Shean. The "Crows," since the sun of their popularity has risen, have made three double-face records which have sold more than 5,000,000 copies, far more than any predecessor or group of predecessors.

Like all things of genius, Mack's humor, which is "fed" by Moran's questions, is hard to analyze, mainly because it has so many varied sides. His mental activity rises at times to heights a Spinoza might envy. Like a philosopher, he dissects statements accepted as truths, with marvelous keenness, only to give way eventually to the lazy Rip Van Winkle in his character and mutter querulously: "Uh-h, who cares about that, anyway?" Just as the time comes for the final crushing question, the boy simply gets tired. He "don't know," he "just don't feel well." He brilliantly demonstrates the fallacy of the early bird's frantic efforts to get the worm, but if the early bird wants to waste his time on such a triviality, why, let him have it. Who wants a worm, anyway?

IN MACK'S slow, sad drawl there is something of the fatalist's surrender to the inevitable. He soars at times to the heights, but, like the "Song of the Volga Boatmen," always falls back to the drudgery of existing. On the other hand, there is a beauty about his "delayed delivery" that is pleasing. It partakes of the same quality as Willie Sherdel's slow ball, a graceful and unlooked-for hesitation as the pitch nears the plate. Just as the batter is always caught off watch by Sherdel's teasing "floater," the listener never learns to look for Mack's final drawl and it always comes as a surprise. The drawl is ended but the "uh-h-h" lingers on.

The paths of Moran and Mack first crossed more than 20 years ago, when a homesick variety actor shuffled past the stage door of a Tacoma (Washington) theater. He wanted to talk to someone, preferably someone from Aspiner, Oklahoma, his home town.

In the absence of any stray Aspinerians, the actor, George Moran, buttonholed a tall, gangling newsboy and picked a conversation with him. The newsboy had a queer drawl which intrigued Moran, and when it developed that the youngster came from White Cloud, Kansas, just 15 miles from Aspiner, Oklahoma, the two became fast friends. Moran gave his new friend a ticket to the show and later advised him to try his drawl on an audience. Anyone, it appears, with enough nerve to face a hostile audience was eligible for the vaudeville stage in those days.

Charles Mack (it was he who sold the papers) took Moran's advice after the latter had departed and, having assumed the sock and buskin, drifted down toward San Francisco, which was then just recovering from the earthquake. Here Mack was lucky enough to find himself thrown into a most intensive stage training. He "did" eight shows a day in a tab show for a time, but the demand for relaxation and distraction from the terrible disaster among the San Franciscans was so great that Mack was soon compelled to play 16 times a day. It wasn't that he was such a big hit at this time, for he wasn't. He was merely a black-face act, and he drew down $14 every week for his efforts.

FIGURING that he was "getting by" pretty successfully on the West coast, Mack decided that he could likewise take the favor of Broadway, and he went East. Broadway managed to preserve a "Well, who cares about that, anyway?" attitude when Mack slow-motioned his patter across the footlights and the discouraged black-face took up business. He became a salesman.

Here also he met with failure. His slow-motion delivery didn't get across with busy customers, so Mack took the first job, other than that of a salesman, which turned up. It was on a farm.

"My job was to water the horses, inside and out," he relates, in telling of his early career. "I had to provide them with drinking water and wash their outsides, too. Well, there was one horse that talked in his sleep. The farmer said it was because he got thirsty in the middle of the night and made it my job to get up and water him when he got to talking."

THE relative unimportance of this task in a world that called youth to larger things forced itself upon Mack and he turned in his overalls and took another fling at the stage.

This time he had a new line. He had practiced it upon the farmhands, and the slow, drawling mode of speech had convulsed them. It was about Mack's farm in Rome, which is now famous as the place where "goofer feathers" are grown and olives manufactured by immersing green peas in vinegar until they swell up. Never mind how the pits get there. Why bring that up?

Mack needed a "feeder," and the first man he met, when he started to look for one, was his old friend, George Moran. Moran was not working at the time, so they doubled up and started in vaudeville. That was nine years ago.

HOW an act of such obvious appeal went for nine years almost unnoticed is hard to explain. But the "Two Black Crows," as they called themselves from the beginning, went along in a quiet way for just that length of time. Moran and Mack, bound together by so many ties, became a Damon and Pythias. They made vaudeville audiences laugh until their muscles hurt, but when sought for public and private appearances outside the theater, they were nowhere to be found. They sought seclusion and hid from the spotlight. When most acts sought the attention of managers to demonstrate their talent, the "Crows" sat back and decided to let the managers seek them. They knew they had a good line and why bother about runnin' after managers? Who cared about managers, anyway?

Had it been left to American managers, perhaps the "Crows" would never have become famous. London first took them to its bosom. They appeared in a revue at the London Hippodrome and immediately took the fancy of the Britons, who lost no opportunity for imitating Mack's drawl.

Stamped with the approval of Britain, the "Black Crows" returned home to find themselves celebrities and the recipients of many extravagant offers. They appeared first in the Ziegfeld Follies, then at the Winter Garden and later in the Vanities.

Touring the country, they arrived in California and in the city where Mack had once played 16 shows a day for $14 a week, the "Black Crows" packed the house four times a day and, at the urgent request of the manager, appeared in extra shows each day. Movie offers flowed in. One contract called for $260,000 outright. It was turned down and instead the "Black Crows" went in for phonograph recording.

The first record sold over a million copies and created a tremendous demand for the second. In some localities people offered dealers as much as $5 apiece for the first copies they received of the second record.

EVERYONE went in for Mack's drawling "Who cares about that, anyway?" and "What's your idea in bringin' that up?" The farm in Rome and the queer things that happened thereon became topics of conversation everywhere.

By the time the third dialogue of the "Black Crows" was released the popularity of the records was enormous and to date the three records have sold over 5,000,000 copies, breaking all existing marks and relegating the once popular "Cohen on the Telephone" and "Dardanella" to the attic. Another dialogue is due for release soon and the sales show no signs of waning.

Mack has another source of revenue besides his records and public appearances. It is a trunk that he invented.

The necessity for the invention arose in St. Louis. The "Black Crows" were on the same bill with an Italian strong man, whose daily feat and pleasure was to lift a horse and support it upon his back.

The hefty Italian was immensely proud of his strength and delighted in dropping into someone else's dressing room, sitting on a trunk and telling about it.

On one of these visits to Mack's room the Italian sat down too hard and Mack's trunk collapsed in a pile of wood, braces, wigs, costumes and jars of makeup cream.

MACK immediately set about devising a trunk that would withstand the attack of an Italian strong man who sat down too hard and finally had one constructed with strong metal reinforcements on the inside. He not only invited the Italian to come in and sit down his hardest on the trunk, but told him to bring along his horse. The trunk supported both the strong man and his horse and is now selling through a Cleveland agency. Well, if it is a publicity yarn, it's a good one.

Money comes easy to Moran and Mack now. Recently in a radio appearance they were paid $1600.

"And the next time we appear," Mack said, slowly and sadly, "we're gonna ask for $5000."

Asked if he thought they would get it, Mack replied, characteristically: "Wha-what's your idea in bringing that up?"

The British Set Out to Get Richthofen — But His Star Still Guides Him — He Becomes a Captain and the Foremost German Ace.

PART V.

(Editor's Note: Richthofen's victories were not all due to his superior skill. He caught many of his British victims in antiquated machines, and they proved easy prey before his speedy little Albatross. How it felt to meet the great German ace in midair and to plunge in battle thousands of feet toward the earth is told here by an Englishman, who escaped death only by a miracle.)

RICHTHOFEN'S thirty-seventh victory, on April 7, 1917, celebrated his promotion to the rank of Captain. The orders had come through that morning whereby the Freiherr Manfred von Richthofen would from now on carry the title of Rittmeister.

His adversary was a 19-year-old Manchester boy, who had flown out from his airdrome after tea that afternoon.

Three hours later the charred remains were being buried by lantern light in a shell hole beside the smoking wreck of his Nieuport, and on the broken propeller that was placed as a cross at the head of his battlefield grave was scratched the inscription:

"Second Lieutenant G. O. Smart,
R. F. C.
"Killed in action April 7, 1917."

Smart left the offices of his father's cotton mills in Manchester in 1915 and went into the air force as a mechanic. Before the end of the year he was flying as a Sergeant pilot, and won his commission in June, 1916.

Smart's elder brother, C. D. Smart, quit his director's desk at the mill and followed the kid into the air. He was flying over the front the day the youngster was shot down by Richthofen, but did not learn of his brother's death until 10 days later.

The day of Smart's last flight was a bad one for Nieuports. Six of these speedy little French machines with English pilots figured in the air casualties. Three of them were from Smart's own squadron, two more from the Twenty-ninth Squadron, and the last one came from the First Squadron. In all, 28 British planes were lost that day.

Headquarters of the British Third Brigade telephoned to Squadron Sixty's airdrome at Izelle-Hameau that Smart's machine had been found at "M. 7. d. 53" (near Mercatel) together with information that caused the following notation to reach the casualty list:

"Pilot had been burned to death. He has been buried in a shell hole near his machine and a cross is being erected by his squadron."

TEN days later George's brother, now a Captain, flew over from his airdrome at Bruay and tried to locate the grave, but the ground had been so torn up by artillery fire that all trace had been obliterated.

It was not until August 12 that the brother had a chance to even the score for the Smart family.

On that day Captain Smart and his observer were "doing a shoot" at 2500 feet between Lens and Arras, just north of Oppy. They were ranging an eight-inch howitzer when three speedy Albatross planes dropped on them from the clouds above.

Smart and his observer, Lieutenant Short, were alone, but the Captain managed to swing the old R. E. around in such a way that Short slammed a full burst into one of the German scouts. It went down burning behind the German lines.

Captain Smart survived the war and is now back in Manchester running the cotton mill.

Richthofen killed his next man before noon the day following his fight with the six Nieuports. This time it was a new Sopwith two-seater that he went up against, and, although the flying uhlan himself was successful, two of his accompanying planes were shot down or forced to land behind their own lines.

Six of these cavaliers of the red, white and blue cockade hopped off from No. 43 airdrome at Isaire after a late breakfast that morning, and started for their patrol along the front. The Sops had Vickers and Lewis guns fore and aft. The three pilots were Lieutenants J. S. Heagerty, Jimmie Collier and Bobbie Kito. Each had an observer in the back seat. The observer with Heagerty was Lieutenant L. Health-Cantle. It was his last flight.

Health-Cantle came from Weybridge in Surrey, where his mother lives today. He left Trinity Hall, Cambridge, to wear the King's khaki and was almost 22 years old when Richthofen's bullet found his heart.

Heagerty was 20 and hailed from Wellington College, whose rugger field he deserted in 1915 to take part in the doings at Gallipoli, where he served with the West Kents.

He and Health-Cantle had always flown together in France. The pair had 200 hours in the air scratched down in the log books, and this, their last flight, was the third combat of their flying careers.

April 8 was an anxious day for the British. It was the day before the Battle of Arras, and troops were massing behind the lines for the attack that would be launched against Vimy Ridge at dawn the next morning. It was up to the air force to prevent enemy observation behind the British lines.

This patrol of three English planes met the flying uhlan and several of his Albatrosses high in the blue about 11:30 o'clock that bright morning.

"It was the hottest dog fight I had ever been in," Lieutenant Heagerty told me, as we sat in the Royal Air Force Club on Piccadilly recently.

"Until you showed me my own name on Richthofen's report, I never knew that it was the jolly Baron who gave us that party 10 years ago in France," the ex-pilot remarked with a smile, as he scanned the flying uhlan's combat report.

"I think we must have been somewhere around 10,000 feet when we bumped into the Albatross formation. I notice that Richthofen says there were only three planes with him, but it rather seemed to me there were more.

"THE German scouts were higher than we were, and they dove on us from out of the sun, pumping lead as they came. Cantle was working the aft Lewis and I heard him let out a good blast at someone back of us. At the same time a spray of lead whipped past my head and several bullets tore through the woodwork beside me.

"I kicked over the rudder just in time to see the red plane passing below. He swerved at the same time, and round and round we went, each trying to get on the other's tail. I believe his Albatross was a little speedier, but at that the Sop was a good bus.

"Cantle's gun was rattling away, when suddenly he ceased firing and at the same time pressure on the joystick was released. My controls had been shot away. They must have gone in the same burst that killed Cantle.

"I recall putting all my weight on the rudder and seeing one wing tip swing toward the ground, which was coming up at a fearful rate. That was my last recollection.

"Some time later I woke up. I was lying on my back on some blankets. It was almost completely dark, except for the feeble light of a candle.

"I turned my eyes and looked up into the bearded face of a man who was bending over me. He was doing something to my face. I learned later that he was picking teeth and dirt out of my jaw, which had been fractured.

"The man with the beard pressed a glass of brandy to my mouth, which was still full of blood and sand. It burnt my throat as it went down, but it gave me new life. I asked him who he was and where the devil I was.

"He laughed and in broken English said that he was a Major and that I was in a dugout in the German artillery positions.

"'How is my comrade?' I asked.

"'Dead,' he replied.

"'What time is it?' I asked the Major.

"'Midnight,' he replied, 'and your friends certainly are paying us a most unusual lot of attention tonight. The shelling has never been so heavy as it is this minute.'

"I had been unconscious 12 hours.

"Well, that's about all there is to it. My stretcher bearers dropped me at a dressing station, where a German doctor sewed up my eyelid, which had been split in half.

"He did a mighty good job of it, too, although I cursed him and yelled murder at the time. There were no anesthetics and it felt far from good. The doc was an old fellow, and he sewed away like he was darning a sock, while three of his assistants sat on me.

"Then I sat in jail until the armistice."

HEAGERTY has but a few material souvenirs of the war, but there is one he wants. He has written to Richthofen's youngest brother, Bolko, to ask for the little silver victory cup with which the German ace commemorated the combat.

Bolko von Richthofen and his mother, however, refuse to part with the silver trophy that rests today in the bedroom of the German ace.

In that set of 60 cups there's another exactly like Heagerty's which bears the same date. It is No. 39 and it symbolizes two more English flyers whose lives went to fill Richthofen's bag for April 8.

The flying uhlan shot them to pieces so badly that he never could learn their names, although he thought that one of them was called Davidson. From some of the wreckage of the plane, however, he picked up the number, A2815.

Second Lieutenant Kenneth L. Mackenzie and George Everingham, pilot and observer of the Sixteenth Squadron, flew A2815 that day.

The plane was old, a B. E. two-seater, and the job of Mackenzie and Everingham was to make a mosaic photograph of the village of Farbus. They left the airdrome at 3 p. m., and at 4:40 o'clock observers in the English front lines reported them shot down by a German plane. They crashed about 1000 yards west of Vimy.

Seven days later, when the English pushed forward, they found the bodies of Mackenzie and Everingham near the Bois de Bonval and buried them. That was the news sent to Everingham's young widow, who lived in North Wales.

The flying uhlan had great admiration for the pluck of English flyers who risked their lives in antiquated airplanes. He thought that men of such courage deserved better than to die through structural weaknesses in their machines.

Richthofen knew that, while the Albatross D plane was superior to the British planes he was then encountering, it had certain weaknesses that left it far from perfect.

"A pursuit plane," he wrote in an opinion to the technical staff, "must be able to stand the strain of diving 3000 feet. The Albatross does not do this always."

BUT, in spite of this weakness, the Albatross flyers continued to exact terrific toll from the English every day. On the day Richthofen gave the above opinion, which was April 11, 18 planes were shot down.

The German ace contributed one of the victories that made up the 18 planes. It was another old B. E., and although it did not reach the ground whole, its occupants escaped with wounds, landing behind the English lines.

They were Lieutenant E. C. E. Derwin and Air Mechanic H. Pierson, both of whom survived the war and now live in Australia. The fight occurred not two hours after they had gone aloft on a photographic mission for the British Seventeenth Army Corps, which was then advancing.

The two English airmen landed in the front-line trenches, on which a terrific artillery fire was playing at the time. In spite of their wounds they managed to crawl away from the wreck of their machine and reach the safety of an abandoned German dugout.

Eleven days of bloody April had passed, and the flying uhlan had added nine more victories to his record; but this last combat was one of particular significance to him.

With his fortieth conquest he had at last equaled the record of the dead Boelke. Having brought his score of air victories up to the high level established by the great Boelke, Richthofen now sought to exceed the accomplishments of his master.

He did it two days afterward.

It was April 13, 1917. In three flights—morning, noon and afternoon—he shot down three planes and killed four men in the space of 10 hours. These combats brought him the much desired credit for his forty-first, forty-second and forty-third victories, any one of which was sufficient to establish a new record in German air fighting.

Records and trophies were as precious to Richthofen as they are to any pot-hunter of the links or the traps. The flying uhlan referred to the day of his forty-first victory as "my record day."

This referred to another record. It was the first time that he had "shot a triple," which was his manner of describing the day's bag of game.

CAPT. JIMMIE STUART, an Irishman from Coleraine, and Lieut. M. H. Wood, a rollicking youngster from Essex, were the victims of the flying uhlan's first combat on his record day.

Flying an old R. E. 8 as an escort to photography planes, they bumped into the Baron's redbird about 9 o'clock in the morning and found out at the cost of their lives that their Vickers and Lewis guns were no match for the two sputtering Spandaus that snorted death from the nostrils of the flying uhlan's sky charger.

The scene of their cremation was recorded by a German camera that same morning. I found the photograph in Richthofen's scrapbook at Schweidnitz. On the back of it Richthofen had written:

"My forty-first. D. D. two-seater, 12-cylinder Beardmore motor. Two occupants; dead. Shot down and burned on the electric wires on April 13, 1917, about 10 o'clock in the morning, at the canal between Brebieres and Vitry."

After a late breakfast, the Baron went aloft again for his noonday flight. The fight that followed occurred over the British lines, and it would appear that Richthofen's victims escaped not only with their lives, but without wounds, because the English reports carry no account of the affair.

Richthofen's flying comrades confirmed his report of the fight, and the all-necessary credit was granted.

THERE was ample substantiation for his forty-third victory, the third that went to his credit on April 13, 1917. He killed both occupants of the plane he shot down over the village of Noyelle-Godault, just behind his own lines.

Second Lieutenant Allan Harold Bates and Sergeant William Alfred Barnes were the two unfortunates who, together with Captain Stuart and Lieutenant Wood, went to make up the quartet of deaths representing the results of Richthofen's record day, April 13, 1917.

Sergeant Bill Barnes was sitting in the observer's seat in front of young Bates.

Bates and Barnes flew an old F. E. 2b, armed with two Lewis guns, and on the afternoon of their death they had just completed dropping several hundred pounds of concentrated destruction on a German ammunition dump located at a railroad junction between Henin-Lietard and Lens.

That night at the Douai airdrome, the fighting pilots of Jagdstaffel Eleven toasted their leader for the first time as the ace of all German aces. His forty-third victory had established a new mark in the annals of the German flying corps.

The German communique of the following day called particular attention to the achievements of Richthofen's squadron on his record day. Every man in the unit

New Hair Mode from Broadway

"Everyone admires my hair, now that I'm doing it the new way that nearly every really smart girl I know is using," says Miss Agnes Traney, popular dancer, now appearing in the Broadway hit, "Rio Rita." "My hair doesn't need shampooing more than once a month, now. My scalp feels better than it ever has felt. I have gotten rid of all my dandruff. My hair is much easier to arrange, and it stays that way. All I do to keep it like this is put a few dashes of Danderine on my brush every time I use it. It's wonderful how Danderine adds to the beauty of your hair, makes it look so silky and lustrous."

Danderine is not oily. It removes the oily film from each strand of hair and restores the natural color and lustre. It dissolves dandruff, cleanses and invigorates the scalp. It is delightfully fragranced. The big bottles are just 35c at all drug stores. Beautiful, smooth, gleaming hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents.

The RED KNIGHT of GERMANY

took individual pride in the official statement: "Six German machines have destroyed 13 hostile airplanes."

It was good stuff to start the new day on. It contributed something to the flying and fighting by which the staffel knocked down eight more planes before night fell. Of this number, Richthofen received credit for one.

Lieutenant W. O. Russell, who lives at Hilliers Farm in Andover, England, tells the story of the fight, because he is the man the flying uhlan followed to the ground behind the German lines.

"Unfortunately, it scarcely can be termed a combat," Russell told me, "as by the time Richthofen arrived on the scene I had lost the use of my engine.

"Six of us were engaged on offensive patrol in the neighborhood of Douai, in Nieuport scouts, at a height of 12,000 feet. After about one and a half hours' flying, my flight commander dived suddenly. I followed him down, and at about 8000 feet perceived two enemy two-seaters on my right.

"I attacked one of these machines and then discovered, to my horror, that I had lost my engine. After descending another thousand feet I was attacked by two enemy scouts and I was obliged to make a zigzag descent to the ground and landed at Bois-Bernard.

"A red scout followed me to the ground and I learned that the pilot was Richthofen.

"It appears our flight was very soon hopelessly outnumbered by Richthofen's squadron. I afterward met my flight commander, Captain Binney, in a German prison camp.

"He had accounted for four enemy machines before being hit in the arm while changing a drum on his gun. He remembered nothing more until he awakened in a German hospital. His arm had to be amputated at the shoulder. Three of my comrades were killed and I believe one succeeded in reaching our lines."

THE two victims of the flying uhlan's next victory, his forty-fifth, landed behind the British lines. They were Lieutenants Willie Green and C. E. Wilson. When they dug the motor out of the ground they found what remained of Wilson under it and buried him there.

Willie Green limps a bit today as he travels around England selling phonographs and records. Thicker than "Wullie's" limp is the Scotch burr that hangs thistles on his words as he recounts his curious recollections of his last day in the air. A bottle of Highland dew shrunk visibly between us in the Savoy Grill in London, as the flying Scotsman unfolded the story.

"So it was the big Dutchman himself that got me," he agreed, after an inspection of the combat and casualty reports. "And I have been thinking for the last 10 years that it was a 10-inch shell. It was certainly a stout blow.

"I recall leaving the airdrome on the afternoon of April 16, on an artillery patrol. So far as I know we had done rather nicely, although my recollection of details is indistinct. I remember calling once to Wilson and pointing below to something I thought he should mark on the map, and I have a dim memory of the plane making a sudden plunge, out of which I was able to pull it. But that's all.

"When I came to myself again I was in bed and a pretty little lass with black hair was holding my hand. She told me I had been sound asleep for five weeks.

"Then the hysteria would come on me.

"THE trouble was that my skull had been fractured at the base, and the shock of the fall had wiped out all memory of the fight in the air. Now I can see, from the six places where my report jibes with Richthofen's, that he was responsible. Richthofen's report clears up a lot of things that have been mighty dark to me for years.

"My great regret is about poor old Wilson. They told me that the engine went clear through him."

The flying uhlan's next adversaries, representing his fifteenth victory for the month, escaped with wounds, following the fight that sent them to the ground near Lagnicourt, behind their own lines.

Lieutenant W. F. Fletcher, piloting the machine, which was returning from a photography reconnaissance, was badly wounded about the head and arm in the landing crash and his observer, Lieutenant W. Franklin, carried away one of Richthofen's bullets in his left leg.

In a little soot-grimed tenement house in the southeast end of London, a man and a woman of the name of Tollervey are living today. On the wall of the front room is a framed photograph of a soldier's grave in France.

It's the last souvenir of 19-year-old Sergeant Alfred Tollervey, who, with Second Lieutenant E. A. Welch, was shot down and killed by Richthofen on April 23, in an air fight that added another victory to the flying uhlan's well-filled game bag.

British infantry saw Welch and Tollervey attacked by a red scout plane, saw one wing fold back on the hard-pressed English machine, and then turned their backs as the remnants fell to earth.

"He was due home on leave when he was killed," says Mrs. Tollervey; "but he gave up his leave in favor of a comrade whose wife was having a baby."

It was sometimes several days before Richthofen received credit on his claims, and on the day he killed Welch and Tollervey, the High Command had acknowledged only as far as his forty-fourth, which was his capture of Lieutenant W. O. Russell nine days earlier.

In the following five days Richthofen made daily flights at the head of his jagdstaffel and engaged in several combats, but results were not forthcoming, and he was still three units removed from the goal he had set before he would go on leave.

But, with the opening of the week beginning April 27 and ending May 3, the business of killing in the air took a brisk spurt.

In those seven days 26 British machines were shot down behind the German lines. Richthofen and his fighting pilots accounted for 23 of them. It was a boast worth writing home about.

Of those 23 successful combats, Richthofen came off victor in five, and he worked only two days at it. The first of the quintet, his forty-eighth conquest, took place on the morning of April 28.

THE only living survivor of that fight is a quiet-mannered, keen-eyed London business man, whose most exciting sport and diversion these days is his week-end retirement to a cottage at 193 Beehive lane in the town of Ilford, Essex.

Since the exciting days of the war, addresses, as well as times and customs, have suffered considerable change, so that it was not without long hunting that a one-time 23-year-old Second Lieutenant of the name of F. J. Kirkham, who was an observer in the Thirteenth Squadron, Royal Flying Corps, was located.

"It was rather a mess that day in the air," Kirkham told me. "While it was going on, I never had the slightest idea that I would be sitting in a cafe 10 years afterward and telling about it over a bottle of ale. It's hard to believe that old Follett, who sat behind me in the plane that morning, has been dead and buried that long.

"Follett piloted our bus, which was a B. E. two-seater tractor with the observer sitting in front.

"I was watching the ground for the arrival of our shells, when a burst of machine gun fire came to my ear directly behind me.

"POOR old Follett had sort of crumpled up and fallen forward on the stick. I couldn't see his face, but I knew that some of that first burst had hit him. His body on the stick sent the plane down in a steep dive. He must have rolled off it, however, because we seemed to straighten out once or twice.

"I had a number of bullet splashes in my face and hands. The sleeves and shoulders of my flying jacket had several dozen holes through them, and one bullet hit the barrel of the machine gun right under my nose. I remember looking over my shoulder and the ground didn't seem more than 10 feet away. I closed my eyes and said good night.

"But luck was with me. The plane hit a clump of small trees in the German big-gun positions. I woke up while German gunners were cutting me out of the wreckage.

"It must have been about three-quarters of an hour after the crash when we reached a dressing station in a stone hut. I think it was near Vitry. I sat on the ground while a doctor dressed my wounds. They had Follett inside the hut trying to find the bullet that had hit him in the back and lodged in his chest. They couldn't find it. He died five minutes later.

"I was marched back to a big unit headquarters, where I wrote and addressed a post card to my mother, telling her that I was all right, and asking her to tell Mrs. Follett that her husband was dead. The Germans promised to drop it over the lines.

"The uhlan marched me up to Richthofen's airdrome in Douai, and some of the pilots of his squadron treated me very nicely—gave me coffee and something to eat. One of them told me that it was Richthofen himself who had shot me down.

"We never met. I left that night for prison, and that was my address until the armistice."

THE German ace liked a good gallery. He knew he was the "goods" in the air, and it gave him great enjoyment to put up a good show for interested spectators on the ground.

There was another development that piqued his pride that day. It had been reported to him through the Intelligence Department that his fame had become so great that the British had organized an anti-Richthofen squadron for the purpose of driving him from the air.

I have been unable to find that any such organization ever existed in the British flying corps.

It is true, though, that the first man Richthofen killed the next day, April 29, was in the air with two others for the express purpose of dealing with the German ace. Of the three English air knights who flew on that special mission, Richthofen and two of his comrades shot all of them down, killing two and taking one prisoner.

(Copyright for the Post-Dispatch.)

New Hair Mode from Broadway

"Everyone admires my hair, now that I'm doing it the new way that nearly every really smart girl I know is using," says Miss Agnes Tranev, popular dancer, now appearing in the Broadway hit, "Rio Rita." "My hair doesn't need shampooing more than once a month, now. My scalp feels better than it ever has felt. I have gotten rid of all my dandruff. My hair is much easier to arrange, and it stays that way. All I do to keep it like this is put a few dashes of Danderine on my brush every time I use it. It's wonderful how Danderine adds to the beauty of your hair, makes it look so silky and lustrous."

Danderine is not oily. It removes the oily film from each strand of hair and restores the natural color and lustre. It dissolves dandruff, cleanses and invigorates the scalp. It is delightfully fragranced. The big bottles are just 35c at all drug stores. Beautiful, smooth, gleaming hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents.

ing polarized with the attraction of the meteor stream in which the machine is suspended, the projectile will be enabled to travel through space at the same rate of speed as the meteor in whose orbit it is directed, or about one-three-hundredth of the speed of light.

"The old estimate of the speed of light is 186,300 miles per second. Recent checking has shown that this estimate is erroneous, and that the true speed of light is many times slower than this figure indicates.

"No estimate of the probable speed of the projectile through space is possible, for the reason that we do not know the distance to be traveled. The so-called measurements of the space between our planets were taken by triangulation and the base of the triangle used was necessarily of so small a size, and such an odd angle was confined to the surface of the earth, that these measurements were only guesswork.

"THIS has always been conceded by the astronomers, even those who have published the data. Even the relative size, mass and density of the members of our solar system are known to a reasonable certainty, but the distances between them and the scale of the solar system are not known.

"The basis for the estimate of time required for the trip, less than 20 hours, has been made, then, on the speed of the meteor streams.

"The problem of the shape of the projectile to be used had already been solved by the various types of projectiles used by men for other purposes, and the most important problem faced in the designing of the projectile was that of how to sustain the life of the passenger. This problem was solved not only by theory but by careful experiment.

"An oxygen tank, containing 220 cubic feet of oxygen, a gas mask and a small plant for the disposal of carbon dioxide will take care of the breathing problem of the passenger. The problem of maintaining the proper temperature for the pilot was solved with the aid of hornblend asbestos, with which the projectile is both lined and covered. The covering is protected further by a form of glass and an outside wrapping of cloth saturated in silicate of soda to prevent damage by friction and bumps.

"No window or porthole was possible in the design of the projectile, because glass or other transparent material would permit the entrance of cold. The pilot will be enabled to look around, after landing, through the use of a small periscope, operated through the intake pipe to the carburetor. A pair of airplane wing panels will be used as steering gear through the atmosphere of the earth, to permit the shortest routing to the meteor stream.

"The return trip, if made without the aid of these wing panels, which will be dropped as the projectile leaves the earth, will necessarily be made by a longer route through the atmosphere of Venus."

One of the most difficult problems he has encountered in working out his plan, Condit said, was how to avoid a disastrous crash upon landing on the planet.

To prevent this, he has made two gigantic parachutes which will be attached on either side of the forward section of the projectile. These parachutes will be controlled from the inside of the machine and will be opened as it nears the surface of the planet.

Holding the forward section of the machine away from the planet, by throttling down the explosion chambers, Condit plans to control the approach, or "back-up," in negotiating a safe landing.

In a recent address at Coral Gables, Condit declared that he believes the people of Venus to be much farther advanced than those of the earth and that he will be given a cordial reception. Conditions on the planet, he believes, will enable him to start his return trip in the same manner as he plans to start from Miami Beach.

He will carry radio equipment to communicate with the earth, provided he finds that there is any possibility of doing so. He will not name his principal financial backer, whom he describes as a Northern dairyman.

THE would-be interplanetary traveler is an unassuming chap. He has patented several electrical devices and has conducted experiments in essential oils. He is a good conversationalist in all respects but one—he grows reticent when questioned too closely regarding the design of his projectile.

Since his arrival here, his only amusement has been playing with a white English pit terrier which he keeps to discourage prying visitors. He is of a long-established family and is said to be a direct descendant of "Light Horse Harry" Lee of Revolutionary War fame.

Condit has received scores of letters from all parts of the world from persons seeking information, offering assistance or volunteering to accompany him.

"This safe soap washes clothes whiter—" makes water so soft and sudsy, too"
says Mrs. Jacob Rau, 6340A Clayton Road

"I WAS amazed to see how white clothes came, when I first used Rinso in my washer," says this delighted local woman, one of thousands who have written us.

"It's so easy to get them snowy now! Rinso makes our water so soft and sudsy that you don't have to boil or to scrub a thing. No wonder clothes don't fray out at the edges as they used to! It's so safe!

"It's great for washing dishes, too. Takes grease off like magic. I use it for practically all my cleaning now—floors, sinks, woodwork, etc. A little Rinso goes so far that it's the most economical soap in the long run. Saves the cost of water softeners, too.

"Rinso deserves all the praise it gets, and more!"

Makers of 32 leading washers say "Use Rinso"

Rinso suds are the secret of its popularity! Rich and creamy in the hardest water, these quick-working suds rinse out in a jiffy—and carry all the dirt and stains along. Clothes come from the washer the whitest ever.

No wonder 32,000 demonstrators use Rinso to show their machines at their best. No wonder the makers of 32 leading washers say, "Use Rinso for safety—and for whiter, brighter washes!"

This famous granulated hard-water soap is all you need. It asks no help of bar soaps, chips, powders or softeners.

Why, with Rinso you don't even need to boil the wash—clothes come so sweet and sparkling!

Get Rinso in time for next washday. Just feel how weighty the package is! You get your full money's worth when you buy this compact granulated soap.

Great for tub washing, too

If you do the wash by hand, you'll find Rinso an amazing work-saver. It soaks clothes whiter than you could scrub them. Even the most soiled cuffs and edges become snowy with little or no rubbing. This gentle way saves the clothes—saves your hands. Try it!

Still Numbered Among the Missing

Disappearance of Frances St. John Smith Calls Attention to Other Famous Mysteries, From Charlie Ross to Dorothy Arnold.

Frances St. John Smith.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MORE than nine months have elapsed since Nungesser and Coli, celebrated French aces, attempted to cross the Atlantic in their plane, the "White Bird."

Nearly six months have passed since the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim with two companions attempted to perform a similar feat in the plane "St. Raphael."

More than five months have gone by since Lloyd W. Bertaud, James D. Hill and Philip A. Payne set out from Old Orchard, Maine, in their plane, the "Old Glory."

Despite the passage of time, nothing more has been heard of or from them. Authorities generally place them permanently "among the missing."

What if, at some time in the future, a new clew to their whereabouts or fate should be uncovered?

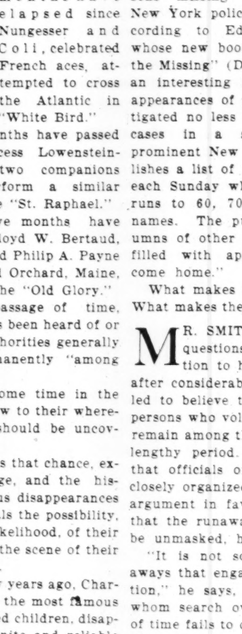
There is always that chance, experts acknowledge, and the history of mysterious disappearances in the past reveals the possibility, though not the likelihood, of their reappearance on the scene of their former activities.

More than fifty years ago, Charlie Ross, perhaps the most famous of all the kidnaped children, disappeared. No definite and reliable clews have ever been unearthed as to what was the eventual fate of the child.

A CELEBRATED European case was that of the Archduke Johann Salvator, who, in 1889, renounced his titles and vanished, after a quarrel with Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria.

A little more than ten years ago, Dorothy Arnold, popular New York society girl, disappeared in the heart of Manhattan's busiest streets. No word has ever come from her, though police searched high and low and far and near in an effort to uncover the secret of this unfathomable mystery.

Now at this present writing police and Government agents throughout the world are on the lookout for Frances St. John Smith, Smith College girl who was last seen by friends and acquaintances about a month ago. Is her disappearance to go down in history as a mystery like those which have preceded her?



Archduke Johann Salvator.

There are thousands of persons "missing" each year. The New York police department, according to Edward H. Smith, whose new book, "Mysteries of the Missing" (Dial Press), throws an interesting light on the disappearances of people, has investigated no less than 25,000 such cases in a single year. A prominent New York paper publishes a list of "missing persons" each Sunday which occasionally runs to 60, 70, and even 80 names. The public notices columns of other newspapers are filled with appeals to "please come home."

What makes people run away? What makes them disappear?

MR. SMITH discusses these questions in the introduction to his new book and, after considerable research, he is led to believe that only a few persons who voluntarily run away remain among the missing for any lengthy period. The very fact that officials of the law are so closely organized presents a strong argument in favor of the theory that the runaway will eventually be unmasked, he contends.

"It is not so much the runaways that engage popular attention," he says, "but those for whom search over a long period of time fails to disclose a slightest clew. There are occasionally a few inexplicable affairs that neither astuteness nor diligence, time nor patience, frenzy nor faith can penetrate. These instances make up the true romances, the genuine mysteries of vanishment.

"A man goes forth to his habitual labor and between hours he is gone from all who knew him, all that was familiar. There is a gap in the environment and many lives are affected, nearly or remotely. No one knows the why or where or how of his going and all the power of men and materials is hopelessly expended. Years pass and these tales of puzzlement become legends. They are then things to brood about before the fire, when moving mind is touched by the inner mysteriousness of life."

Nothing except a natural cataclysm is so excitant of mass terror as the first suggestion that there are child-stealers abroad. This terror of the thief of children is, to be sure, as old as the race. From the Phoenicians, who stole babes to feed to their bloody gods, to the European gypsies, who sometimes steal, or are said to steal, children for bridal gifts, we have this dread vein running through the body of our history, Mr. Smith asserts.

After all, what is more moving than the disappearance of a loved one or an acquaintance? Every town and city of any size has its legends about the disappearance of its inhabitants. Some of them, most of them, turn up again. This fact is evident from the figures Mr. Smith quotes from the records of the New York police.

In one year, he points out, the New York police department had on its books, uncleared, only one male and one female case originating six years earlier. At the same time there were four male and six female cases dating four years before, three male and one female cases originating three years before, no male and three female cases originating two years before, and three male and two female cases dating over a single year before. From the previous year, however, the police carried over 28 male and 63 female cases.

The point here is, according to Mr. Smith, that only one man and one woman could stay hid from the searching eye of the law as long as six years. Evidently the business of vanishing presents some formidable difficulties.

Yet people do vanish.

The careers of 27 persons who disappeared are studied by Mr. Smith. The majority of them never reappeared. They range from the Charlie Ross kidnaping to the disappearance of Dr. Salomon August Andree, noted Swedish engineer who set out for the North Pole in a balloon. All that was ever heard from Andree himself was contained in messages conveyed by carrier pigeons and the buoys that were afterwards found floating in polar waters.

Double Chin

THE woman who would retain a youthful appearance must prevent the drooping under-chin that tells so plainly of age, or neglect.

Dorothy Gray, after years of study, perfected a sane and effectual treatment for correcting this unfortunate condition. Her experience in caring for the faces of thousands of women taught Miss Gray that age shows first in three places:

1. In lines and wrinkles about the eyes and mouth.
2. In a crêpy texture of the throat.
3. In a double chin.

Miss Gray saw that when the contour muscles relax, the facial tissues will sag and stretch, so that a drooping under-chin must inevitably result. The basis of her treatment for double chin is the stimulation of a rapid healthy circulation, for a good circulation is of primary importance in strengthening and tightening the relaxed muscles. For this corrective treatment Miss Gray has formulated specific preparations which aid in restoring the cleanly moulded chin-line of youth.

Seemingly safe with teeth so white

YET...

Many, many people while in the heyday of life are relegated to the background — unwilling spectators who have surrendered health to the disease of neglect (Pyorrhea). This grim enemy attacks the unwary.

4 Out of 5 Pay This Price

Although teeth may be clean and glistening white, the gums break down. When this occurs, Pyorrhea poison moves through the system, often causing stomach disorders and such serious troubles as anemia, neuritis, and facial disfigurement. And according to the figures of famous dental clinics, the toll of this disease of neglect is 4 persons out of 5 after forty, and thousands younger. These odds are unfair. Because it is so easy to keep teeth white and at the same time protect health against Pyorrhea.

More Than A Toothpaste

Just follow this simple regime: See your dentist once every six months. Have him examine teeth and gums thoroughly. And start using Forhan's for the Gums today.

Without the use of harsh abrasives, this dentifrice keeps teeth clean and pearly white. It protects them against acids which cause decay.

And moreover, if used regularly and in time, it helps to keep gums firm and healthy. As you know, Pyorrhea seldom attacks healthy gums.

The formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., this dentifrice is compounded with Forhan's Pyorrhea Astringent, the preparation used by dentists in the treatment of Pyorrhetic conditions. It helps to protect precious health. When used as a massage for exercising gums daily it keeps them sound and healthy.

It is folly to wait for flashing signals, for gums to bleed and recede from teeth, for teeth to loosen in their sockets. Prevention is the sensible course.

Morning and night, every day, brush teeth and gums with Forhan's for the Gums. Teach your children this good habit. They'll like the pleasant taste of Forhan's. And it is the means of safeguarding health, beauty, and youth. At all druggists—in tubes, 35c and 60c. Forhan Company, New York.

If gums bleed easily, if they are tender, apply Forhan's. With the index finger vigorously rub with a circular motion the upper gums, both inside and out, until they feel invigorated. Then massage lower gums. Do this regularly and gums will soon become firm and sound.

With your thumb and forefinger massage the gums both inside and out and the roof of the mouth as well. Massage until you feel the pleasant tingle of increased blood circulation.

Your gums should always look like this — even, sound and healthy. Keep them so by exercising them. Twice daily, massage them with Forhan's for the Gums—the dentifrice that safeguards the health of the gums and cleanses teeth.

We Were Right. More and more people are realizing the importance of oral hygiene. Every morning and every night, they use Forhan's Antiseptic Refreshant. It protects mouth, nose and throat from infection. It keeps breath sweet and fresh. It is safe, effective and pleasant. Try it.

Excess Fat Bars Goodies

Get Thin without Starvation

Excess fat causes many constant self-denials. Every day brings a new fight, and only a small percentage gain in those ways what they seek. The real cause is left uncorrected.

Over 20 years ago medical science discovered a great cause of excess fat. It lies in lack of a substance which controls nutrition. A factor which Nature employs to turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat.

Then that factor was embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. Now people have used them for two decades—millions of boxes of them. They have told the results to others. Today everyone can see that excess fat is nowhere near as common as it was. In almost every circle slenderness prevails.

The use of Marmola requires no abnormal exercises or diet, though moderation helps. Users simply take four tablets daily until they correct the cause. They know what they are taking, and why. The formula is given in every box, also the reasons for all results. Every user knows why the benefits come, and why they involve no harm.

You should try Marmola. Consider what it has done for so long, for so many. Watch what it brings to you in new beauty, new health and vitality. Learn the easy, pleasant, right way to a normal figure. As long as you live you may be glad that you found this scientific method. Order now—before you forget it. Do not wait.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

The Wife of the Pretender to the throne of France

On the art of CULTIVATING BEAUTY

ISABELLE, DUCHESSE DE GUISE—the illustrious name breathes romance! And provokes a chain of fascinating thoughts—France under the Kings! Brilliant courts, balls, hunts—brocades, powdered wigs and beauty patches!

For all that France is a Republic, the Duchesse has been surrounded throughout her life by the glamour of royalty. Philippe VII, Bourbon Pretender exiled to England, was her father; Philippe VIII, her brother. The present much-loved head of the House of France—known to Republicans as Pretender to the Throne—is her husband.

LOUIS PHILIPPE, paternal grandfather of the Duchesse de Guise, was the last King of France. On one occasion the young Queen Victoria with her Prince Consort and a large train of attendants, was entertained by the French King at his historic Chateau d'Eu. Her royal yacht, met by Louis Philippe and his entire court, was greeted with a thundering salute of guns. The Royal party, in gilded carriages and with gaily caparisoned guards, moved in an imposing cortége to the nearby Chateau d'Eu.

No less popular than her royal husband is the Duchesse de Guise—and no less ambitious!

Tall, beautiful, exceedingly gracious, she has built up a large following among the aristocrats. Her infinite tact has done much to further her husband's aspirations to the throne.

Of high position and high ambitions, the Duchesse de Guise knows well the power of beauty. It increases every woman's influence. And absolutely essential to beauty is a good complexion! The Duchesse wisely uses Pond's Two Creams, to guard and protect her lovely skin. Hear what she has to say:

"Every Frenchwoman," she declares, "instinctively delights in the art and wisdom of cultivating beauty. If she happens to come from a family whose glamourous days the world remembers with a thrill, she is doubly zealous in performing all those little rites which keep her loveliest.

"I am delighted to find Pond's Two Creams. Delicate and delicious, they keep the skin fresh and vigorous."

Pond's Cold Cream should be used always upon retiring and several times each day to cleanse the skin.

ISABELLE, DUCHESSE DE GUISE, descendant of the Kings of France. Married to the present Head of the Bourbon House in France, her beauty and her charming tact have done much to further the Royalist cause in France.

CHATEAU D'EU—domain of the Guise family through many generations—is the birthplace of the Duchesse. A sixteenth century restoration, traces still remain of the original fortress built in 912.

THE CHATEAU D'ANJOU IN BELGIUM, residence of the exiled Pretender to the Throne of France and his family. The name calls to mind the first Duc d'Anjou, founder of the House of Bourbon in France, born in 1640. Chateau d'Anjou is surrounded by a large estate which is devoted to agriculture. Because of its location it is a favorite retreat of the Duchesse and her husband, the present Head of the Bourbon House of France. Since his succession to the claims to the throne of France at the death of Philippe, Duc d'Orleans in 1926, he has been exiled from French soil.

Let it remain a few minutes. Its fine, pure oils penetrate the pores, removing all dust and powder. Wipe off, and use fresh cream to remove the last bit of dirt. If your skin is dry, leave some of the cream on overnight.

For a final touch of loveliness brush Pond's Vanishing Cream lightly over your skin before powdering. It adds an exquisite radiance, takes your powder evenly, holds it for hours on end. And when you go out of doors it gives unfailing protection from wind and frosty air.

NOW THERE are two new Pond's preparations—exquisite as the famous two creams! Pond's Skin Freshener, delicately fragrant, to clear and brighten the skin. Pond's Cleansing Tissues, softer than fine old linen, to remove excess cream. Used with the Two Creams, they afford a delightful new Pond's way of caring for the skin!

FIRST, as always, when your skin needs cleansing—at night or during the day—use Pond's Cold Cream. Pat it over your skin generously and let it remain for several minutes.

SECOND, remove the cream with Pond's new Cleansing Tissues. You'll love their velvety texture, their ample size, and you will be delighted with the way they absorb oil and moisture instantly.

THIRD, pat Pond's Skin Freshener briskly over your face and neck for several minutes. Never was such delicious awakening, such refreshment for the skin! Firmed, toned, invigorated, your cheeks are all aglow. The Freshener lifts your skin like magic—and your spirits, too!

AND AS THE FINAL TOUCH, before powdering—Pond's Vanishing Cream. It leaves your skin fine and firm, perfectly restored to natural, youthful texture.

There is an added zest, a keener delight in caring for your skin now! Follow this delicious new way faithfully each day for a few weeks. See how your skin responds with new beauty—gains a delicacy of hue, a velvety smoothness, an elusive charm that words fail to describe!

If you would love to try this extra freshening and invigoration for your skin, send this very day for the complete equipment for a week's exquisite care with all four Pond's preparations. You will be delighted with the charming little package you receive—and the wonders its lovely contents work for your skin.

THESE TWO CREAMS have been chosen by women of distinction in every country to keep their skins exquisitely fresh. Now, the delicious new Pond's Skin Freshener and Cleansing Tissues, used with the Two Creams afford a delightful new Pond's way of caring for the skin.
